Carolina Notes. ndence of The Observer

Washington, Jan. 7:- Most of the Congressmen were in their seats tolay. From North Carolina Senator Vance and Representatives Cox, Dowd, Green, York and O'Hara were present. The call of States for bills and resolutions proceeded as far as New York in the session of four hours and twenty minutes. Gen. Cox held a good hand in expectation of play, for I saw it. His time will come tomorrow. He tried to introduce a resolution directing the Committee on Accounts to inquire whether the number of employees should be increased or diminished, but was cut off with objections. You see the drift of this. At the last bill-day 1,800 bills and joint resolutions were introduced the call having been ex-One Square - One time, $1.00; each additional nsertion, 56c; two weeks, $5.00; one month. $8.00.

Onetenth of these may secure slight consideration in the Committees or the House. Far more than nine-tenths will be practically buried in the tomb of the Capulets. second month of the Congress, the office-seeker would slightly relax his grip, especially since the places in the House are about all filled. But I found to day a new man from eastern North Carolina trying to lay wires after a car load of disappointed aspirants from all parts of the State had departed reluctantly. Now, over in the Senate, the Olympic game has only fairly opened with the return of the Sergeant-at-Arms. Gentlemen come and gentlemen write. Demo-crats in and Democrats out apply, as well as Republican ex-office-holders from the House side; and so the pretty little scene is enacted in the days of civil service and the age of reform. In the former case (1st Barlett, p. 142) the following facts appear: On the 2d of July, 1846, ered the vastness of its rivers and the the State of New Hampshire was dirichness of its lands, he opened up vided, by an act of her legislature, into four Congressional districts. In July, 1850, by another act of the legislature, the State was re-districted, and the boundaries of the several districts changed. Perkins was chosen at this election. He was admitted by a vote of 98 to 90. The majority report was in his favor. McCrary, in his work on elections, questions the correctness of the decision. He illustrates his decision by supposing that the old district, after the regular election is divided by the legislature into two equal parts, and one-half placed in one new district and the other in another. "If," he says, "under these filled?" He also supposes that the old district is divided into three or

McCrary states that the Jared Perkins case was expressly overruled in the more recent case of Hunt vs. Menard (2d Barlett, p. 477.) In this case the committee said: "The act of the legislature of Louisiana of Aug. 22, 1868, making a new division of the State into five Congressional districts by its terms, purports to repeal all laws and parts of laws in conflict with said act, but is silent on the subject of vacancies that might occur in the districts as then existing." The case of Hunt vs. Menard, was as follows: James Mann was elected to the House of Representatives at the regular November election in 1866. He died before the expiration of his term and an election to fill the vacancy was ordered for November 3, 1868. In the meantime, the legislature had passed an act re-districting the State, by which act the old 2d district was composed entirely of certain designated wards or parts of New Orleans The new 2d district was composed of the new 2d district was composed of the remaining portion of the city, together with the country parishes of Jefferson Terrebonne, St. Charles, St. John the Baptist, St. James, La Fourche and other parishes of the State. The act for re-districting added the above named parishes to the 2d district, and the election for Congress in that year was in this new district. Hunt received 18,341 in the new district, Menard received 8,678. For various irregularities, the parish of Orleans, which constituted the whole of the original 2d district, together with Terrebonne, St. John the tist, and Jenerson, were thrown out. This gave the election to Menard by a majority of 2,275.

A New York artist is preparing pictures of famous North Carolinians and other Southerners for Col. C. C. Jones' "History of the Civil War." AMERICAN GEMS.

Number and Variety and the Places Where They are Found. Mr. Geo. F. Kunz has contributed to "The Mineral Resources of the United States," published by the gov-ernment, an article on American gems and precious stones. He says systematic mining for gems and precious stones is carried on only at Paris, Me., and Stoney Point, N. C., but they are gathered on the surface in many places as sapphires in Montana, moss agate in Colorado and agate at Lake Superior. Some eighty-eight different min-erals occur in the United States which have been used as gems. Twelve of these occur in the United States only. Diamonds are not mined in this country, although they have occasionally found at a number of localities. A large diamond was found at Manchester, opposite Richmond, Va., by a laborer employed in grading one of the streets. It was an octahedron, and weighed, after it was cut, over ten carats. It was worth $5,000 before cutting. The principal localities for sapphires and rubies are in New Mexico, Arizona and Southern Colorado, where they occur in the sand, often on ant-hills. Garnets occur in the same region, about $5,000 worth of cut stones being annually produced. It is estimated that the value of the tourmalines taken from Mt. Mica, Maine, is between $50,000 and $65,000. Tourmaline and hiddenite are being regularly mined at Stony Point, N . some $7,500 worth having already been sold. Rock crystal is gathered and cuti n large quantities, the sales at different localities probably amounting to $40,000 annually. Much of it is cut for jewelry, as "Lake George" or "Cape May" diamonds." The clear crystal for optical purposes is almost entirely Brazilian, as the good material found here rarely reaches the proper channels. Al though agates are abundant here, nearly all the Polish specimens sold in America have been polished in Germany, having originally come from Brazil and Uraguay. Moss in large quantities, although the cutand moonstone from Pennsylvania and Virginia is of good quality, although as yet used but little. The American turquoise is of much inter est, but is not much used by jewelers. It is frequently blue when found, but ting is done abroad. The sunstone soon turns green on exposure. Jet occurs in Colorado and Texas, and will probably be utilized in the arts. The Bowenite of Rhode Island and Williamsite of Pennsylvania are used as a substitute for jade. The American Naturalist points out that in stating that sphene does not occur as a gem in the United States, Mr. Kunz has evidently not been aware of the beautiful transparant yellow crystal, often of large size, which occurs in Delaware county, Pa. A Story of Love, Death and Insanity. A Lowell Mass. dispatch to the New! York Herald states that Arthur egrand Stafford, who claimed to be a natural son of a distinguished En-glish earl, landed in New York from an Inman steamer during the latter part of November last. At the St. Nicholas Hotel he met a sporting Southerner named Schwartz, and they decided to go to Lake Pamadumcook, in Maine, hunting and fishing. On the way they stopped at Ban-gor, Me., where Stafford made the acquaintance of a Miss Grace, of New York. They became sincerely attached to each other, and when Stafford left for the woods they had plighted troth. On the afternoon of Decem-ber 31 Stafford left the camp with his rifle for a stroll. Shortly after a severe snow-storm set in, and Stafford did not return. Schwartz and the guide went to find him, but were then unsuccessful. Early in the morning of New-Year's Day, about three miles from camp, they found Stafford in the firm embrance of a she bear, both frozen stiff. A knife was sticking in the left fore shoulder of the bear. A short distance away a half-grown cub, with a knife wound in its heart, was discovered. The guide said Staf ford had attacked the cub first, and was then set upon by the she bear. Schwartz went to Bangor and told his fate to Miss Grace. The poor girl lost her reason, and will be sent to an insane asylum.

The Greatest Country in the World The President of the London Statistical Society has shown that "in the last 100 years the population of the United States has multiplied itself sixteen times, or, in other words, has doubled itself in each quarter of a century." A corresponding increase for another 100 years will bring our population to 800,000,-000. History has no parallel for such wondeful growth.

New BLOOMFIELD, Miss., Jan. 2, '80. I wish to say to you that I have been suffering for the last five years with a severe itching all over. I have heard of Hop Bitters and have tried it. I have used up four bottles, and it has done me more good than all the doctors and medicines that they could use on or with me. I am old and poor but feel to bless you for such a relief by your medicine and from torment of the doctors. I have had fifteen doctors at me. One gave me seven ounces of solution of arsenic; another took four quarts of blood from me. All they could tell was that it was skin sickness. Now, after these four bottles of your medicine my skin is well, clean and smooth as ever.

Died at her home in Charlotte, on the 30th of Dec. 1883, in her 74th year, Mrs. Martha Bishop Caldwell, wife of D. A. Caldwell, Esq.

Earth contains nothing so lovely or so desirable as a human life per-fected and crowned by the beauty of holiness. Nothing so impresses us with the truth and power of the Christian religion as a long life of devotion, unselfishness, truth and love Society unites in yielding to Mrs. Caldwell this tribute, "She was the est woman we ever knew." Her piety was so unobtrusive and yet so glowing—so gentle, yet so strong-so loving, yet so firm in adherence to duty. She was the sweetest embodiment of the fruits of Christ's spirit, love, joy, peace, gentleness, goodness, Her life seemed to be one long ilustration of the text, "Love is the fulfilling of the law." She could rebuke, but she did it with so much sympathy and affec-tion for the offender, that she never gave offense. Her bright, beautiful dark eyes were always full of love and generally of happiness. She was, for many years, a great sufferer, but her cheerfulness and interest in her friends never seemed to flag. Oh, what a void in her family and in the community, such a death and in the community, such a death creates. The disciples who used to say to each other, when in deep grief, "Let us go and tell Jesus," could, after his ascension tell him their sorrows in prayer. But his followers of the present day, who have never had the blessing of his personal presence know what a privalege it is ence, know what a privelege it is, to enjoy the companionship of those who live in spirit, near to Him. How desolate the feeling when we involuntarily say, "Let us go and tell her" the dear friend whom we have lost, some tidings which would interest her, or give her pleasure. When a rare or beautiful flower is seen, we say, "How she would have enjoyed its novelty and fragrance."

She loved all of God's beautiful creations with a love which age never seemed to diminish.

These things were especially made to brighten the dark path of life, and we lose much when we fail to appre ciate them at their full value. Mrs. Caldwell was a native of Prince Edward county, Va., and her childhood and youth were spent at Hampden Sydney. Her Christian character was rounded into such unusual symmetry, that I think the holiest influences must have surrounded her from her cradle. And in dwellagates, however, are collected here ing on the influences which produce such lovely results, the mind naturservant of God, Rev. Dr. John Blair Smith, whose field of labor embraced her home in that region of country. Mrs. Caldwell's mother was prob ably one of the parishioners of that eloquent saint. Dr. J. W. Alexander, in describing the churches of this portion of Virginia, says their peculiar characteristics were owing to Dr. Smith's ministry. "Plainness of dress, expenditure and manner were considered by him indispensible to the Christian character."

In describing a particular member of Dr. Smith's church, Dr. Alexander says: "Her conscience and intrepidity exceeded all that I have ever read of in books. Her beneficence for sixty years has been, so far as I know, unexampled. She has been a perennial fountain of good Mere sacrifice of money is little; in her case it was sacrifice of health, time, privacy, convenience, ease, and (virtually) of her life. I sincerely think I have never seen the human being who lived so much for

Mrs. Caldwell's entire self abnegation was so like that described of this lady, that we naturally recall the fact that she came from the church formed by Dr. Smith, although he died in 1799, some years before her

Her life has been a great blessing to her large circle of friends and relatives. Let us thank God for it, and press onward in her footsteps.
