As our readers are aware, Waynesville, in Haywood county, celebrated the completion of the Western road to that point last Tuesday, an event which the people of that section have hoped for and looked for for years. There was a large gathering of people from the surrounding country, and a number of distinguished gentlemen from other portions of the State. Col. Buford, President of the R. & D. Railroad Company, was also there. There were speeches and responses. Gov. Jarvis responded to the welcoming speech in the course of which,

some pardonable pride:
"I told the people of Waynesville less than three years ago that I should be elected Governor of North Carolina and before my term of office expired I expected to ride into Waynesville on a train of cars. I told you this because I had confidence in the men who were managing the Western North Carelina Railroad. I still maintain that confidence and believe that ere a great while has passed that a gap will be hewn in the red marble for the iron horse and on that iron horse I expect to ride into Murphy. I appreciate the great hon-or that has been done me by the good people of North Carolina, but I wouldn't have you think that I am responsible for the building of the Western North Carolina Railroad. If you want to erect monuments to the return, those who have thus favored you. those who have thus favored you. and Col. Buford and erect your tablets to them whose skill and whose money have completed this work. You have never dreamed of the ad vantage you will derive from railroad facilities. I left your Capitol yesterday at 5 o'clock and was in your town to day at 12. You have never dream ed of the development of resources that will take place in your section. These grand mountains will no longer be unobserved by the world and your healing fountains undrunk by the invalid; your timbers can nov be hewn down and marketed and your water power, sufficient almost to turn the machinery of the world will be utilized-capital and enterprise will seek your borders; every re source that nature can provide invites them here. Gov. Jarvis here magnanimously gives the credit to others for the suc ess in the grand work, but while they are entitled to all the credit that can be given them, it might be said with truth that if Gov. Jarvis had not stood by that grand enterprise and the men who were engaged in it | the joint convention shall determine it is doubtful whether that celebration would have taken place last Tuesday, or within a decade of years to come. He identified himself and his administration with that work, stuck manfully to it through sunshine and ering opposition that at times assumed formidable shape, and faced antagonism in the household of his friends that only a man who was i spired by a determined purpose and believed he was right, would have encountered or faced. The success of this grand work, considering the magnitude of it, the obstacles it had to meet and the limited resources at hand gives testimony of the perser verance, ability and pluck of the men who had in it charge, and the part that Governor Jarvis took in it will form the best chapter in the history of his administration. It links his name with the new era that has dawned upon the "Land of the Skies."

Mr. R. P. Roddy, of Greenville S C., don't propose to give his friends any trouble about his funeral arrangements. He sometime ago purchased a lot in the cemetery, selected his tombstone, had the inscription placed upon it, and gave all the necessary instructions. Last week he closed a contract with an undertaker for shroud, coffin and hearse and now placidly waits the end, with this business disposed of. He is yet apparently in good health.

There is a good deal of talk about backbone in politics. Backbone is good but brains are better. But they ought to go together. The little bull that got on a railroad track to dispute the right of way with a locomotive had lots of backbone.

THE ELECTORAL COUNT. The Senate Bill as Amended by the House Committee. In the House of Representatives Editor and Proprietor. Thursday, Mr. Eaton, from the committee on the Laws relating to the election of President and Vice-Presi dent, reported back the Senate bill on that subject, with an amendment in the nature of a substitute. The following is the text of the substitute: Section 1. That the electors of each State shall meet and give their votes on the second Monday in December next following their appointment at such place in each State as the Legislature of such State shall direct.

Section 2. That it shall be the duty of the executive of each State to cause these lists of the names of the electors of such State, duly ascer-One Square—One time, $1.00; each additional insertion, 50c; two weeks, $5.00; one month, $8.00.

before the day on which they are required by law to meet. Section 3. That Congress shall be session on the second Tuesday in anuary succeeding each meeting of the electors. The Senate and the House of Representatives shall meet n the hall of the House of Represenlatives at the hour of one o'clock in the afternoon on that day in joint convention, and the President of the Senate shall be the presiding officer of said joint convention. Two tel lers shall be previously appointed on the part of the Senate and two on the part of the House of Representatives, to whom shall be handed, as they are opened by the President of the Senate. all the certificates of the electoral votes, which certificates and papers shall be opened, presented and acted upon in the alphabetical order of States, beginning with the State of after reviewing the history of the work thus far completed, he said with Alabama; and said tellers, having then read the same in the presence and hearing of the joint convention, shall make a list of the votes as they appear from said certificates; and the votes having been ascertained and counted by the tellers, the result shall be delivered to the presiding officer of the joint convention, who shall thereupon announce the state of the vote and the names of the persons, if any, elected President and Vice-President of the United States; and said announcement, together with a list of the votes, shall be entered on the journals of the Senate and House of Representatives; and the presiding officer of the joint con vention shall, as soon as may be, notify said persons of their election to said offices of President and Vice-President. And if, on a call of States, votes are determined; but in case objection has been made, as hereinafter provided, then said return shall be aid aside, to be proceeded with in the manner as is hereinafter provided for he case of a double return of votes from a State. All objections to the counting of the vote of any State shall be made in writing and signed by at least three members of the joint convention before the call of said States, said objection to be placed in the hands of the presiding officer of said joint convention, who shall present the same on the call of the State. If more than one return or paper purporting to be a return from a State shall have been received by the President of the Senate, then, and in that case, the presiding officer of the oint convention shall submit to the members thereof to determine as to which is the proper return, and three hours shall be allowed for debate, and the joint convention shall then proceed to vote per capita, com-mencing with the State of Alabama. and these votes shall be counted and added to the list of votes already ascertained, of which a majority of to have been contained in the proper and legal return. Section four of the substitute, after prescribing the manner in which the seats for the members of the joint convention, shall be arranged, Such joint convention shall not be storm, good and evil report, encount-, dissolved until the count of the electoral vote shall be completed and the result declared; and no recess shall be taken for a longer time than one calendar day, and on the reassembling of the joint convention on the Saturday after its first meeting, should the count and declaration of the votes not have been previously made and announced, no further or other recess shall be had until the count of the electoral votes shall be completed and the result declared.

He Wouldn't Stand any More Kissing of Maria. Kentucky State Journal.

A good many male friends of Bill Chinks attended his wedding, which took place in a room of the bride's parents' residence in the country a few evenings ago. After the minister had finished the ceremony, Bill, without moving from his position,

"Now, Mr. Preacher, what's yer charge fur splicin' us ?" "Oh, well, just what you feel like "Wall, I feel like givin' a good deal, fur it was a good job. But here's a quarter, which is all I've

"Very well, sir, I can't take more than is given me."
And then Bill, taking hold of his bride's right hand with his left turned to the crowd and said;

"Now, gentlemen, I don't know but what all of you fellers may hev had a whack at kissin' Mariar afore she wus married, but now this 'ere gal's my property. I've paid fur her and she's mine; and the first feller I ketch or hear of kissin' her again, I'll whale. Them's my terms. Now let the fiddler chune up his vierlin.

THE SPINDLE IN THE SOUTH.

A Contrast Between the Mills of New England and the Sunny South. The Boston Economist draws the following contrast between the cotton milling business in the South and Massachusetts: "The establishment of mills for the manufacture of cotton goods in the Southern States has been attended with such marked success generally as to attract the attention of economists everywhere. One of the largest mills in the South, and perhaps in the country, is the Eagle and Phoenix, of Columbus, Ga. In a year when Massachusetts mills were reduc ing wages and resorting to all trimming experiments to make ends meet. the Eagle and Phœnix has just de clared a dividend of 8 per cent. on all invested capital of $1,250,000. The mill had extraordinary expenses during the year, purchasing additional river property, making new dams, rebuilding flumes, &c. Notwithstanding all this, its net earnings for distribution to stockholders were $93,-000. Since 1867, when the mill company was reorganized, it has paid $1,370,000 cash dividends, and built out of its earnings besides a mill which cost $1,000,000, and it has a large surplus on hand. It is now proposed to build an additional mill at a cost of $1,000,000. The new King Mill in Augusta, which cost $1,000,000, is doing a highly profitable business, and a new mill is under construction in Griffin. One feature in the business in the South is that strikes are unheard of. The operatives in Augusta and Columbus are contented with their lot, investing in small homes and educating their children." Here is another item which may be appropriately added to those given by the Economist:

"The Faluda Cotton Factory of Greenville, S. C., has made a large and valuable contract with a Boston firm for furnishing them with yarns until next January, New England yarns were offered at one-fourth of a cent lower, but the superior quality of the South Carolina yarns commanded the contract."

How He Came to "Swear Off." "No, I won't drink with you to-day boys," said a drummer to several companions, as they settled down in the smoking car and passed the bot-"The fact is boys, I have quit drinking. I have sworn off." He was greeted with shouts of laughter by the jolly crowd around him; they put the bottle under his nose and indulged in many jokes at his expense, but he refused to drink and was rathmatter with you, old boy?" sang out "If you've quit drinking, some thing's up : tell us what it is." "Well boys, I will, though I know you'll laugh at me. But I'll tell you all the same. Ihave been a drinking man all my life, ever since I was married, as you all know I love whiskey—it's as sweet in my mouth as sugar--and God only knows how I'll quit it. For seven years not a day has passed over my head that I didn't have at least one drink. But I am done. Yesterday I was in Chicago. Down on South Clark street a customer of mine keeps a pawn shop in connection with his other business. I called on him, and while I was there a young man of not more than 25 wearing threadbare clothes, and looking as hard as if he hadn't seen a sober day for a month, came in with a little package in his hand. Trem-

the article to the pawnbroker saying, Give me ten cents.' And, boys what do you suppose it was? A pair of baby shoes, little things with the bottoms only a trifle soiled, as if they had been worn only once or twice. 'Where did you get these?' asked the pawnbroker. 'Got'em at home,' reolied the man, who had an intelligent ace and the manner of a gentleman, despite his sad condition. 'My -my wife bought them for our baby. Give me ten cents for 'em. I want a drink.' 'You had better take the shoes back to your wife; the baby will need them,' said the pawnbro-'No s she won't, because-because she's dead. She's lying at home now—died last night.' As he said this the poor fellow broke down, bowed his head on the showcase and cried bitterly like a child. Boys," said the drummer, "you can laugh if you please, but I--I have a baby of my own at home, and I swear I'll
