WHAT TOBACCO WILL DO ITS POWER TO HEAL WHEN AP-PLIED AS A POULTICE.

Gen, Clingman Gives Some Interesting Information as to the Carative Properites of Tobacco and Cites Some Remarkable Cases.

Believing that such knowledge of the advantages of wet tobacco as a poultice, as I have acquired, if it should become general, will be instrumental in saving annually many thousands of lives in the United States, I have decided that it is my duty to make a statement on the sub-

To do this properly will require some space, as mere condensed propositions or statements will not usually make as much impression or be as well remembered as things set forth in the form of a narrative of facts. I ought at the outset to state that I never chewed, smoked, or snuffed tobocco; I believe, however, that it on several occasions has saved my life, and in other respects been of ssential service to me and many of my friends. The first instance I can remember of its usage as a remedy for inflammations, was seeing Tom Kelly, when was a boy, spurt its juice from his mouth into the eye of his horse very red from inflammation. He stated that he was curing it in that way. I also early in life knew of its being applied to those who had been stung by wasps, bees, etc. When in college a student told me that he had cured a chronic inflammation by putting a wet tobacco leaf on the part.

In March, 1847, on the day after I had announced myself as a candidate for Congress, while carelessly riding a wild horse, the animal sprang against the fence and knocked me off, so that I lit on the ground with so much violence as to sprain my ankle very severely. As I had some miles to ride into Henderson, N. C. before any remedy could be applied, the ankle had swollen to double its size and very painful. Dr. Whitehead directed a poultice to be applied. After enduring severe pain for some hours, I thought of trying tobacco. I sent for some leaves, had them wet and wrapped around the ankle, and placed the poultice over them to keep them moist. Within an hour the pain ceased, and I slept through the night. The next morning on examining the ankle, instead of its being swollen it appeared rather less than its natural size: the skin had a wrinkled appearance and was very white. The membrane between the bones which had received the shock, how ever, was very tender, so that I was obliged to use crutches. During my canvass, which lasted four months, I twice while travelling had it hurt by accidents, and each time subdued falling of a galloping horse. I was bacco with the like effect. My next application of it was to a severe gunshot wound, on the 19th of August, 1864, near Petersburg, Va. A bullet ranged through my leg, from near the arkle, so as to come out on the opposite side, just below the knee, cutting the muscles and nerves and making a long and very painful wound. I lost so much blood that I was carried from the field in an insensible condition. I was so feeble that the surgeons expressed great apprehension that I might not be able to survive the fever which they expected would come on in a few days. About that time several of my friends had died of the secondary fever which followed their began to swell and throb with heat.

The surgeons said I must keep it wrapped in wet cloths. I told them that I would keep down the inflammation by an application of tobacco. They at once asserted that such an application would be ruinous. After they left I sent my servant for some tobacco, enveloped the leg in it, and kept it wet with the cloths over it. The pain in an hour or two diminished, and the heat and throbbing ceased and I rested more quietly than I had been doing. On the next day, when the surgeons called to see me, on looking at the wound they expressed much surprise and said, "You may keep on the tobacco." I remember that Gen. Robert E. Lee called to see me that day, and after looking at me said, "Oh, General, you are not going to die. your eye is too bright." The tobacco being a powerful nerve tonic, it always greatly excites my intellectual faculties.

Although several months passed before I could walk without crutches. yet, I had no fever and little pain from the inflammation. I am satisfied that if tobacco were properly applied, that no external would ever become sufficiently in-

I soon reached my hotel, and en getting into it sent one ser-vant for a piece of tobacco and another for two physicians with whom I was acquainted. The tobacco came first, and just as I had placed it on and secured it with proper bandages, the doctors came in. I told them what had happened and that I had just put on the tobacco. They said tobacco would be ruinous. As soon as I got off the bandage and they saw the eye, their countenances seemed to fall; (for I could see them with my left eye, of course.) They said "it will be very difficult to save that eye." I replied that if it could be saved the tobacco poultice would do it. They reiterated their objections: but I told them I should try it, and asked them to come back in the morning. The night was one of the most painful of my life; but as it progressed the pain seemed to slightly diminish; yet even in the morning I still suffered. About ten o'clock one of the physicians called to see me, and I took on the bandage. As soon as I did so, I knew the eye was better, for I could see the outlines of the open window before me. The doctor immediately said, "I was never more astonished in my life, for your eye instead of being swollen and black, as I expected to see it, is shrunk and less than the other eye,

The Charlotte Observer. | physician in North Carolina, to whom I had explained the uses of tobacco, told me that some years ago, when sore throats were an epidemic in his neighborhood, he had used tobacco in more than a dozen cases, always > had several injuries of the head, which were so serious that an apprehension was felt for some days that I might not be able to recover. After I had been for perhaps a week under the treatment of Dr. E. Burke Haywood, and was improving, I concluded to make a little experiment on one of the swollen wounds. Being near the outer corner of the eye, its swollen condition interfered with my sight, and as I had learned from Chief Justice Pearson that am application of spirits of turpentine would soothe a boil, I touched that protuberance with it. In the mornng I found that instead of removing the swelling, it had increased consid-(rably. On Dr. Haywood's arrival, he expressed surprise, and on being told what I had done, he said, "You have given yourself erysipelas in that wound, and if it gets up into the large one above, it will be very diffi-cult to save your life." His countenance exhibited much anxiety and apprehension. I replied, "Doctor, I will see that it does not get up into that wound; come back and see me in four hours." I sent for tobacco. covered the upper wound with it, and the forehead and temple between

ance, was somewhat swollen, and discharged less than blisters usually did. About 5 o'clock, I went down to Willard's Hotel for dinner, and on being met by a friend to whom I spoke, he seemed surprised, and said, "I did not know you till you spoke; what is the matter with you?" I statthe pain and swelling by the use of tobacco. He, with a look of astonishment, said to me, "I did not know you till you spoke: what is the matter with you?" I answered that I had had a blister on my forehead. "Yes," he said, and it has given you erysipealas." I was at once alarmed; and on going to a locking-glass, was amazed at my appearance. My face looked like a large pumpkin. After hearing | may be well to refer to. my statement as to its advantages. he said, "I will try it," and stepped into a store, procured a piece of tobacco, and went home. On the next day, I met him on the street, and his eyes were well and clear. He told me that he had applied it as I directed, and kept it on during the night, and in the morning found his eyes entirely relieved. He has since told me that he had recommended it to several persons for sores, and that they had all been relieved. At a point in North Carolina, where red sore eyes were an epidemic, I recommend it to two young ladies suffering from it, who slept with tobacco on their eyes, and in the morning found them well. In several other cases where I knew it to be tried for inflammations of the eye, it has been used invariably with success. About a dozen years ago, being in this city in the month of March, my throat became extremely sore. Not apprehending danger, I continued to that and the lower wound, keeping move about in the raw weather, my throat getting worse all the while. Being anxious to go home about sunset, I went in an omnibus to the boat that went down the river to Acquia Creek. After I had gotton on board, found that my throat was alarmngly worse. I was, from the swelling, so bad that I could not swallow, and the air-passage was so closed that found it difficult for me to breathe. Remembering how suddenly the Hon. Preston S. Brooks had been choked to death, I regretted much that I had attempted to travel then. As, however, the boat was starting, I could not get eff in time to return to the city. I thought tobacco would be my only chance for safety; and after a search, I obtained some from one of the colored hands on the boat, got it on my throat, and by keeping a wet towel on it for the three hours that were spent on the boat, by the time I reached Acquia Creek the swelling was subdued, and I travelled home on the railroad without inconvenience. Some years since I called at the Arlington Hotel to see a couple of ladies from New York. One of them came down and stated that her friend had been suffering for several days with a very sore throat, and was undergoing medical treatment from a prominent physician of the city. I walked immediately to the gave it to her, and explained how it called, and she informed me that the tobacco had been applied as I directed, and that her friend was so well. that for the first time in many days she had come down to the breakfast table. Some years after this occurrence, I saw the lady who had been ill, and she stated that after the tobacco was applied her throat became easy, she slept well, and in the morning found the soreness and swelling entirely gone. wet to his side and back, and in a half hour the pain ceased, his system was relaxed, and he immediately recovered. There is another class of cases that ought to be referred to; but as my paper is getting rather too long, will reserve them to a future occasion. I must, however, consider for a moment such objections as have been presented to me. A lady said she put tobacco on her child's sore throat. that it went to sleep, but when it woke in the morning, though its throat was well, it was very nauseated. Had this tobacco, however been removed after being on two or three hours, there would not have been nausea. A physician told me that he had seen a child whose stomach and sides had been covered with tobacco, and it was suffering greatly from nausea. This, too, was an instance of an overdose of the remedy. The tobacco, however, can easily be removed when symptoms of nausea are perceived, but when a doctor has-got an overdose into the stomach, it cannot read-the kind of tobacco to be used. Formerly, because the manufactured tobacco was more readily found, I generally used that, as after a piece had been kept in water for twenty or thirty minutes, it would become soft enough to allow the leaves to be separated. About a year ago, however, I made a discovery which it is important should be known, not only ers. I obtained at a cigar store a piece of manufactured tobacco, but after applying it I found that instead of being a sedative, the effect was irritating, even after it had been kept on the skin for several hours. I membering what I had told him as to was satisfied that the tobacco, which putting my face from time to time in it for the greater part of the day. In the year 1867, in the City of New York, as I was riding in an omnibus, while looking out of an open window I received a heavy blow on my right eye from the whip of the driver, who had aimed the blow at the head of a horse which seemed about to interfere with him. He missed the horse's head and the full force of the end of the whip fell directly on the centre of my open eye. The pain was excessive, and the sight was entirely taken away—absolute blackness seemed before it. Passengers in the stage said to me, "You

Though I was confined for some weeks to my room, I had no My next attack of erysipelas was a much more formidable one. In the month of May, 1880, I tried to remove a frontal neuralgia, of which I will perhaps speak hereafter. Having suffered from it for a long time, and tried many remedies with no advantage, I concluded to try an old fash ioned blister of flies. I covered my forehead and temples with it, and after it had been on a few hours. feeling lonesome in my room, I put on a soft hat and walked about the

Realizing the danger, I secured a piece of tobacco at the cigar stand, and went into Milburn's drug store to get some cloth for bandages. On calling for it the proprietor said with astonishment, "What is the matter? I did not know you till you spoke." I stated it to him, and he answered, "You had better see a doctor; you don't know how you look." After reaching my room, as soon as I could wet the tobacco, I placed it over my forehead, temples, eyes, cheeks and nose, barely leaving breathing space for the nostrils. Covering it, as usual, with four thicknesses of cotton cloth. wrapping a bandage over all, I would put my face into a bowl of water every ten or fifteen minutes, so as to keep bandage thoroughly wet. Several gentle men who had seen me the evening before, came in and expressed surprise at my rapid recovery. I remember that Dr. Hambleton said. Tobacco, like morphine, greatly aggravated by the treatment | keeps me awake, though they both diminish pain. If the tobacco be applied only to the affected parts, no nausea will be felt until the inflammation has been subdued. When a light nausea begins to be perceived. it may be assumed that the inflammation has been subdued; and in a few minutes after the bandage has been removed, the nausea ceases to be felt. Generally after about two hours application, the sedative effect is attained; but in obstinate cases a much longer time may be required.
