Brought Into Competition with the World, the Best Carries off the Honors.

At the great Centennial Exhibition of 187d, the leading products of all the branches of the World's Industry were assembled at Philadelphia. To carry off a prize in the face of that tremendous competition was a task of no ordinary difficulty. Inventions and preparations for the alteviation of pain and the cure of disease were present in the greatest possible varie'y, representing the skill and he profoundest study of the age, and it may be of vital importance to you, personally, to know that the highest and meda given to ribber Porous plasters, was awarded to the manufac ur ers of BEN-ON'S CAP INE P BOUS PLASTER by the following jury:

Dt. WM. ROTH, Surgeon-General, Prussian Army. J. H. THOMPSON, A. M., M D., Washington,

D. C. C. B. WHITE, M. D., New Orleans. BRNEST FLEISCH, M. D , sustria

The decision was afterwards confirmed by the medical jury at the last Paris Exposition. Knowing the value of such high and unbiased testimony, the medical profession, both in the United States and Europe, quick'y threw aside the old, s'ow-actia plasters they had been using, and ado; ted Benson's in their regular prac ice. That physicians and surgeons of the broades reputation did this, distinctly proves the intr nsic merit of the article.

It is no more than just to add that the average physician of to-day is not dominated by the prejudices which retarded the progress and modified the success of his predecessors of not more than twenty-five years ago. Be accepts hints from all quarters and endorses and adopts demonstrated healing agants wherever he finds them. The right of Benson's capsine Porous Plaster to stand at the head of all external applications whatsoever, for the mitigation or cure of disease, is no longer questioned. Let the purchaser, however, be on his guard against imitation. The genuine has the word CAPCINE cut in the middle. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, New York. marl 4w

FOR THE HAPPINESS OF HOME

From a Clergyman's Home Comes a Message Centaining the Wisdom of Experience.

Home is the centre of the social system. From it proceed the best and purest influences selt in the world, and towar is it gravitate the tenderest hopes of humanity. For it all good men labor while their working days last, and around it their last hought linger lovingly when those days are

Yet homes does not usually approach in practice its own ideals. The mother is overtaxed with househo'd duties and the rearing and training of their children, while the father fights the outside battle to win the wherewitnal to meet expenses. Sooner or later care and toll leave their marks. It is true enough, as Kingsley sings in the "Three Fishers," that

"Menimust work, and women must weep," but too much working and weeping brush all the bloom from life's fruit. Mental anxiety and lack of rest and pleasure induce physical of ease of many kinds; Whence the need of a trustwor hy tonic to g ve help and strength in times of need Among the good women of the land who have found such a sure anchor is Mrs. A. C. George, wife of Rev. A. C. George, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, of Chicago, whose words we have the permission to

I use Parker's Ginger Tenic in my family, and can say that we are highly pleased with it as a tonic. Form my experience of its value, I recommend it as a reliable family medicine.

Please note: First, Farker's Ginger Tonic is not a mere essence of Ginger; second, it contains nothing to create an appetite for intexicating drinks third, it is a splendid health restorative for ell who suffer from disorders of the Liver or Kidneys, or any disease arising from indigestion and impure blood Accept no substitute for it. ed from or on what Vessel He Came--He Denies that he Ran Away from Dublin in Disguise--His Visit Mostly Commercial -- His Views on the Irish

New York, March 13.—Patrick Egan, former treasurer of the Irish Land League, arrived in this city to-day and is now stopping at the Grand Central Hotel, where he was asked by a reporter the name of the vessel on which he arrived and the port from which he sailed? He asked to be excused from answering, as to do so would be to give a cine to private matters which he did a clue to private matters which he did not wish made public.

In a long interview Egan explained the causes of his departure from Ireland, as follows: The chief purpose of my visit is commercial. I have been long wanting to visit Chicago, St Louis, St Paul and other large flour exporting centres in connection with the business of my firm in Dublin. We deal large-and my decision to do so was hastened by the urgent request of Sheridan that I should give evidence in the extradition proceedings now pending against him, and also by strong letters received from Mooney, the president of the American Land League, and other friends, who pressed me to come to America to give the leaders of the movement here such information as is in my power regarding the situation at

AMERICAN FLOUR,

"Then there is no truth in the statements that you fled from Dublin in dis-guise and in order to avoid arrest?"

"No, not a word of truth."
"Would you have any objections to stating generally what your opinion is

THE SITUATION IN IRELAND?" "Well, I have no hesitation in saying that, although at the moment the national cause is surrounded by some dif-ficulties, the prospect is entirely hope-ful. I have always held with John Mitchell that the more England is obliged to coerce us, the more tightly she is obliged to put on the screws, the sooner will we attain our independence. The brutality practiced during the past couple of years by the Liberals. or, as O'Connell truly called them, the base, bloody and brutal Whigs,' has widened the gulf between England and Ireland one hundred fold. I am firmly convinced that the present state of things must result before long in the attainment by the Irish people of some measures of national self-government." "What is your opinion regarding the prosecutions in connection with the alleged in Dublin?" "As a matter of course, the government would be wanting in its duty if it did not do everything possible to break up such conspiracy and convict its members, provided it acted fairly and squarely, but the whole course adopted towards the men now under arrest has been, to my mind, simply atrocious. Every established rule of law as regards identification and in many cases as to reception of evidence has been set aside. A private investigation was held at the Castle, Crown officials coaxed and bullied by turn the witnesses, and I be lieve, in some cases, refreshed them with whiskey. They held before the eyes of people, who never in their lives possessed five pounds, ENORMOUS BRIBES to induce them to swear to what they required. They arrested a number of men whom they believed to belong to the Fenian organization, and marched them in the Castle yard before a window, behind which were a number of wretched people, who were by that means able to arrange their identifications and their stories. The prisoners had been kept in close confinement, without any opportunity of communicating with their families or arranging for the defence. Every means has been used to spread terror. The result is that the defence has been a mere scramble, provided in some cases by private subscriptions, in others by money scraped up by their unfortunate relations. It is currently rumored in Dublin that a certain magistrate who took an active part in the investigations will receive £20,000 and the governorship of a colony if his labors secure ten convic-

"It has been charged that

LAND LEAGUE FUNDS were contributed toward this conspira-

"That is most certainly not so. Not a penny of Land League money was ever supplied for such a purpose. On the contrary money was expended in preventing outrages to the extent of sending men to localities where there might be no danger of attempts against laudlords. By that means very many crimes were prevented. Among those who owe their preservation to the Land League is Lord Ardilaun, formerly Sir Arthur Guinness. But for its protection he would have fallen a victim to his harshly-treated tenants. The game of the Castle officials is to connect the Land League with the commission of outrages and thus to damage the National party. To accomplish this they

STOP AT NO VILLAINY, however black. I am informed that one of the conditions on which they accepted the evidence of the informer Carey was that he should incriminate me, and through me the Land League. He failed to come up to this requirement, and I suppose his bribe will be cut down. I am informed that a leading Castle official said they would spend £50,000 to hang Egan." Mr Egan said it was absolutely certain that Hynes, Miles, Joyce, Walsh, Poff and Barrett were innocent of the crimes for which they were hung. He said one of the Castle officials had acknowledged to him (Egan) that they knew the real perpetrator of the mur-der for which Hynes was hung, but having made a mistake they would not reopen the case.

THE CHARGES AGAINST SHERIDAN, he said, were simply ridiculous. In regard to Lady Florence Dixie's charges Egan said: "Lady Florence Dixie has been led through her craving for notoriety to become the mouthpiece of Richard Pigott, whose own statements would receive no attention. Of course her charges are absolutely false. My accounts have been thoroughly audited by John Dillon, Rev Father Shehy and Matthew Harris. No complaints have ever been made by actual subscribers to the Land League fund. The balance of the fund on hand at the time of the National Conference in Dublin in October l. st was £31,900." "Is that money still on hand?" "It has been increased by some small amounts received afterwards, and out of it there has been sent to the Lord Mayor of Dublin for the Mansien House committee for the relief of evicted enants £4,000. There has been expended by the committe, composed of Parnell John Dillon and Arthur O'Connor, £2,500 for the relief of evicted tenants. Some other small amounts have also been expended. THERE IS NOW ON HAND between £25,000 and £26,000, all of which is invested in American securi-ties in the names of five trustees."

Egan was then asked about the action for breach of promise brought by Miss Hyland against Biggar, but it was a subject on which he did not care to speak at any length. His acquaintance with the Hyland family in Paris was merely casual. They were people of the highest respectability. He had not wished to become a witness in the case, but if he had testified he was certain that Biggar would not have permitted that Biggar would not have permitted his counsel to ask him any questions relating to the Land League fund.

The Tariff Bill Alleged to be Unconstitutional. Dissatisfied iron men of Pittsburg are agitating the question of the constitutionality of the tariff bill recently passed on the ground that while in form it professe to be an amendment to a House bill, it is notorious that to a House bill, it is notorious that nearly everything in it after the enacting clause is the work of the Senate, in which, according to the constitution, a measure of that character cannot properly originate. A bill "to reduce internal revenue taxation" was passed by the House during the first session of the Forty-seventh Congress. On reaching the Senate secural amendments on ing the Senate several amendments, one of them having reference to the reduction of the tariff duty on steel rails, were proposed by the finance committee of that body, and a great many more were offered by Democratic Senators in committee of the whole, until finally it was dropped for that session. In its second session the Senate took up the bill where it had left off, and on December 8, 1882, referred it again to the committee on finance, in order that Mr Morrill might have opportunity to en-graft upon it the tariff commission's tariff rates, as amended by the finance committee. It was reported by Mr Morrill on January 4, 1883, with an amendment which, with its omissions and substitutions, altered most of its internal revenue features and added as entirely new matter the features dealing with the tariff. In a word, nearly all after the enacting clause is new matter originated by the Senate. It will be remembered that the point of unconstitutionality was raised in the House by Mr Hammond, of Georgia, and enforced by Mr Calkins, of Indiana, and a resolution was adopted directing the House conferees to consider the constitutionality of the action of the Senate in originating a revenue bill.

This was passed only for effect, however, to terrorize the Senate conferees into yielding readily to the tariff rates urged by protectionists in the House and when, on the substitution of Mahone and McDill in the Senate conference committee for Beck and Bayard, no opposition was made to higher tariff rates, the constitutional question was dropped. The House passed the Senate bill and thus made it its own measure. But it is said that many able constitutional lawyers, among them Senator Edmunds and Representative Randolph Tucker, deem the bill unconstitutional, and the feeling of the iron trade is thus expressed by an eminent high tariff man: "It seems to me that, after all, the manufacturers have more than a fighting chance to defeat and rullify the calamitous tariff act passed by Congress. The unconstitutionality of the law is so clear and unquestionable that if on its going into operation a case should be made up and hurried into the Supreme Court, that tribunal could not avoid the decision that the act is null and of no effect, because a plain viola tion of the constitution. In point of fact, the Senate originated and the House amended, or rather helped to amend, thus exactly and completely reversing the process required by the constitution. How can such an act be constitutional?"

Senator Tabor and the Drummer. Kansas City Times. They tell a new story now on Senator Tabor, of Colorado. It is related that when Tabor was on the Kansas Pacific train going to Washington to take his seat, he met a Hebrew Drummer who had known him some time by reputation. To pass the time they engaged in a game of seven-up. The play was even until the close of the second game, when the drummer received four kings and an eight spot. A queen was turned up. "Great Godd!" said the drummer.

"Mr Dabor, I visht it vas boker. If va vas blayin' boker I vood bet you all of "How much is your bundle?" asked the noble Colorado Senator.

"Two hundred and fifty dollars," replied the drummer. "Well," replied Tabor, "if you'll give me the queen which is turned, I will go

"Tun," said the drummer, and Tabor took the queen. "Dot ees a shnap," whispered the drummer, showing his hand to a man in the next seat.

"I should smile," answered the man laconically. "Vood you like to bet some more, Meester Dabor?" asked the commercial tourist with an insinuating smile. "Yes," said the noble senator, "I have a fair hand; I will make it $500."

"I haf only fifty," replied the drummer, and he made his bet good for $300. What haf you got, Mr Dabor?" "Four aces," answered Colorado's favorite son, showing the fatal one spots. The drummer was perfectly paralyzed, and was unable to speak, while the noble Senator stowed the pot in his togs. Slowly drawing a cigar from his pocket, Colorado's favorite was about to light up and withdraw, when the drummer recovered his sense of speech, Leaning forward he said, "Eet ish all right, Meester Dabor, you haf won the money square; but great Godd! Mr Dabor, vot had der g-veen to do mit four

THE RAILROAD COMMISSION. Completion of the Tabulation of Rates
--Classification of Roads---What the Commission has Already Done. Columbia Correspondence of the Charleston News and Courier. COLUMBIA, March 13.—The members of the railroad commission have continued their long daily sessions and have at last concluded their compilations of the freight rates charged in the past and at present on the different railroads of the State, and finished all the other preparatory work required for their intelligent action. They are now arranging a standard freight tariff for the railroads of the State, which tariff will form the basis of rates. When it is completed the commission will make such modifications in the rates as will afford "a just and reasonable compensation" to the several roads.

Of course there will be several divisions of railroads classified according to their revenues, necessary expenses, business and contiguous population, and each of these divisions will have a tariff graded to its condition in these respects. The object of this is manifest. Some railroads on account of their embarrassments and poverty would be killed by rates of transportation which would bear lightly on other roads better situated. To arrive at a correct knowledge of the condition of the several roads the commission have forwarded to each road and required that it fill out a blank showing its earnings last month with a comparative statement of its earnings for the corresponding month of last year, and showing also the expenses for each month this and last year compared. This blank has just been issued. The reports for January and February will be required to be made now, and those for each succeeding months by the 15th of the month following. In this way the commission will be continually advised of the condition of the roads. In addition to the work on the freight tariff the commission has considered various written complains made to it by citizens in various parts of the State and has given prompt attention to them. Several cases are in process of settlement. One has been settled. Citizens of Beech Island on the Port Royal and Augusta Railway complained that the proper accommodation of two waiting rooms for passengers had not been made at that station. The commission requested the railroad authorities to construct these rooms and they have been built. The commission is not making any fuss, but it is making progress. Prof. James A. Sewell, A. M , M. D., of Medical Faculty, Laval University, Quebec, states: "I have found Colden's Liquid Beet Tonic particularly useful in advanced stages of Consumption. Weakness, Dyspepsia and all nervous affections. In preparat women it has been retained when every other article of food was rejected. Palatable and easy of digestion." (Take no other)
