LET IT ALONE.

For two years the Congress of the United States has been besieged by the whiskey ring to suspend the collection of the tax on whiskey, some 90,000,000 gallons of which are now in the bonded warehouses. Its agents were in full force during the last session of Congress, but failed, and are there again in the hope of succeeding. They have powerful backing in and out of Congress, and some leading cause with zeal. Notwithstanding the fact that they alleged before Congress that the enforced collection of the tax would ruin their business by compelling them to put upon a market already overstocked their goods, they continued to make and store in the warehouses, increasing by millions of gallons the stock then on hand. This showed that the plea of apprehended ruin from an overstocked market was a mere pretence without any foundation in reality. It is a well known fact that the great bulk of the liquor stock is bought up and held by capitalists for speculative purposes, that they control the market and the prices, that they have it in their power to put their goods on the market or withhold them. These operators are comparatively limited in number, and have a large capital to operate upon. The suspension of the collection of the tax would be a profitable transaction for them, for while they would have the use of the money, the liquor in stock would be appreciating in value, and two years hence, the period of excension which they pray for, would be much more valuable than it is now. There is no reason why favors should be shown to this busi ness which are not shown to other industries; why these taxes should be suspended to suit the convenience of operators while all other taxes are collected. They should be placed exactly upon the same footing with other people, and should be compelled to bear the burdens which they are amply able to bear. To say the least it is special, class legislation of an odious character, and will not meet with the endorsement of honest, fairminded people anywhere. The Democratic party has control now of the House of Representatives, and will be held responsible for its actions, and in view of the results that may follow the measures asked for by the whiskey ring, Congress had better let the whole business alone.

A JUST COMPLAINT.

A memorial has been presented in the United States Senate from soldiers of the Grand Army of the Republic protesting against the absurdities of the examinations through which applicants for positions in the govern ment service have to go, questions being asked which have no possible connection with or bearing upon the duties required of such applicants. The memorial says that children fresh from school stand a much better chance of appointment under these examinations than men of experience and practical knowledgo. There is much truth in the complaint of these memorialists. Questions are asked of applicants for clerkships, &c., which would puzzle able heads, and which would probably start a lively racket if presented at a cabinet meetig and prompt answers asked. The examination ought to be so shaped as to have a bearing upon the duties required of the applicant, and not for the mere fun of examination and asking absurd questions.

There is in Louisville, Ky., a man who has never tasted liquor and yet to all appearance is habitually drunk. He staggers, talks huskily, and has all the appearance of a drunken man. He was arrested not long ago and locked up for five days, when it was discovered that he suffered from a peculiar affliction. There is a man in Guilford county somewhat similarly afficted, though he never touches liquor.

A Frankfort letter to a Cincinnati paper says the lumber interests of Kentucky are showing signs of rapid development. One half of the State is covered by forests of valuable timber, which is beginning to find a market, Within the past eighteen months large mills have been erected at Point Burnside, the crossing of newspapers, which champion their the Cincinnati Southern Railroad and Cumberland river, at Williamsburg, the crossing of the Louisville and Knoxville Railroad and the Cumberland river, at the crossing of the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Licking river, at the crossing of the Ken-tucky Central and the Kentucky river and at the crossing of the Kentucky Union Railroad and the Red river. Along the above named roads, mills, stove factories, handle factories &c. have been erected, and the next few years will show a wonder ful increase in the products of the forests of Kentucky. The large tanneries in Louisville and Cincinnati look to Kentucky for supplies of bark, and in the future the stave factories, the agricultural implements and car factories of Ohio and the North must look to the South for supplies of hard wood timber. From the maps and reports just published as the results of the inquiries into the forest resources of the United States by the experts of the tenth census, it will be seen that all of the available timber of the northern lake region at the present rate of cutting will be gone in ten or twelve years from June, 1880. From whence then is the great Northwest to be supplied? Michigan pine is sold in Louisville, Cincinnati and all the cities in the North and West. The largest area of white oak, yellow poplar, walnut, ashe &c. is in Southeastern Kentucky and Western No.th Carolina. and with transportation secured, Louisville and Cincinnati must, in a few yers,, exchange places with Chi-cago and Cleveland as the great lumber distributing points. In Western North Carolina are extensive forests of white pine, and in the eastern part of that State is the celebrated long leaf pine, and in South Carolina valuable forests of pine and cypress. There yet remain in North Carolina 40,000 square miles of valuable forests. Of the 62 varieties of timber found east of the Rocky mountains, North Carolina has in great abundance 54 varieties of the most valuable. This large area of timber in North Carolina, as large as the State of Ohio, added to the timbers of Eastern Kentucky, Southwest Virginia and East Tennessee, will probably for years furnish profitable transportation to railways penetrating southward from the Ohio river and bring great wealth to the Southern States.

The Manufacturing States.

Atlanta Constitution The second voiume of the census on manufactures is full of interesting figures. It shows among other things that the steam power of the country far outruns its water power. Out of 3,410,837 horse power employed in manufactures, only one third consists of water power, the remainder being steam power. These figures would be still more one-sided if the power of grist and saw mills was excluded. These kinds of mills are chiefly driven by water power, and they are not considered as strictly manufacturing establishments. In manufactures proper steam power is probably used four to one. Wherev er coal can be laid down at three dollars a ton, water power is no lon-ger considered preferable, no matter what the fall or quantity of it may be. Steam is a better servant at all times than water, and is rapidly supplanting it where the fuel supply is not prohibitory.

In the grist and saw mills of Georgia there are 36.655 horse powe, but all the power does not add to the wealth of the State as much as does the horse power used in our manufactures proper. We use in this way 15,395 horse power. These are not immense figures when compared with those of the great manufacturing States of the Northeast, but they show that Georgia leads in manufactures all the other cotton States. Tennessee uses 14,379 horse power, Virginia 13,275, North Carolina 7,962, South Carolina 6,900, Alabama 4,680 Mississippi 2,618 and Florida 301. Pennsylvania is the great manufacturing State of the Union, using 354,774 horse poower, New York chusetts with 279.114, comes closely after; Ohio has 142,853 horse power, and little Connecticut shows up with comes next, using 280,099; Massa-104,552. Connecticut is a marvel of manufacturing industry. There are only $60,000 people in the little State, but she uses more horse power than all the South, excluding Missouri, West Virginia, Maryland and Dele ware. The South has no reason, however, to be discouraged, for she campaign, and the "shot gun policy has only just entered upon an indusin the South." lene explosion and two houses, one on each side, succumbed to the shock while others further away were shattered, riddled and badly injured. In a few moments flames rose from the ruins and the fire alarm was sounded. Such excitement prevailed that the fire gained so much headway as to nearly consume the ruins and a million pounds in 1870 and 1880 burned two houses before it was got were: under control. In the meanwhile the scene was harrowing in the extreme, as it was known that six or more people were killed or were therein imprisoned in the wreck and would perish by fire. Men, women and children wringing their hands and relatives of the inmates of the building destroyed wandered about in hopeless despair at their mability to save the inmates. F. M. Orr and Elmer Orr, his son, Mr. Homer High-land, a daughter of Mrs. Frank Evans and two children, aged two and four months, were known to have been in the building at the time of the explosion. These all perished. The women and children were in the second and third third stories and are supposed to have been killed by the falling walls. Mr. Orr and his son were both spoken to while confined under the debris, but were burned to death. These bodies were all recovered last night and were crushed or charred so as to be hardly recognizable. The only person in the Orr building known to have escaped was Frank Evans, whose wife and children perished. Besides those killed seven persons had broken limbs or were cut and bruised by flyingbricks, &c. entertainment was postponed.

Who is Mrs. Winslow? As this question is frequently asked, we will sim-ply say that she is a lady who for upwards of thirty ply say that she is a lady who for upwards of thirty years has untiringly devoted her time and talents as a female physician and nurse, principally among children, she has especially sudded the constitution and wants of this numerous class, and, as a result of this effort, and practical knowledge, obtained in a lifetime spent as nurse and physician, she has compounded a Soothing syrup, for children teethinfill it operates like magic—giving rest and heath, and is moreover sure to regulate the bowels. In consequence of this article, Mrs. Winslow is becoming world-renowned as a benefactor of her race; children certainly do rise up and bless her; especially is this the case in this city. Vast quantities of the Soothing Syrup are daily sold and used here. We think Mrs. Win slow has immortalized her name by this invaluable article, and we sincerely believe thousands of children have been waved from an early grave by its timely use, and that millions yet unborn will share its benefits, and unite in calling her blessed. No mother has discharged her day to her suffering little one, in our opinies, until she has given it the benefit of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup Try it, mothers—try it now.—Ladles' Visitor, New York City Sold by all druggists.
