1. On June 29, 1869, Mr. Blaine, then Speaker of the House of Rep-resentatives, wrote to Mr. W. Fisher, thanking him for having admitted him (Speaker Blaine) to a participa-tion in "the new railroad enterprise," the Little Rock road, and expressin a strong desire to have Mr. Caldwell also "dispose of a share of his inter-est" to him (Speaker Blaine), adding that he felt he "would not prove a dead-head in the enterprise," and "saw various channels in which he knew he could make himself useful." Mr. Caldwell hesitated to comply with Speaker Blaine's wish. There-upon Mr. Blaine, three months after-that he saw various channels in which he knew he could make himself use-it would have been the most natural thing for him to say so? But he did not say so. He did say something else. I expressed the opinion that speaker Blaine meant to point to the exercise of his official power as the channel of his usefulness. I think this, for the simple reason that this

16 The owners of The Crowder's Mountain Iron Wooks beg to call the attention of capitalists from manificaturers, stock and dairy men, and those who wish to settle colonies, to their property, which offers inducements to the classes above named.

The property consists of Six Thousand Three Hundred Acres of land, located in the countles of fraction and cleaveland, in the State of North Caronna, at King's Mountain Depot, on the Atlanta and Charlotte Air Line raffway, now owned by the Kchmond and Danville railroad company. The property has been used for fifty years past as an iron property, and has been worked at various points, but chiefly at the site of the celebrated Yellow Ridge Ore Bank, which has always yielded an ore noted for its richness in metallic from, and its softness and toughness. This vein of ore, which extends for two miles in length, has been worked to the depth of 147 feet, showing at that depth a vein of ore about 40 feet while, and analyzing as high as 66 per cent. of metallic iron. This vein has not been worked, and within the past two pears very large deposits of iron ore have been discovered at other points. Within the past eighteen months, however, the owners have discovered deposits of ore in Crowder's Mountain, (five veins of Iron ore, are exposed), which were unknown before, and which will furnish an amount of good ore, easily worked and above water, that must make it one of the most desirable iron properties to be found. They have discovered on the pinnacle of this mountain, which is 1000 feet above the level land, 2200 feet above the sea level, a vein of ore eight feet wide, which crops out at various points from the top to the bottom of the mountain, showing in one piace about 20 feet of solid vein. This vein can be traced over the top of the mountain, showing in one piace about mountain is simply inexhaustible and or good quality.

Besides Crowder's Mountain the owners possess King's Mountain, for about seven miles, whose pinnacle is the highest point of land from Richmond to Atlanta, except Mt. Airy, in Georgia, and they have reason to believe this mountain is full of ore also. In addition to from ore the property has manganese, limestone clay for making fire-proof brick, gold and other minerals. Very pure and excellent parytese has just been found in large quantity.

manganese, limestone clay for making fire-proof brick, gold and other minerals. Very pure and excellent harytese has just been found in large quantity.

As a stock and datry farm it offers fine opportualties to those who may wish to engage in such bushiess. It has from three to four thousand acres of level or only slightly rolling land, which produces chass, grain and all kinds of farming produces cheely, and it is well supplied with water by unfalling springs and branches

The other 4,000 acres embraced in the mountain sides are productive of fine grass and herdage, and afford excellent natural pasturage for sheep and cattle, The climate is so mild that but little shelter for stock is needed in the coldest winters. The whole six thousand acres are how covered with a fine growth of timber of all kinds, such as pine, hickory oak, walnut, cedar, etc. The land is well suited to farming purposes, by those who wish to colonize. Cotton, corn, peas, oats, clover and grass, and fruits of all kinds are produced beautifully, and it is specially suited to grapes and small fruits. It could be divided into small farms that would give to each farm variety of soil, and level and hilly and. It is situated in the Piedmont belt, which is noted for the salubrity of its climate, and the healthiness of its atmosphere. It is a region free from mataria and other unhealthy influences. It is located with great convenience to ralifond facilities, being situated at from two to four miles from king's Mountain Station, on a railway that has the most extensive connections with all parts of the country, and which offers great inducements to those who are trying to develop the country along its lines. The owners will sell this property to suit purchasers, as follows: The whole tract, including mineral interests, for Sixty three Thousand Dollars, or will make favorable terms, reserving the mineral interest, or will sell one half the mineral interest, or will sell one half the mineral interest, or will make a condition of it. # Fisher two letters in which he related quite circumstantially how he (Speaker Blaine) had, without knowing it, and in a correct way, done the Little Rock road and Mr. Caldwell a great favor by an exercise of his power as Speaker. At the same time he reiterated his "anxious" request for the share of Mr. Caldwell's interest in the enterprise spoken of three months before, suggesting to Mr. Fisher to tell Mr. Caldwell about the "favor." The question is what Speaker Blaine meant when he said that he would not be a dead-head in the enterprise, and SILK HATS, ful; and also what the object was of the letters of October 4th? You say Speaker Blaine meant simply that he was acquainted with many capital-ists, and had peculiar facilities for placing bonds. Does it not occur to you that if Mr Blaine had meant this it would have been the most, natural say: "My old friend, I have worked hard to get you your pension, and I did get it for you. It has given me great pleasure." This is virtuous and pleasant. But how would it be if you said: "My old friend, I got your pension for you, and now I want 20 per cent. of it?" When the Speaker says to a railroad man: "I rendered you and your road in a perfectly proper way a great favor, and I am glad I did it." That is one thing. But when the Speaker says to a railroad man: "I did you such and such a service by the exercise of my power, and now I want you to give me a valuable interest in your enterprise; know I am not going to be a dead head in it, and I see various channels in which I can be useful"—is not that quite another thing? But that is just what Mr. Blaine did. 3. You say it is not true that when Mr. Blaine read the Mulligan letters in the House, the order in which he read them tended to create the least difficulty in understanding them. What is the fact ? He read those of October 4th first, and then the one of June 20th, which contained the "dead head" and the "channels of usefulness," thus just reversing the order of time and connection. Did he put the cart before the horse to make the any sense to Congress," was anything else than a deliberate, unblushing untruth, known by him to be such? You also deny that when Mr. Blaine, on the same solemn occasion, declared he had never recovered any declared he had never received any Fort Smith bonds, "except at precisely the same rate that others paid," he said what was not true. Again, what are the facts? Mr. Blaine's words before the . House of Representatives were these: "In common with hundreds of other people in New England To Hon. George F. Hoar, United States Senator from Massachu-SENATOR,—In the newspapers I find a letter addressed by you to a friend, the principal object of which seems dreds of other people in New Englard and other parts of the country, I bought some of these bonds—not a ments made by me in a speech recent ly delivered in Brooklyn. You will pardon me for pointing out to you some serious mistakes into which your zeal for your friend, Mr. Blaine, seems to have betrayed you. Among them the following are the most important. very large amount—paying for them at precisely the same rate that others paid. I never heard, and do not believe, that the Little Rock Company ever parted with a bond to any person except at the regular price fixed for their sale Instead of receiving bonds of the Little Rock and Fort Smith of the Little Rock and Fort Smith road as a gratuity, I never had one except at the regular market price."

When Mr. Blaine said this to the House of Representatives on April 24th, 1876, before the Mulligan papers became public, he knew, but the public did then not know, that he had received large quantities of bonds upon the following contract. on the following contract:

"Boston, September 5, 1869. Whereas I have this day entered into an agreement with A. & P. Coburn, and sundry other parties resident in Maine, to deliver to them specified amounts of the common stock, and first mortgage bonds of the Little Rock & Fort Smith Railroad Company, upon said parties paying to me the aggregate sum of $130,000, which several agreements are witnessed by J. G. Blaine and delivered to said parties by said Blaine.

"Now this agreement witnesses that upon the due fulfilment of the several contracts referred to by the payment of the $130,000, and for other valuable considerations, the receipt of which is acknowledged, I receipt of which is acknowledged, I hereby agree to deliver to J. G. Blaine or order, as the same come into my hands as assignee for the contract for building the Little Rock & Fort Smith Railroad, the following securities, namely: Of the land bonds, 7 per cents, $130,000; of the first mortgage bonds, gold, 6's, $32,500. And these $130,000 of land bonds and $32,500 of first mortgage. bonds and $32,500 of first mortgage bonds thus agreed to be delivered to said Blaine are over and above the securities agreed to be delivered by Warren Fisher, Jr., assignee, to the parties making the contracts, which parties, with the several amounts to be paid by each and the securities to be received by each, are named in a memorandum on the next page of was the thing, and the only thing, he did point at in two letters written on one day, requesting that Mr. Cald well be told of it, and at the same "And it is further agreed that, in the event of any one of the said parties failing to pay the amount stipulated, that the amount of securities to be paid to said Blaine under this agreement shall be reduced in the same proportion that the deficit of payment bears to the aggregate amount agreed to be paid.

WARREN FISHER, JR.,

"Assignee. That this contract was carried out appears in a memorandum in Mr. Blaine's own handwriting, produced by Mr. Mulligan before the investigating committee in Mr. Blaine's presence without a word of objection from him as to its correctness. And in the face of this contract, and of the fact that large quanties of Little Rock bonds went to Mr. Blaine, according to the memorandum, without any payment on his part. as a gratuity or commission for Little Rock securities passing to A. & P. Coburn and other parties from Mr. Fisher, Mr. Blaine had the hardihood to say that the "Little Rock Company never parted with a bond to any one except at the regular price fixed for their sale," and that he himself "never had one except at the regular market price." In both these cases Mr. Blaine evidently said what was not true; he knew it to be untrue when he said it, and he said it with the obvious intent to deceive the House of Representatives and the "forty four million of his countrymen," whom Mr. Blaine "took into his confidence." How do you call this? I know how you would have called it before Mr. Blaine's nomination, but that nomination seems to have had a strangly confusing effect upon party-men's notions as to public mor-als. To call it "brilliant audacity in handling the truth" may suit the vo cabulary of the modern era better. 5. You say that I lay too much stress upon Mr. Blaine's energetic protest against "the prying into his private affairs;" that I forget the circumstances; that Mr. Blaine was then a candidate for the Presidency;

change in any sense the character of those facts? Certainly not. What then did they effect? They showed only that some people when they bestowed public honors upon Mr. Blaine, either did not know these facts, or chose to overlook them for party reasons, or regarded them as compatible with the standard according to which, in their opinion, public honors should be bestowed. But does this relieve other people of their duty as citizens to form a conscientious judgment upon these same things. as citizens to form a conscientious judgment upon these same things, and to vote accordingly? I wonder whether you would apply your triumphant acquittal rule with equal readiness to other cases. I am informed that your opinion of General Butler has long been quite unfavorable. General Butler was elected to the Governorship of Massachusetts two years ago. He has been nominated for the Presidency by Greenbackers and Anti-Monopolists. Did that change in any way the facts that change in any way the facts constituting his record? Did it change your opinion of those facts? Were that election and these nominations, in your opinion, a "triumphant acquittal?" The mere statement of the proposition is sufficient to show the absurdity of it.

As to Mr. Blaine's case, the generality of American citizens are now for the first time called upon to declare whether his public record is regarded by them as compatible with the standard according to which the American people are willing to bestow the highest honor and trust in this republic. If the American people declare that it is, then our public men, great and small, will have learned that they may work in their "various channels of usefulness" to make themselves rich with the seme make themselves rich, with the same spirit of enterprise and the same brilliant audacity in the handling of facts which they will have been taught to admire in the model set up for them, without fear of endangering their preferment to the highest places. What the consequent effects of this on the future of the republic are likely to be I have endeavored to set forth in my Brooklyn speech. Of the effect which Mr. Blaine's mere nomination has already produced, your way of defending him furnishes, regret to say, an instructive example.

7. You are greatly mistaken when you "take it for granted that what Mr. Schurz has not said in this speech against the personal honesty of Mr. Blaine is not worth saying." There are many more facts in Mr. Blaine's record which just begin to for the subject of nonular discussion. for the subject of popular discussion and which may in a most urgent manner call for your attention before the end of this campaign. I confine myself carefully to a few representa-Blaine's own letters, speeches and oral testimony alone. Neither can I accept the compliment that my Brooklyn speech is an unusual exhibition of "clear and skillful statement." Whatever strength that the circumstance that it is the sober truth, plainly spoken. And just there is your trouble. Truly yours,
C. Schurz.
