ALEXANDER & HARRIS. An elevator proprietor at Salina, Kas., offers to wager $500 that Kansas this year will not harvest 30,000,000 bushels of wheat. The yield of last year is claimed by the State board of agriculture to have been 50,000,000 bushels. Estimates from California say that the crop in that State will fall off fully one quarter, save in the southern counties.

E. M. ANDREWS. Largest Stock of Furniture in the State. According to the Brick and Tile Review, floating bricks are made of a very silicious earth, clay being sometimes added to bind the material together. They can be made so light that they will float on water, while their strength equals ordinary bricks.

E. M. ANDREWS. Coffins, Caskets and Burial Suits. Orders by telegraph attended to day or night. E. M. ANDREWS.

The Charlotte Observer. Production of Gold and Silver. The entire gold yield of the country from the foundation of the government to the close of 1884, according to the estimates of Prof. J. D. Whitney, the eminent geologist, mineralogist and statistician, was only $13,245,476. On the 19th day of January, 1848, the first of California's gold deposits was discovered on the American branch of the Sacramento river by James W. Marshall. They began the prodigious growth which culminated in the production of $65,000,000 in value in 1853, which marked the maximum gold yield of the United States in a single year. Immense as this aggregate was, however, it was surpassed by Australia, the product of whose gold mines in 1852 reached the stupendous sum of $102,000,000, a record which stands without a parallel in the mining annals of any single nation.

ASTRAW. The announcement from London that a meeting had been held of influential landholders, with such persons as the Duke of Argyll, the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Marquis of Ripon, for the formation of a large company, to be called "The National Land Company," for the purpose of securing the gradual breaking up of the large landed estates, to buy up the land at wholesale and sell it out in tracts not larger than forty acres, under conditions likely to cause further sub-division and prevent aggregation of title. The company proposes to buy for cash and sell on the installment plan, payable in ten years. This movement is indicative of the force of popular sentiment on the land question in Great Britain, but also of the impression it has made upon the landholders themselves. The agitation has begun, it is growing stronger year after year, and it will never be quieted until those great estates be taken up and parceled out among the people. It is a wise movement, too, on the part of the land owners, for they will get full value for their lands, which they might not get when the agitation grows strong enough to demand the lands at a price fixed by others than the owners, or perhaps only at such price as the revolutionist might be willing to pay—that is nothing. In that very land question is today England's danger, for if these immense estates are to remain as they are the result will be revolution, and possibly a Republic on the ruins of the monarchy, which now has no charms for the great mass of the English people, and year by year is growing less popular. With the elective franchise extending the independence of thought and expression that are growing daily stronger, the free utterances of the press, and the general spread of independent ideas, old forms are disappearing, and the awe that crowned heads once inspired has ceased to be. The English people are beginning to regard a monarch as somewhat of a superfluity, and they tolerate a royal family not because they like it, but because it is one of those relics of past ages handed down to them that they haven't bothered themselves thinking much about of late. But the royal family is an expensive institution which returns no equivalent in the way of use or service rendered for what it costs to keep them up in the style in which they live.

Should war come between England and Russia, and that war assume the proportions it in all probability will, the British government and the aristocracy who assume the right to govern will find it necessary to make many concessions to the people that in time of peace might be resisted long and vigorously. It is perhaps a recognition of the possibility of something of this kind that inspires this timely action on the part of these influential landholders to whom reference is made above.

It is about time that the hand shaking nuisance in this country was dispensed with. It is no small ordeal for a man to go through, even physically as well put up as Grover Cleveland, to shake hands with several thousand people in rapid succession.

Perhaps as strange an aerial phenomenon as has ever been experienced or observed in the Northwest was that in the Missouri slope Tuesday night. At about midnight the entire heavens were brilliantly illuminated with a bright, warm light. The experience of the pedestrian was similar to that of a sudden lighting of a lamp in a darkened room. It reminded one of standing beneath an electric light tower in the evening, which as the lights first throw out their brilliant rays. One solitary word-like ray reached out from Aurora's northern light house, and as if through some magnet set firmly in the zenith or connecting with another electric current in the very centre of the starry dome, a perfect ocean of blinding light was produced, with a small circle of dazzling brilliancy in the centre. The phenomenon lasted about twenty minutes, during which time a newspaper could be read with perfect ease in the open air at a window in an unlighted room.

Mississippi may not be as progressive as some other States but she has progressed far enough to lock a man up in jail for "playfully pointing" a gun at another man. The capital of West Virginia will remain at Wheeling till the first of May, after which date Charleston will be the capital. A good many speculators in orange caught by Grant's not drying according to expectation.

Mr. Davis's Reply. Gov. Ireland, of Texas, and his staff and a large party of Texans, who have been celebrating Texas day at the New Orleans Exposition, visited Hon. Jefferson Davis Thursday at his home at Beauvoir, Miss. Several speeches were made. Gov. Ireland, speaking for the Texas party, declared that the object of their visit was to see and shake hands with one of the grandest statesmen, noblest of men and purest of patriots. To this Mr. Davis responded, urging all to be good and true citizens of our common country, to cherish sentiments of mutual respect, and to support the government and genuine republican institutions, to see to it that these principles are founded in justice and that the truth of history be preserved whether written for schools or for the library.

AFRAID OF WOMEN. A Learned East Indian's Views on Educated Wives. San Francisco Chronicle. There is visiting in San Francisco a very learned Mohammedan named Gopal Vinayak Joshee. He recently arrived from Bombay and has attracted considerable attention on the streets by his huge Oriental turban of many folds, which he wears constantly, and in the only thing especially remarkable about his costume. Mr. Vinayak is not only a philosopher and a scholar in his own language, but is thoroughly conversant with European affairs and customs, and, withal, speaks with an exceptionally accent and wonderful fluency. Yesterday afternoon being the time set for the Teachers' Institute at the Girl's High School, he was invited to present, as he is particularly interested and well informed on educational topics. After the regular exercise had been concluded Superintendent Moulton called upon Mr. Joshee to present his views upon the education of girls, both from the standpoint of Asiatic customs and from the results of education in the Western world which he has seen and heard of in his travels. He was very courteously complied, and thoroughly entertained the unusually large attendance, mostly composed of young lady teachers, by his interesting and peculiarly original ideas.

HOW VACCINATION WORKS. Pastors' Resolutions in Germ Life and the Theory they Have Established. Prof. Tyndal in Popular Science Monthly. Pastors had little difficulty in establishing the parasitic origin of fowl cholera; indeed, the parasite had been discovered by others before him. But by his successive cultivations he rendered the solution easier. His next step will remain forever memorable in the history of medicine. I allude to what he calls "virus attenuation." And here it may be well to throw out a few remarks in advance. When a tree or a bundle of wheat or barley straw is burned a certain amount of mineral matter remains in the ashes—extremely small in comparison with the bulk of the tree or of the straw, but absolutely essential to its growth. In a soil lacking or exhausted of the necessary mineral constituents, the tree cannot live, the crop cannot grow. My contagia are living things, which demand certain elements of life just as inexorably as trees or wheat or barley; and it is not difficult to see that a crop of given parasites may so far use up a field as to exhaust it, so that the growth of the parasite, as to render the body unfit for the production of a second crop. The soil is exhausted, the parasite is restored to the body is protected from any further attack of the same disease. Such an explanation of non-recurrence is naturally presented to the mind of a thorough believer in the germ theory, and such was the solution which, in reply to a question, I ventured to offer nearly fifteen years ago to an eminent London physician. He explained throughout the parasitic, less vigorous and destructive than the really virulent one may suffice; and if after having by means of a feebler organism exhausted the soil, a more potent and highly virulent parasite be introduced into the system, it will prove powerless. This, in the language of the germ theory, is the whole secret of vaccination.

A Sad Refrain but a Trustful One. To the Editor of The Observer. I find it useless and expensive to request any further aid or assistance from the people of North Carolina to publish the history and deeds of her sons in the late war, and I place in medium and opportunity to inform those who have kindly taken any interest in my work and have signified by making a deposit of $5.00 with Mr. J. B. Bunn, that I can see no prophetic finger pointing to a near prospect of its publication, consequently the friends, fourteen in number, are at liberty to recall their money.
