[ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE IN CHARLOTTS, N. C., 45 CROOND CLASS MATTER.]

THEY DON'T LIKE IT. There was a good deal of squirms ing and twisting among the remains of the Republican party in the House of Representatives yesterday when Mr. Follet, of Ohio, introduced his resolutions calling for an investigation of the conduct of the U.S. Marshal in Cincinnati in the appointment of deputy marshals at the polls in Cincinnati at the October election. The proposed investigation covers the ground, and if carried out as intended will lay bare a good deal of villainy. It may perhaps involve more distinguished members of the Republican party than the U.S. Marshals, whose conduct is to be investigated. Keifer, of unenviable fame, objected and endeavored to kill the resolution by a point of order, in which he was backed by other Republican members, and failing in this they endeavored to strangle it by sundry amendments looking to investigations in Southern States. Their efforts in this direction gave them a pretext and an opportunity to lug in a good deal of the stereotyped stuff about intimidation, false counts, &c., in the South, with all of which the American public have become somewhat familiar in past years, so familiar in fact that they pay very little attention to it. They didn't care a whit about investigations in the South, their object simply being to offset the outrages perpetrated on Ohio by alleged outrages in the South. It they were acting in good faith instead of opposing they would have favored Follet's resolution, and then followed it up by the introduction of a resolution to investigate any Southern State where they claimed the right of the ballot was denied, and they had the assurance of Mr. Barksdale, of Mississippi, that he was not only willing that the election in that State should be investigated, but would co-operate in an effort for an investigation in any of the Southern States where it was alleged that there was not a free ballot and a fair count. They paid no attention to this unexpected offer, not being so anxious to ferret out alleged unfair- expenditures in the Department of anxious to ferret out alleged unfair-ness in the South as to hide the ras-soon as the same can reasonably be eality on the north side of the Ohio | do river. But they failed in their efforts, Mr. Follet's resolution passed, and the indications are that the public will be favored with some interesting information when the committee gets

A SHORT SESSION IN THE SENATE. l'ollet Introduces His Investigation Resolution in the House and Evokes

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—SENATE.—
After the reading of the journal, W.
P. Sheffield, the new Senator from Rhode Island, was sworn in.
The chair laid before the Senate the The chair laid before the Senate the annual reports of the secretary of the treasury and comptroller of currency, also the report of the clerk of the court of claims, containing a statement of all the judgments rendered by that court during the past year.

Mr. Vest offered a resolution directing an investigation into all leases of land in Indian Territory for grazing or other purposes by Indian ing or other purposes by Indian tribes, the number of acres embraced in said leases, their terms and the persons and corporations becoming to investigate all circumstances un-der which leases were made, the means used in obtaining the leases referred to, and whether such leases were authorized by law.

The resolution went ever until to-The Senate then entered on the con-sideration of bills upon its calendar, but without result, and at 6.45 p. m.

House.—Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, presented the credentials of H. G. Smith as member elect from the Ninth Iowa district, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of John A. Kasson.

Smith appeared at the bar of the House and took the oath of office.

Mr. Follett, of Ohio, as a question of privilege, presented the following preamble and resolution: I do impeach Lot Wright, United States marshal of the southern district of Ohio, of high crimes and misdo-meanors. I charge him with usurpa-tion of power and violation of law, in the city of Cincinnati, at the election for members of Congress held in said city on the 14th day of October, 1884, and armed said deputy marshals with pistols and other deadly weap-ons, said to have been furnished by the War Department of the United States government, in that a large number of deputy marshals so ap-pointed and armed were notorious criminals, and men of known vicious and brutal habits and reputation, and many of them non-residents of said city of Cincinnati, and of said State of Ohio; in that said deputy marshals, acting under his orders and direc-tions, aided, abetted and encouraged fraudulent voting, intimidation of voters, and gross outrages upon the elective franchise and the rights of honest voters of said city, in further ance of the interests of a political party and its candidates, therefore, Resolved, That the committee on report to this House as follows: First. How many deputy marshals, general and special, were appointed and authorized by said United States marshal for the Southern district of Ohio to serve at the several voting precincts in said county, at said election, with the name and residence of each, and the voting precinct to which each was assigned. Second. What citizens, if any, of said several precincts asked for the appointment of such deputy marshals, with the names of such citizens and the reasons, if any were assigned, for Third. Whether any, and if so how many, of such deputy marshals have, prior to such appointment, been accused of or convicted of crime, or were men of known vicious and brutal habits and reputations. Fourth. Whether said deputy mar-shals were under the direction and control of partisans, and used the powers vested in them in the interest of any political party, and aided, countenanced and encouraged fraudulent and illegal voting in the interest of such political party and its Fifth. What number and what kind of pistols or other deadly weapons were put into the hands of said deputy marshal-, who furnished said weapons, whence were they received, where furnished, and how many of such weapons have been returned, together with the names of such deputy marshals as have failed to return the weapons furnished them.

Sixth. What amount of money has been paid to such deputy marshals, and by whose orders was the same paid, and at what rate per day.

Seventh. Any other matter or thing connected with or germane to the general subject of such investiga-

Resolved, That in making such investigation the said committee be empowered to appoint a sub-commit-tee, consisting of the chairman of said committee and such other two members thereof as he may select, which sub-committee shall have full power to meet and hold its sessions at such times and places as may seem proper, to send for persons and papers, to compel the attendance of witnesses and to require them to testify, to employ a stenographer, and to incur any and all such necessary and reasonable expenses as may be deem ed requisite for the purposes of such investigation, such expenditures to be paid out of the centingent fund of the Keifer, of Ohio, made a point of order against the reception of the The resolution, he said, was a proposition to investigate charges against officers of the United States. It was not a question of impeachment which was presented, and it would not make the resolution in order to say that it looked towards impeachment.

Follet said that in the preparation of this resolution he had adopted the form used by the 39th Congress when charges were preferred against President Andrew Johnson. The House certainly had a right to inquire into the conduct of an officer, with a view of impeaching an officer whom it had a right to impeach.

The Speaker thought that under all previous rulings the resolution presented a matter of privilege, and the House could determine for itself how far the investigation should be proceeded with, and what committee should have charge of it. He there gation was whether a certain officer had or had not performed one of the highest possible duties of an officer of the government—the protection of the ballot—in pursuance of law or in known violation of ft. That and that should be informed upon.

Keifer thought that before the House should prepare to impeach the United States marshal in Cincinnati, it was important that it should know the whole situation surrounding that sion, "how shall I form my men here, and where?"

"Oh, go on Jack," replied General Cheatham, "and form like you did in a fight during the war."

"Yes," rejoined the redoubtable ex Confederate colonel, "that's easy enough said, but the conditions are somewhat reversed here. During a fight we had more room than men; now we have more men than room."

should be informed upon.

Keifer thought that before the House should prepare to impeach the United States marshal in Cincinnati, it was important that it should know the whole situation surrounding that officer when he undertook to provide that there should be a peaceable election, where all persons of all races might go and cast their ballots. At the very time when these deputy marshals were appointed in Cincils, nati, there was going about the streets of that city officers, or men pretending to be officers, of that municipal corporation, seizing men simply because they were colored men, locking them up by hundreds, and keeping them until the puickle set on the latter. them until the polls closed on the 14th of October. He might not be entirely correct, but the newspapers stated that in one station house in Cincinnati 360 colored men, against whom nothing was alleged, were held through election day in order that they could not go to the polls and vote. It ought to be known what condition of things surrounded this United States marshal, and he would like to amend the resolution so as to widen the scope of the investigation. This broadening of the scope of the investigation would help the House to decide whether the marshal had acted wisely and prudently acted wisely and prudently Taylor, of Ohio, favored the broad ening of the investigation, and made allusion to the terrifying of colored men on election day. Miller, of Pennsylvania, regretted that the investigation stopped at the Ohio river. If it passed beyond the confines of that stream and went down to Mississippi, spending a few hours in South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, and in other Southern States, where no regard was paid as to how the ballot was cast or counted, he would be de-lighted.

· G. D. Wise, of Virginia, said that he had a resolution prepared looking to an investigation of elections in a Southern State.

Miller said that while he believed that in the Southern States they had tried to kill and destroy, the shot gun had been laid aside temporarily, but they kept up the practice of counting their men in without regard to bal-

Keifer asked leave to offer as amendment directing the committee on expenditures in the Department of Justice to investigate all the cir cumstances attending the recent elec-tion of members of the House of Representatives from the first and second districts of Ohio, but Follet refused to yield. Follet also declined to yield to Hiscock, of New York, who desired to offer an amendment enabling the marshal to bring forward facts justifying or explaining his action.

Barksdale, of Mississippi, in reply to Miller, expressed his willingness to promote an investigation of the election in any Southern State. Hiscock made another vain at tempt to have his amendment considered. As the resolution was drawn the marshal was excluded from any opportunity to give an excuse for his action. The resolution did not involve the question of intent on the part of the marshal and he thought it should be amended in this respect, so that the marshal might show that he acted in good faith. The resolutions were adopted without division. G. D. Wise, of Virginia, asked unanimous consent to offer a resolution for an investigation of the conduct of the U.S. Marshal for the eastern district of Virginia during the recent election. Reed, of Maine, objected.

Reagan, of Texas, called up the inter state commerce bill and the House proceeded to consider it. Reagan offered as a substitute for the bill reported by the committee on commerce last session, a bill general ly known as the Reagan bill, and en tered into an enhaustive comparison of the two measures, his remarks being listened to with great atten-he Tariff Not to be Agitated at This Session.

Speaker Carlisle is reported as saying that it was not probable that there would be any general tariff legislation at this session There is not time, he said, and from the fact that a new administration is about to come in, Democrats and Republicans are alike disinclined to attempt anything like a general revision of the tariff now There will be, he said, some tariff legislation this session, because the question of enacting nec-essary legislation to carry the Mexi can treaty into effect will come before the House, and should the Senate ratify the treaty with Spain, the House will be called upon to enact legislation necessary to carry that treaty into effect.

The discussion of both treaties will, he thinks, open up the general tariff question and lead to some talk upon it, but to nothing further.

He said that it was possible that some attempts would be made at this session to remedy certain irregularities in the present tariff, but that it was too early to predict the result.

With respect to any general revision, he said that even should they all agree that such a revision should be made, when they come to settle upon the details, they would find such difference of opinion that months would be needed to complete the work.

He was equally well convinced that nothing would be done in the matter of cutting down internal revenue taxes, because, should such an attempt be made, it would precipitate the whole question of tax reduc-

Speaking of the report of the Secre-tary of the Treasury, Mr. Carlisle ex-pressed satisfaction with the position taken by Mr. McCulloch on the tariff question, as to his recommendation that a new tariff commission should be appointed. Carlisle said that the present House would not consent that another commission should be ap-pointed by a Republican President.

Dr. W. Gregory;
My Dear Sir-Al ow me to say that I believe you My Dear Sir—Allow me to say that I believe your Dyspeptic Medicine to be all that you claim for it. I have used it in my family for several years and speak advisedly when I say that I do not believe it has an equal. I know of two permanent cares when the patients were considered beyond medical aid. Persons who tuffer by eating things that do not agree with them will find great and permanent relief in this medicine. Respectfully.
