THAT SETTLES IT

Brought Into Competition with the World, the Best Carries off the Honors.

At the great Centennial Exhibition of 1876, the leading products of all the branches of the World's Industry were assembled at Philadelphia. To carry off a prize in the face of that tremendous competition was a task of no ordinary difficulty. Inventions and preparations for the alleviation of pain and the cure of disease were present in the greatest possible variety, representing the skill and he profoundest study of the age, and it may be of vital importance to you, personally, to know that the highest and meda given to rubber Porous plasters, was awarded to the manufactur ers of BENSON'S CAPCINE PUROUS PLASTER, by the following jury:

Dr. WM. ROTH, Surgeon-General, Prussian

J. H. THOMPSON, A. M., M. D., Washington C. B. WH(TE, M. D., New Orleans.

ERNEST FLEISCH, M. D , Austria The decision was afterwards confirmed by the medical jury at the last Paris Exposition. Know ing the value of such high and unbiased testimony, the medical profession, both in the United States and Europe, quickly threw aside the old, slow-actin plasters they had been using and ado; ted Benson's in their regular prac ice. That physicians and surgeons of the broades reputation did this, distinctly proves the intr nsic merit of the article.

It is no more than just to add that the average physician of to-day is not dominated by the prejudices which retarded the progress and modified the success of his predecessors of not more than twenty five years ago. He accepts hints from all quarters and endorses and a lopts demonstrated healing ag-nts wherever he finds them. The right of Benson's capsine Porous Plaster to stand at the head of all external applications whatsoever, for the mitigation or care of disease is no longer questioned. Let the purchaser, however, be on his guard against imitation. The genuine has the word CAPCINE cut in the middle. Seabury & Johnson, Chemis's, New York.

The crystals found by Hidden

The difference, Rom. Z Linney, Is very plainly seen; The mineral found by Midden Is beautifully green-

As green as the grass in springtime, When happy minstrels sing; But that which Stephenson purchased Is quite a different thing

That stone from Farmer Warren, He purchased C. O. D . Has got a tint unlovely. A tint we're very free to own

Would not be telerated by any first-class stone. The stone dug up by Hidden Is now in great demand-

They bring a hundred dollars Apiece, please understand; And many a one now lingers On the engagement fingers Of many a lady's hand. Although they be

No larger than a pea They fetch a hundred dollars, and very easi-lee. But the stone that Mr. Stephenson From Farmer Warren bought

Before the public eye, And do not let him cling to you For fame, and vainly try To get the credit for what he didn't find But had to go and buy.

And remember that to Hidden . Is due the credit and the fame Of finding first the matchless gem Which now doth bear his name.

"TRUTHSBEKKR." Work of the Legislature.

Raleigh News-Observer. he Legislature, wh now practically at an end, has done a great deal of work. There were 1,157 bills on the House calendar and 1,080 on the Senate calendar, and these have all been duly considered and passed upon, if not in both houses, yet in one or the other. The consideration bestowed on these bills in the committee room entailed more labor than their discussion in the House. The committees have performed a great deal of work. The Code was considered, section by section, chapter by chapter, and amended here and there, as occasion seemed to require. To do this work intelligently required the close attention of a committee of twenty. The bill concerning the Agricultural Department also received the consideration of a large committee for many days, and so also the revenue bill and the school law. In addition, the railroad bills, providing for the completion of the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railroad and the Western North Carolina Carolina (Carolina Carolina Ca lina Railroad, were so important as to consume a great deal of time. When we consider the short, duration of the session, it is really noteworthy that so much heavy legislation has been perected. Probably five hundred bills have been passed. How many of these are of general importance it is too early to estimate, but doubtless the general law has been less changed than usual by separate bills, because proposed changes were engrafted on the text of the Code. A large majority of the bills are local. This is as it should be. The people send their representatives to legislate for them and expect their local needs to receive attention. The adoption of the Code will settle the law for some time to come, and we trust that it will not be amended so freely as has heretofore been the case with other revisals. The law can never be made to conform to the wishes and views of all persons, for all people will not think alike. It is better to have a stable, fixed law, even if in some aspects it is not free from criticism. Other important matters are the election of two additional justices for each township, the redistricting of the State, the reorganization of the board of agriculture, and the election of a United States Senator. The work of the session has been well done, and we think the people will have but little fault to find either with anything that has been done or that has been left undone. The general result has been to the advantage of the State and to the people, and while it is not possible for any legislature to escape adverse criticism, yet we feel every assurance that the people will approve and heartily endorse the action of this General Assembly. To be sure those who unreasonably expect the representatives of the people to make good weather come or the crops grow, or prices of produce high, or money plenty and easy to get, will be disappointed. But those who have such expectations are comparatively few; the great body of the people indulge in no such anticipations. They do not expect the Legislature to do impossibilities, and we do not doubt that they will view with satisfaction the general result of the work of the

A Noted Assassin Dead.

Johannes Stauff, the German who murdered the Countess Von Gorlitz nearly thirty-six years ago, died recentemploy of Count Von Gorlitz. The Count was at a dinner-party, and re-turning home late found his wife sitting in a chair in her chamber dead with marks of blood on her dress. For years all efforts to unravel the mystery failed; but suspicion was strongly directed against the Count himself, until Stauff was one day detected putting poison in one of the Count's dishes. He was arrested and placed in the dock. Then more evidence came to light Jewels that had belonged to the Count-ess were found in the possession of Stauff's father, and the old man and his other son were also arrested. They were liberated, proven entirely guilt-less, but by the testimony, principally of Schiller and his wife, Johannes RHEUMATISM. Stauff was found guilty in 1850, three Neuralgia, Buffalo Expres. At its first session the Forty-seventh Congress appropriated $225,000,000: at its second session only $229,000,000. The difference, $66,000,000, is the amount at the polls last fall. If the Congressmen had not had a good scare, they would probably—their hands being in—have appropriated even more at their second innings than at their first.

triat some days ago. Infant Suicides in France. Boston Traveler. Quoting from the official statistics recently published of suicides in France it appears, between the years 1876 and 1880 that 198 boys and 40 girls below 15 years of age destroyed themselves. Of these 200 were over 12 years of age: 21 between the age of 12 and 10: 4 were 10 years old; 6 were below 9; the youngest being only 7-making ba total of 238 One recoils at the possibility of a child conceiving the thou; ht of self-destruction. Has it been from the flow of unrestrained passion which sometimes marks the bringing up of the only child of wealthy parents, that its little appetite-already pailed with satiationeaves nothing more to be desired; and from a dread of the ennui which it sees in the wasted power of those the sands of whose life are but half run out, prefers the mystery of death? Or is it that a childs mind instintively seeks the divine-a power to guide as well as control-and that the attempt to crush out the God-given instincts of prayer and worship of a higher power paralyzes even a child's desire to live without God? Children are the hope of any nation. We long for some light to be thrown upon this grim official list, if any can be given, by which one might fathom the depth of anguish and de spair which could so obliterate the hope and joyousness of child-life at the tenly in Chicago. The fact of his death der age of 7 to 15, and within 4 short has only just been made known years 238 children became so palled with life's history as to seek by their own murdered the Countess he was in the | hand the mystery of death. No country can afford to have a page of her history stained by infant suicides.

There are now at Rome many Americans who were about to start for Paris when the demonstration began, and who have consequently postponed their visit.

The New Five Cent Piece. It has been reported that Secretary Folger has ordered that the word"cents should be added to the new five cent pieces, but this report lacks verification. The superintendent of the mint at Philadelphia is reported as saying in this connection the following: "As it has answered the purposes for which it was coined without having on it the word "cents," I see no reason why the new nickel should be changed. If the change is ordered it can be easily done without much expense; but as there are already 2,610,000 of the new coins in use it would make it annoying to many people to have two different coins of the same denomination, and so far as withdrawing them from circulation is concerned, that is out of the question, as there are too many of them."

When the Taxes on Banks will Cease. WASHINGTON, March 9.- The question as to when the tax on capital and deposits of banks, bankers and national banking associations will cease under the operations of the act of March 3 to reduce internal taxation has not yet been decided. No decision will be made on this question until a case arises. It is the opinion of certain officers of the Treasury Department that under section 13, which prescribes that the repeal of existing laws embraced in this act shall not affect any right accrued or accruing, it will probably be held that such taxes must be levied for the period ending March 3, the date of the passage of the act.
