VERY GOOD ADVICE.

The Tarboro Southerner advises the gentlemen who control the press to "keep their tempers" and not indulge in too much abuse of our leaders when their views do not coincide. When calm reasoning fails it thinks browbeating will not succeed. This is a very proper view to take, and perhaps some of the gentlemen who have been so rapid to read Randall. Eaton and other Democrats who agree with them on the tariff question out of the party might do well to consider it. But since the Congressional caucus sat down with so little ceremony on the boss excommunicator from the blue grass region there is not quite as much reading out palaver as there was. It was just a little bit premature and exploded with too much explosiveness before the bomb lit. The blue grass gentleman can now probably conteniplate at his leisure the debris of that ultimatum and on second sober thought which may follow reflection come to the rational conclusion that Democrats may differ on such questions as the tariff and yet work together in the cause of reform and good government.

quandary over Mr. O'Hara, colored, member of Congress from this State. He has given dinners to all the Congressmen and has thus far dodged inviting O'Hara. He has been cautioned that if he don't invite O'Hara it will be a fatal mistake, and it is said the President is getting up a sort of a little side dinner arrange ment for his special benefit, but O'Hara is miffed and declares he won't accept an invitation at this

A convention of colored men was held at Frankin, Pa., Thursday, to elect delegates to the colored convention to be held at Pittsburg next month. Resolutions were adopted denouncing the shot gun policy in the South and condemning the Republican party for not suppressing it. They renounced allegiance to the Republican party and declared that henceforth they would act with that political party which would "recognize white hearts under black skins."

Chicago is a live town and Chicago people have a pretty high opinion of their burg. When Henry Irving, the English actor, was there, he alluded to New York as a thriving city. when the Chicagoans remarked that it was considerable of a place, and if it kept on progressing, in course of time it might become the "Chicago of the East.'

Senator Butler's opposition to the educational bill pending in the Senate does not seem to meet with much response in South Carolina. The News and Courier characterizes his 'onslaught" on the bill as an unwelcome surprise, which may possibly work mischief at home as well as at the national capital.

During the first eight months of the present fiscal year the internal revenue receipts were $78,000,320, a decrease of $18,451,260 as compared with the corresponding period of 1883. The aggregate receipts for February 1884, were $2,000,862 less than for February, 1883.

The Tarboro Southerner suggests the advisability of postponing our State nominating convention till after the national Democratic convention. The idea is, we think, a good one. A short and vigorous campaign is every way preferable to a long and tame

A CINCINNATI MOB.

RESULT OF AN INDIGNATION MEETING OVER THE VER-DICT OF A JURY.

A Mob Attacks the Jail to Hang the Murderer .- Military Fire Upon Them, Kill Three and Wound Twenty-Six--The Prisoner is Disguised and Escapes, and Altogether a Wild Time in Porkopolis.

CINCINNATI, O., March 29.-Ten thousand persons gathered at Music Hall last night to take action on the Berner verdict. Strong resolutions were adopted condemning the ver dict and a committee on legislation appointed. Upon adjournment a large crowd moved directly to the al and began an attack upon the door. The riot alarm was sounded, ummoning the entire police force to the jail. When the police arrived the mob refused to move. The police fired in the air without dispersng the mob. At 11:30 the First Ohio Regiment of National Guards entered the jail. The military fired to scare the mob, and four or five persons were shot. Berner was disguised, taken in a buggy to Linwood, where he boarded a train for Lorillard. When the train reached Lorillard a crowd made a rush for Berner, who ran through the car and CINCINNATI, 1:30 A. M.-Fire engines responded to an alarm, but after much difficulty in getting near, found the alarm false. It was occasioned by a bonfire built near the jail. As the building is mainly of stone and iron it would be difficult to fire it from without. It now appears that there was an actual conflict between the mob and the military, which was early called out, though it is still most likely that the wounds of the police and military were inflicted by the fire of the latter. When the inner door between the reception room and the cell rooms was broken down the military fired into the mob, and Lew Kent. one of the mob was shot and killed, This seemed to break the spirit of the mob, though they did not retire hastily. A number of brickbats were thrown by them at the soldiers and police, but generally there was not much bitterness of feeling displayed on either side.

The greatly superior strength of defense of the jail over the unarmed and impromptu mob was so manifest when the former opened fire that it would have been utter folly to make any further effort Some twenty-five President Arthur seems to be in a or thirty men were arrested and are ail which was entered by a portion of the mob was rudely handled. Win dows were broken and furniture smashed. From this a number of men made their way into the lower corridors. After the relinquishment of the main effort to get at the prisoner the mob besieged the outside, throwing stones and brickbats at the

> 1.45 p. m.—News just comes from the jail that the mob is not defeated yet. They have broken into the armory of the veteran regiment and taken the guns. More firing has been done at the jail. The mot is now looking for ammunition with a prospect of success. The first regiment armory has been guarded for three nights in anticipation of this affair, but the veteran regiment of which sheriff Hawkins is Colonel, did not take the same precaution. For the purpose of getting more arms and ammunition the mob is now in the extensive gun store of B. Kittedge the largest in the city. In a few minutes a greatly superior force to the military will be about the jail and serious results must follow. Some are talking about getting the cannon at Music Hall The soldiers in the jail feared being burned out by the mob and fired from the windows to clear the sidewalks The firing was terribly destructive. The mob took all the arms wanted from Kittedge's store including a small cannon. About fifty men, the leader of whom said he was thirsting for revenge, began firing on the jail with the cannot but the firing pro duced no effect. At 3:30 this morning it was thought that the work for the night was over. 3 a. m.-There is still a large crowd around the jail, but are collected there by curiosity. The military is on guard and no further attack is anticipated. As far as known two men and one woman were mortally wounded and twenty-six men seriously or slightly wounded by last night's firing. A man from Virginia was seriously wounded but refused to give his name.

As the meeting at the Music Hall adjourned last night the attention of the people was attracted by the shout of a young man who cried out, "To the jail! Come on! Follow me and hang Berner!" Although there may have been an intention to organize a mob, this was the first time it found vent. The cry was soon taken up and spread rapidly.

It was reported on the streets this morning that Berner had been re captured and hanged at Lorillard. The rumor, however, proved ground ess. Another story is that Berner. in running from the crowd at Loril lard, ran into the Miami river and was drowned. This is not improba ble, as the night was very dark and no trace of him has been found. The whole country is being scoured the excited citizens and if he is found alive he will certainly be lynched. Officer Munn died at 4 o'clock this morning from the effects of his

ASTOR'S WEALTH.

Where the Third Richest Man Keeps

The third richest man in the union is John Jacob Astor, the chief owner and heir of the Astor estate. Unlike many millionaires Aster has both name and riches—a name linked with fabulous wealth for three succeeding generations. The estimated value of the Astor estate is from $90,000 000 to $100,000,000, a veritable mountain of gold. John Jacob and William B. are its sole owners, the former's interest said to be two-thirds.

For nearly a century the title of "being the landlords of New York" has attached itself to them. John Jacob's interest in houses, lots and farms may be computed in the thous-Among the valuable buildings prin-

$1,000,000, while the Astor estate pays taxes on $50,000,000 of real estate situated below Chambers street most of which consists of business houses on Broadway and Wallstreets. There is scarcely a ward, street or avenue in the city in which Mr. Astor does not own real estate, on which the total amount of taxes is over $400,000 annually.

Another point of difference between Mr. Astor and other millionaires is in his investments. In Wall street his name never appears as a speculator and seldom as an investor of seller of stocks, bonds or other similar securi ties Having an income of 10 per cent on the gross amount invested in real estate, he chiefly buys more houses or lands when opportunity for good investments offers. In an inventory made of his various prop erties an item of $5,000,000 in cash appeared as "money in trust companies and banks waiting investment in real estate.

His dress is simple and surprisingly neat. At business or on the street he wears a broadcloth cut away or frock coat, with pants to match, comfortable looking shoes always lightly polished, while in his hand usually swings, as he walks, a large, purple silk umbrella. In summer his costume is chang ed to a black serge coat and pants of some lighter color, while an easy straw hat rests lightly on his ivory white hair.

Mr. Astor, though seldom speaking himself, recently told a friend that lthough he had completed three core years, he felt as well and hearty as he did at forty. Benevolence is his striking characteristic, one probably inherited from the founder of the Astor library. Many of his charities are published though the actual amount of good lone with his ever ready check-book s little known. In nearly all the haritable institutions of the city the name of himself or wife, and often jointly, appear as large givers. During the winter months Mr. Astor is either at his office at No. 21 West Twenty-sixth street, or his home, No. 338 Fifth avenue. The latter is fa miliar to nearly every resident of Fifth avenue, and is conspicuous for nothing but its plainness and the spa cious grounds which surround it. During the illness of his wife, Mr. Astor's time was chiefly devoted to heering her weary hours at the bedide with the same untiring affection e has shown throughout the many years of his married life. His princi pal recreations are visits to his elegant country seat at Rheinechffe-onthe-Hudson, and yatching.
