A Case of Hydrophobia. Day before yesterdy a colored wo-man, who gave her name as Alice Atkins, and who claimed to be from Georgia, was arrested on the streets jail, the spasm having passed off, she was handed a glass of water and immediately went into convulsions.

Philadelphia Sunday Record. During the past week announce-ments have been made of the re empresent than there has been for many months.

"A month ago I was hat py!" is the declaration of Bryan W. Proctor, the poet. So were lots of other folks, who are now telling people in decided nasal tones: "Got a toad in my head." But there is still happiness to be secured; a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will sure any sough or cold.

Do You Know a Man Whose wife is troubled with debility, nervousness, liver complaint or rheumatism? Just tell him it is a pity to let the lady suffer that way, when Brown's Bitters will relieve ther. Mrs. L. R. Edgerly, of Dexter, Me., says, "Brown's Iron Bitters cured me of debility and palpitation of the heart." Mrs. H. S. McLaughlin, of Scarborough, Me., says the bit ters cured her of debility. Mrs. Harding, of Windham Centre, in the same State, said it ourse her of dizziness in the head. So it has cured thousands of other ladies.

OF THE AREA OF THE CITY.

Mayor and Chief of Police. The enlargement of the territorial imits of the city of Charlotte, by the recent Legislature, is a matter which has produced some comment among the denizens, and an OBSERVER representative yesterday called upon Mayor Maxwell, and other prominent persons to find out what was the real public sentiment in regard to the

In the first place we had better an nounce that the city's limits on the four principal roads leading out of Charlotte have been extended about one quarter of a mile in each direction. The former shape of the area was a quadrilateral with equal sides. The extension of the boundaries does not change the shape of area, but merely enlarges it, and makes the carners: One quarter of a mile out on the Beatty's Ford road—nearly to the creek, and the same distance on the Salisbury road, the Providence road, and the Camden road. The enlargement of the area will bring about one hundred thousand dollars' worth of property into the city's limits for taxation, and it will add probably one hundred voters, about equally divided between the two political parties, as heretofore

A month or so ago upon the unanimous recommendation of the board of aldermen, Mayor Maxwell was directed to appoint a committee com-posed of members of the board and

and S. A. Cohen. recommending the change in the city's limits, and the report was adopted by the board. A certified copy of the action of the board of aldermen, was sent to our members the action of that body. One of the main reasons why the change was recommended was that under the new order of things, the city government will have control of the working of the four principal roads leading into Charlotte, for a quarter of a mile further out in each direction, than before. Heretofore the county authorities didn't have this portion of these roads kept up, and the city government couldn't. Any change therefore in regard to this matter will be for the better. The change in the salaries of the mayor and the chief of police, seems to meet with some objection Under than $1,500 nor less than $1,000. Under the old law the salary of the may or could reach $2,150 while under the new law it cannot exceed $2,000. So after all the change does not appear to be detrimental to the interests of the city. But this is only one side;

does anybody want to give the other?

COUSIN SALLIE DILLARD. Who is the Author of the Story? The question has often been asked who is the author of the famous story of 'Cousin Sallie Dillard." The Virginia and North Carolina papers have each claimed that its author belonged to their State. In North Carolina its authorship has generally been attributed to Hamilton C. Jones, Sr., who long lived in Salisbury. Mr. Jones was once the editor of the CarolinaWatchman, a good lawyer, several times a member of the Legislature, reporter of the Supreme Court Reports, a gentleman of high social po-sition and of fine literary attain-ments. In his day he was noted for his wit and humor. In this respect he was more noted than any man in the State. His wit was not of the coarse and vulgar character now so much cultivated to the discredit of the State and its learned politicians as to degrade public taste. It was of the pure Attic and as appropriate in the parlors as in the court house, or on the political hustings. While he was solicitor of this judicial district no private entertainment was given at which he was not a welcome guest, His presence was even more desired, often, than that of the judge on account of his spicy humor and power of entertaining. The ladies of the house all loved to hear him talk, and would enjoy his wit as well as the members of the bar in or out of the

That before the days of railroads, I was going to New York City, and reaching Richmond I took a ship to go by water. After getting aboard and securing my berth, my attention was attracted to a gentleman on the lower deck with a crowd around him, which was much entertained by the talker in a sitting posture. I approached and listened for awhile, when the speaker looked at me and when the speaker looked at me and asked if I was not a lawyer. I replied that I professed to be, at home. Williams said, "I thought so by the cut of your eye," rose up, took me by the arm and said, let's go and take a drink Williams then gave his name; said he was a member of the Virginia Legislature, which had j ist adjourned, and that he was going to New York City. Williams then said, I must go to my berth and change my dress—inserting his hand in his pocket for his berth key, and bringing out the key to the room he had occupied at the Exchange Hotel in Richmond, which he had inad-vertently brought with him, as many a man on a spree had done before and since, to the detriment of the proprietors. Williams continued to indulge in several drinks that afternoon, and each seemed to heighten his thoughts and ideas. We became boon companions. He was intelled tual, witty and bright. On the way to New York we told many anecdotes to the entertainment of the passengers and officers of the vessel. Among others Williams told the Cousin SalA HOME ON WHEELS.

A Modern Palace Sceping Car Passes

New Orleans Exposition. A few days ago it was stated that one of the modern Matin Boudoir palace sleeping cars would stop at the depot in Charlotte long enough to give inquiring visitors time to examine it, but it didn't do it. The fau'lt was not ours, because this scribe is a reg-ular G Washington kind of a man, ness," in which the "Father of his country" distinguished himself. Yesterday about twelve o'clock Mr. W. A. Moody, (not of Moody & Sankey notoriety) the obliging agent af the Richmond & Danville Railroad company in Charlotte, entered THE OBSERVER office, with a telegram in his hand, which conveyed the information that the

MANN BOUDOIR CAR "Carmen" would arrive at the depot in ten minutes and if we wanted to see it we must go at once, nor stand upon the order of going. We went, we saw Veni vidi. We found on board a number of officials.

General Superintendent H. A. Calwell has placed the car at the disposal of a party of railroad offi cials who propose to visit New Or-leans and attend the National Association of General Passenger and Ticket Agents. The following named gentlemen, with their families, constitute the party: Charles A. Taylor, general passenger agent Richmond. Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad; M. Slaughter, general passen-ger agent Richmond and Danville railroad; T. M Emmerson, general passenger agent Atlantic Coast Line; H. P. Clarke, of New York, general passenger agent Associated Passenger Lines of Virginia and the Carolinas; and W. H. Boyce, of Baltimore, general freight agent Northern Central and Potomac railroads. They will visit Atlanta, Birmingham, Ala.; New Orleans, Pensacola, Jackson ville, Savannah, and Charleston, and return northward via the Atlantic Coast Line. THE INTERIOR OF THE CAR Is a number of boudoirs, in fact as well as in name, the division into compartments securing for travelers that privacy which, from the very nature of a sleeping car, is inestimably desirable, and the absence of which is so conspicuous in the ordinary palace car. The beds are placed crosswise the carrinstead of lengthwise as in the Pullman. The interior of the car is altogether novel. At either end is a vestibule entered from the platform, from which open respectively ladies' and gentlemen's dressing rooms and closets. The lavatories are supplied with every toilet appliance. Connecting the vestibules and shut off from them by doors, is a commodious corridor running along the side of the car. Opening off this hallway are the several compartments or boudoirs Some of these rooms are arranged for two and some for four persons. By day these apartments are simply pretty cabins, with high arched ceil-ings, large plate glass windows, and either one or two luxurious sofas, with high, soft backs, affording an easy head rest; movable sofa cushions of proper size and form serve as arm rests. These sofas are athwart the car, and under them and behind their inclined backs are carried the mattresses and bedding.

Along the wall of the car, over the windows, is placed a commodious rack to hold hand baggage, and on the opposite side is a neat hat, umbrella and cane rack. At night the backs of the sofas, hinged at their tops to the cross partitions which comparatively separate the rooms, are swung out up to a horizontal position, where, automatically fastening themselves, they form the upper beds, the sofa seats becoming the lower beds. The beds are longer than those of the palace car, and the head is made up next to the corridor, bringthe vitals parts of the body neir the middle of the car—a better position than along the side by the windows. In beds so arranged across the car, the sleeper avoids the rolling motion experienced in beds placed longitudinally, while the head is removed from the noise incident to close contact with the car walls.

VENTILATION. The ventilation of the Boudoir cars is, by a novel system, without the dangerous air draughts and smothering dust from the windows. To effect the perfect ventilation, which is one of the leading merits of the Boudoir car, abundant air is taken by large funnels located on the roof and thence carried downward and forced through an ingenious filter, freeing it of all dust and cinders. after whice it is discharged into the heater closet. In winter the fresh and purified air is thus heated, while in summer this heater-closet and a portion of the filter-chest are con verted into a huge refrigerator with ice. From this closet the air passes with considerable force of current along a flue enclosing the heater-pipes down the entire length of the corridor, and is discharged into the latter through registers opposite the door of each compartment, which doors, being provided with slats, admit the fresh heated (in winter) or cooled (in summer) air in great quan tities to the compartments,

In the summer this process of refrigeration effects a lowering of the temperature of the air from 12 degrees to 30 degrees below that of the exterior atmosphere.

To complete the ventilating process, in each department are three exhaust ing ventilators, which, while they cannot admit air from without, constantly draw off air from within. By this means all the air in the car is changed every five minutes without dust or draughts.

Altogether we have never seen anything in the way of a railroad car like it for comfort and convent ence. Its advantages are so numerous, and its comforts so many that we shall have to stop for fear the friends of THE OBSERVER will think we are not the truly G. Washington kind of a man we started out to be when we commenced to write about the Mann Boudoir Car.

Jay Gould's wonderful new yacht will, it is said, be most completely and elegantly furnishen. Among other useful and indispensable things ordered for it was a box of Dr. Buil's Coogh Syrup.

The removal of Prof. Sanborn, of N. H. after being pronounced incurable by a score of physi-cians, from Las Vegas, N. M., to his home, was effected by administering Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, which has restored him to his former good health. Baughters, Wives and Mothers windham Centre, in the same State, said it cured the of dizziness in the head. So it has cured thousands of other ladies.

Alphonse Karr recently paralyzed some physicians in Paris at a dinner by offering a toast to the health of their patients. Some people think doctors do not like their patients to get well. There are many dectors in this country who not only want their patients to get well but give them Brown's Iron Bitters. Dr. G. N. Eobertson, Elm Grove, N.
