BUSINESS NOTICES. WOMAN.

what is the right of the ballot to a woman compared with her privilege of enjoying health and happiness in the charmed circle of her social and domestic relations? Among the many discoveries tending to promote the happiness and advancement of the human race, nothing is so intimately connected with the health and happiness of women—the centre and source of our highest earthly enjoyments—as the discovery of a remedy which meets her peculiar wants, and fits her for the enjoyment of life, and for ministering to the happiness of those with whom she is associated in the tender relations of sister, wife and mother This remedy is found in Dr. J. Bradfield's Female Regulator, "Women's Best Friend" By it woman is emancipated from the ills peculiar to her sex. No Whiskey!

Brown's Iron Bitters is one of the very few tonic medicines that are not composed mostly of alcohol or whiskey, thus becoming a fruitful source of intemperance by promoting a desire for rum.

Brown's Iron Bitters is guaranteed to be a nonintoxicating stimulant, and it will, in nearly every case, take the place of all liquor, and at the same time absolutely kill the desire for whiskey and other intoxicating beverages.

Rev. G. W. RICE, editor of the American Christian Review, says of Brown's Iron Bitters:

> Cin., O., Nov. 16, 1881. Gents:-The foolish wasting of vital force in business, pleasure, and vicious indulgence of our people, makes your preparation a necessity; and if applied, will save hundreds who resort to saloons for temporary recuperation.

Brown's Iron Bitters has been thoroughly tested for dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, weakness, debility, overwork, rheumatism, neuralgia, consumption, liver complaints, kidney troubles, &c., and it never fails to render speedy and permanent relief.

A WILD RUNAWAY.

Sad Accident in the Country-- A Little Boy Dangling from the Traces of a Runaway Mule.

A frightful accident occurred yesterday about noon, to a little twelve year old son of Judge Stansill, who lives four miles from the city, on the Carolina Central Railroad, which will in all probability result in the death of the little victim. Mr. Stansill had been ploughing in his field, and at dinner time took the mule out of the plough and placed his little son on the animal's back to ride to the house. On reaching the railroad track the mule became frightened from some cause and bolted off down the railroad at a terrible rate Of course the little boy was thrown off, but in falling his foot caught in the trace chain and he was dragged about twenty yards along the track, his body being knocked from one side to the other as it struck the crossties. After being jerked along in this perilous condition for a short distance one of the little fellow's legs became caught under the iron rail, and the same jerk that released his foot from the trace chain broke his leg badly just above the ankle. The father, who distractedly witnessed the whole proceeding, ran up and found his little boy, a bloody, bruised and apparently lifeless mass. The boy was carried to the house and a messenger was dispatched to town for Dr Wilder, but five hours elapsed before medical aid could possibly; reach the sufferer. Dr Wilder, assisted by Drs Hunter and Van Bell, examined the wounds and found them to be of a very grave character. The leg was badly fractured, and all over the head were deep and painful cuts. The body was one mass of bruises, Dr Wilder stating that he had never seen a more badly bruised body in all of his experience as a physician. The fractured limb was set and the cuts and bruises dressed, but the doctors fear that their skill will avail little. The boy was still insensible when Dr Wilder left and showed no signs of improvement. It was a terrible experience and the wonder is that the little fellow was not killed outright. What frightened the mule is not known. The first Mr. Stansill knew of it he saw the mule darting down the railroad track, with his little boy dangling from the chain.

The work of a Villain As Captain Jim McCool's Charlotte bound train on the Air Line road was spinning along by Thickety, a station four miles this side of Cowpens, yesterday morning before day break, the engine struck two iron rails that had been placed on the track by some diabolical scoundrel. Engineer Henry Dunlap saw the rails just before the pilot struck them. They were laid on the track with their ends together, in this .shape. <, the point being towards the approaching train. The rails were not fastened down, or a bad wreck would have been the result, as the train was going at a speed of about 30 miles an hour when the rails were struck. As it was, the pilot knocked the rails from the track, with but little damage, except a slight battering to the forepart of the engine. The old iron is being taken up along the Air Line and replaced with steel rails, and the iron rails that were put on the track, were taken from a pile that was lying near by.

A Considerable Fight. Night before last a crowd of twelve negro women got together in a house near the colored cemetery, and a party of men soon joining them, the cotillion opened. Emma Reed was the leader, and somebody stepped on her toes. She flew at Amy Fulenwider, and then the whole crowd got to fighting. One of the male participants had his skull cracked and several others were cut and badly used up. The whole party were before the mayor vesterday morning, but all were released except Emma and Amy. The former was sentenced to thirty days imprisonment in the county jail, and the latter was fined $10. The other ten females were discharged with a warning. The negro man who had his head peeled, belongs to the gravel train on the Richmond & Danville road. Dr McCombs attended his case and patched up his cranium. The house in which the fracas occurred belongs to Mr J K Purefoy, and every window light in it was broken.
