LOCAL RIPPLES. -The fare to Davidson College and eturn on the special train to morrow will be only $1.00. -We regret to learn that Dr. Witherspoon is suffering from a stroke of paralysis in his left arm and side.

He received the stroke last Sunday. -The fleecy staple continues to come to the city. Yesterday as many as twenty bales were sold here, and such is not the case with every dull summer day.

That fine body of blowers, the Steele Creek band, will furnish music at the commencement of Huntersville High School next month.

-The special train for Davidson College will leave the Trade street depot at 7:40 o'clock tomorrow morning. Returning it will leave Davidson at 11 p. m.

-THE OBSERVER tenders thanks to Scoville & Co., for an invitation to attend the opening ball at the Seaside Park, Wrightsville, on Friday evening, 20th. -Doc Thompson, the man who shot

Mr. Proctor, of Denver, sometime since, and who escaped from the jail at Lincolnton last week, is still at large. A reward of $25 is offered for his capture, by the sheriff of Lincoln. - Delegates for Mecklenburg county to the State convention, to assemble in Raleigh June 25th, will be furnished with a certificate of appointment by applying to the secretary at The Observer office.

— A large delegation of firemen headed by ex-chief Charles Harrison, left on the 1 p. m. train yesterday for Columbia. The Independents will followed last night and will be on hand to engage in the contests in Columbia to-day.

-Mr. W. D. Alexander, of Crab Orchard township, brought us a bunch of wheat yesterday that gets away with any heretofore sent in. If the crops this summer come up to the samples, what a magnificent wheat harvest the farmers will have.

-The hall of the Independent Hook and Ladder Company has just been adorned with a strikingly life-like portrait of the late chief and president, Jas. H. Orr. The picture is the work of Mr. J. H. Van Ness, and is an excellent likeness of the firemens' deceased friend.

The Park Track.

The managers of the Carolina Park have now pe.fected the track and have now perfected the track and have put it in first class order for driving and racing purposes. A schedule of prices has been arranged for the track privilege for all who want to drive on it. Season tickets, good from now until January 1st 1885, have been issued and are now on sale at the Central Hotel and Bu ford House. The ticket allows the holder full privilege of the track at all times, except upon occasions of fairs, races, etc. To those not holding these tickets, a fee of twenty-five cents will be charged for admittance to the track to the track.

Points for the Sanitary Officer. In the excavation where the old Cruse house lately stood, near the Second Presbyterian church, there has accumulated a large pool of water, which has become stagnant, green scummed and offensive. The immediate attention of the sanitary policeman is directed to the spot. Complaints are also made of the drain along the east side of Church street, between Fourth and First. The residents of that locality say that the stench arising therefrom is almost unbearable and is a menacing danger to the health of the entire neighberhood. The sanitary policeman

VENNOR'S SUCCESSOR

A Perilous but Successful Trip to the Habitation of Professor Baker and a Small Talk with the Prophet --- Good Weather Promised Until the 26th. Yesterday was the first really pleasant day we have had since Jim Blaine was nominated at Chicago, and knowing the anxiety of our people to learn something definite about the probable length of time that the fair weather is to last, an OBSERVER representative procured a heavy, iron bound buggy, to which was hitched a strong draught horse, and in company with his courageous friend of the Central, resolutely started upon a voyage to the home of Prof. J. C. Baker, the weather prophet, to whose door the blame for all the past rains has been laid, to get some satisfaction out of him in regard to the weather. The Professor's domicile is planted at the head of a long red clay hill two miles and four rods from Independence square, on the road leading by the Carolina park. Had the reader been with us as we were performing the journey over the red clay hill in question, the precaution about buggy and horse would have been understood. It was not unlike crossing a piece of new ground that had just been ploughed up into huge billows by some supernatural force. At one time we could see nothing but the horse's tail in front of us, the other part of the animal being hung on the opposite side of the ridge over which he was heroically endeavoring to pull the buggy. Again horse and buggy would dive down out of sight in some vawning abyss, only to come to light again with two wheels on one side trying to get on top of a five footembankment, and the other two wheels on the other side striving equally as hard to get down into a rut that resembled a chasm made by a well organized earthquake. In the course of time we drew up at the professor's house with necks still intact and with sufficient strength left to utter the usual nail. In response the professor strapped on his wooden leg and appeared at his door, and at once proceeded to make himself pleasant. One part of the professor's house is divided off into a store, through the door of which a pile of flour sacks, agricultural implements and other useful articles could be seen, while the little front window was ornamented with several jars of candy. The professor turned up an empty tobacco box by the roadside, and seating himself, announced his readiness to be inter indicated that he weighed his words well and knew what he was talking The professor has already made out his calculations for the remainder of this year. Each November he makes out his predictions for the twelve months to come and never changes them. His mercantile business occupies his time so thoroughly that he has but little chance for weather work, and what he has done in this line heretofore has been done at nights. Since the death of Vennor he is seriously cogitating upon the feasi-bility of going into the weather business as a money making enterprise His mode of calculating is a secret which is apt to die with him, as he says he has flatly refused large sums of money offered him to divulge his secret. The professor talked long and knowingly upon the weather, but firmly refused the offer of a brownstone front and a carriage with four-in-hand to divulge his secret. He seems duly impressed with his responsibilities as keeper of the weather, and has already established a branch office in Missouri. Whether did remains to be seen. The Louisiana Drawing.

The monthly drawing of the Louisiana State Lottery took place yes-terday and there will be lots of tickets anxiously scanned in Charlotte today. Following is the result of the drawing: No. 86440 drew the capital prize of $150,000; No. 53770 drew $50,000; No. 11181 drew $20,000; No. 80681 drew $10,000; No. 21308 drew $10,000; Nos 98791, 9833, 38753, 76132, drew $5,000; Nos 54032 and 76496 drew Faise Report from Columbia.

Some excitement was created in the city yesterday over the receipt of a telegram from Columbia stating that Cal. Brown, the colored man who went there in charge of the Pioneer reel, had been shot and killed. The telegram was sent to Brown's wife and went so far as to say that ne had seven bullets in his body. Further particulars were asked for, when an answer was received stating that there was no foundation for the report and that Brown was alive and unhurt. It seems to have been a cruel hoax perpetrated upon Brown's wife by some thoughtless individual. The darkies about town were terribly exercised over the news and many of them still refuse to believe anything but that Brown has been killed.

Mrs. Governor Thos. J. Jarvis and Mrs. Ed. Lee, of Raleigh, spent yes-terday at the Buford House, in this city, and received calls from many friends. They were on their way to Cleaveland Springs to spend the sea-

The Corn Sold.

In front of THE OBSERVER office yesterday afternoon four bags of corn sent from Fort Scott, Kansas, were sold for the benefit of the Soldiers' Home in Richmond. Mr. Jos. A. McLure was the auctioneer. and the four bags brought a total of bushels of corn and were bought in $88.75. Each bag contained two as follows: One bag, $22.50, by Chas. R. Jones; one bag, $22.50, by J. W. Miller; one bag, $22, by W. W. Ward; one bag, $21.75, by Chas. R. Jones. Deducting the freight bill, a balance of $86.75 is left for the Soldiers' Home from the sale of four bags of corn. The money has been forwarded to Richmond by Mr. Ward.

iron Bridges for the Carolina Central. 3

An elegant new iron bridge is being built over Buffalo, on the Shelby Division of the Carolina Central Railroad, by the Phœnix Bridge Company. This is one of the highest bridges in this country," and as the train rolls over it, the visitor can look down on the roof of Tiddy's paper mill, far below the bridge. wood and iron bridge was formerly located at this place, but while it was considered perfectly safe, the Carolina Central's management decided to replace it with a bridge entirely of iron and of the best make known. All the wooden bridges and trestles on this road are to be replaced .with ron bridges as fast as the latter can be constructed.

Drama by a Charlotte Boy. Editor of THE OBSERVER.

I have read with unusual interest a drama entitled, "Burr and Hamilton, and written by Mr. Jerome Dowd, a Charlotte boy, now residing in New York. Burr and Hamilton will always be central figures in American political and legal history, and whatever concerns them possesses interest to almost every class of readers. They were rivals in almost everythingnot only for political and military power and renown, but even for the affections of the same lady. As their rivalry was intense, so was their hatred bitter. I have always felt that Burr has not received justice from the hands of his countrymen. Feared and distrusted by the Federalists, his contest with Jefferson alienated from him the great body of the Republi caus, and intensified the hatred of the successful candidate for the Presidency, so he was crushed between the upper and nether millstones. His viewed. The conversation for a time trial at Richmond was a farce, and was merely commonplace, but after his name and fame was blackened to gratify the hatred of the sage of awhile the professor suddenly re marked: "Well, the rain is over for the present, and we will have fair It is now all passed and gone, but weather from now until about the this drama recalls those stirring 26th." The professor was intently events and revives interest in the watching the skies as he spoke, and action. The plot is well conceived made his remarks in such a tone as and skilfully executed. The author draws a vivid picture of the celebrated duel and the exciting events which led to it. It is certainly a re markable production for a youth of seventeen years, and creditable that he should be occupying his hours of recreation in studying the history and biography of the country, and formulating with his pen this memorable and tragic occurrence, rather than in idleness and at places of amusement and dissipation. The young author has very accurate conceptions of the drama, writes in limpid and clear style, and by introducing fictitious personages, mail and female, reproduces these historic events in a very pleasing and readible

Assurance From the Colored People. Editor of THE OBSERVER.

I notice in your Sunday's issue a card signed W, in reference to the negro hospital, which is much needed in our city. In reply to this noble woman's suggestion, I will assure her that we, the colored people, will or not he serves us as well as Vennor do all that is in our power towards the building and completion of the charitable work. Thanking this Christian hearted lady for the sym-pathetic feeling she has for the sick and suffering negroes; her reward shall not be on earth, nor of earth, but from above. Charlotte, N. C.
