FORCING THE TARIFF ISSUE.

Mr. B. F. Jones, the new chairman of the Republican National Executive Committee, 'n a conversation on the past campaigns, to represent it as a free trade party, opposed to the en-couragement of home industries and consequently as antagonistic to the interests of American enterprise and American labor. The fact that there is a difference of sentiment among Democrats upon this question, a difference which has grown perceptibly within the past ten years, as the industries of the country have been developed and the field of menufac- grist mill, so arranged that both stones revolve at the same time, going turing industries extended, gives them strengthened hope that they will find available political capital in upper stone, that all dust is farned this, and they will doubtless work it from the wheat or coin before it is this, and they will doubtless work it for all it is worth. In the campaign they propose to wage in the Southern States, which they have selected as objective points of attack, this will be the leading card they will play, and it is more than likely now that and it is more than likely now that manipulators in the interest of Blaine and Logan are actively at work in gathering imformation as to the sit-uation in these States and devising little later, and the last, which is a

Tennessee is one of the States where they hope to make a successful fight and to make it upon that issue. There the Democrats got into a tangle over the tariff question in their State convention, the majority of the delegat s leaning towards the free trade side. This led to much dissatisfac tion and to the withdrawal of som of the delegates from the convention They have in that State an organiza-tion known as the Kuights of Labor. How strong it is in the State we do not know, but in Chattanooga they number 265, over two thirds of whom are Democrats. At their last regular monthly meeting subsequent to the m sting of the convention they passed a series of resolutions condemning the action of the convention on the tariff question, pronouncing them selves as unequivocally in favor of a support any man for office not in accord with these views, and strongly endorsing the action of the protection Democrats who withdrew from the convention. We refer to this not to endorse that action, but to show how the pretection idea has taken root among the working men, the necessity of handling it carefully and to show also that the Blaine managers have some reason for play. ing the tariff as one of their big cards. They must not be permitted to make the issue and have it all their

the election of B. F. Jones, of Pittsburg, Pa., as chairman of the Repub-lican National Executive Committee. He was scarcely known outside of his own State, and had figured very little in Natione politics. But it turns out that B. F. Jones is a large iron manufacturer, that he is worth important consideration in the coming campaign, this will explain his election. They propose to make him pay for the honor.

In a letter to an acquaintance Alabama, Gov. Cleveland states he is now occupying a position in his own State high enough for his ambition; that he is "seeking no other office, and that he thinks above all things that the people should have their way in the matter of the presidency. Republicans about here are well pleased with the result of the work Committee, in a conversation on the programme to be followed by the Blaine managers in the coming campaign, said that the tariff would be the main issue. Practically there are but two issues left to the Republican party, one the solutional issue, which is properly no issue at all, the other the tariff, which will be their main reliance.

Their effort will be to place the Democratic party in a false attitude on this question as they have done in past campaigns, to represent it as a of the convention at Raleigh. donated will be marked with the name of the giver, and acknowledge-ment of any and all contributions, may ethrough the local papers.
