One of the most amusing features of the Lutheran bazaar, was the art gallery-which was; equipped in a new and original style. A B, an eye, a sickle and a club, formed a picture representing the bicycle club, and there were many other novel devices. None who went in the art gallery felt that they were cheated out of their ten cents.

Close of the Buzgar.

The Lutheran bazaar closed last night, or more properly speaking this morning, for the hall was still filled with people after 12 o'clock, their interest being centered in the last throws of the dice. The bazaar had bad weather to contend against each night, but the ladies managing it scored a success, nevertheless. It was altogether a pleasantly conducted affair and one that was really enjoyed by all who followed The Observer's advice and attended. The proceeds are not yet known as they cannot be ascertained until business is squared up today.

The ladies request us to ask all those holding bills against the bazaar to present them at Oates Hall between 1 and 4 o'clock this afternoon for payment, and all bills will be promptly met.

of the rope fast to a limb overhead. He then stepped from the fence and the rope hald him above the ground. He strangied to death, and when found his body was stiff. Mr. Sharpe had been in bad health for some time, and lately his syesight began to fail steadily. His father before him had gone blind and died in a wretched condition, and rather than suffer in a like manner, Mr. Sharpe decided to end his own existence. He was perfectly sane, and the deed was committed after cool deliberation on his part. He leaves a wife and family of children.

and the Charges Against Easton Dismissed -- Close of the Preliminary In-The preliminary trial of Charles Easton and Robert Jarvis, charged with having committed the late dyna mite outrage in this city was concluded before trial justice R P Waring, in the court house at noon yesterday. Easton was discharged, but Jarvis was held under $300 bail for his appearance for trial by the Criminal court, during the first week in June. When the trial opened yesterday morning, a number of witnesses were brought forward by Capt. McNinch for the prosecution to prove certain remarks made by Jarvis and Easton, relating to their escapades before arvestigation into the Dynamite Affair.

relating to their escapades before arriving at Charlotte, and it was the intention of the prosecution to show by these witnesses that each of the defendants bore bad characters. The presiding justice, under the ruling in the State vs. Patterson, refused to accept the proposed testimony, it not being competent.

Col. Chas. R. Jones, editor and proprietor of The Observer was called to the stand, and testified that mayor Johnston's advertisement offering a reward of $100 for the arrest and conreward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of the dynamiter was sent to THE OBSERVER for publication and was published in the columns of this paper. The counsel for the accused sought to make a point that certain efforts to criminate Jarvis had all been made after the publication of the reward offer and was inspired by it but took pression to exponents. it, but took occasion to exonerate Capt. McNinch from this charge. His remarks applied to "all these woremarks applied to "all these women." Capt. McNinch took the stand and stated that as the outrage happened while he was chief of police, he considered it his duty, after having commenced work upon it, to follow it to the end. He had been actuated all along by a simple desire to do a service to the community, and as soon as the reward was offered, he had promptly notified certain members of the board of aldermen that he would positively refuse to receive thewould positively refuse to receive the would positively refuse to receive the reward, or any part thereof. Expoliceman D. P. Hunter was called to the stand on part of the defense, and testified that while locking a prisoner in the guard house, that night, he heard the explosion but did not know what it was. He came up to the square and was shortly summoned by one of the women and hastening off to the scene he looked at his watch and found the time to be twenty-five and found the time to be twenty-five minutes to three. He believed that the explosion occurred between 2.15 and 2 30 o'clock. Mr. Stebbins, superintendent of the Southern Newspaper Union, appeared and testified that Jarvis had a good character in New York. Jarvis is employed at the Southern Newspaper Union office in this city. This closed the testimony, and Justice Waring in rendering his decision, said: "If the statement of the witness Hanna be true, and I were a judge on the bench, I would charge the on the bench, I would charge the jury to acquit the defendants, but the jury would have to judge what weight should be given to the testimony. In my judgment, the evidence is sufficient to go to a jury, and this matter ought to be investigated. But I believe it is better that I should make a mistake in binding was the state of t make a mistake in binding over than make a mistake in binding over than to make a mistake in turning loose, in view of the magnitude of the crime; and out of an abundance of caution, under the law defining probable cause, I will require the defendant Jarvis to furnish a bond for his appearance for trial at the next term of the Criminal court." At the suggestion of Mr. Wilson, solicitor of the Criminal court, Jarvis' bond was fixed at $300, which was promptly furnished, and the dy namite case was pigeon holed until week after next.

Deligation for the Pentientiary. An officer from Shelby arrived in the city yesterday afternoon, bound for the penitentiary at Raleigh, with six prisoners convicted and sentenced by Judge Phillips at the late term of Cleveland Superior court. Among the prisoners was a white man named Scates, sentenced to seven years' hard labor for having four wives. August Ulbrich, a German, was also among the gang, under sentence of three years for larceny. The prisoners were confined in the jail here until time for the departure of the north train this morning.

Col. H C Jones arrived home yesterday from Greensboro vested with the full powers of district atterney. He went to Greensboro Thursday to qualify before Judge Dick. Mr. Boyd, the retiring attorney, was not in Greensboro, and did not witness the christening of his Democratic successor. Col. Jones took the oath of office before Judge Dick, and was immediately declared attorney for the Western District of North Carolina. The Federal court will meet in this city on the second Monday in this city on the second Monday in June, and Col. Jones will make his first appearance in that court as Bennett Goes on to Washington. Col. R. T. Bennett. congressman from this district, arrived in the city from Wadesboro yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock and left on the 6:35 north train for Washington. How long he will reman there was not learned. Col. Bennett spent the two hours and thirty-five minutes at the Central Hotel, and had plenty of company. Col. Paul B. Means, of Concord, seemed as glad to see him as were several of our own citizens. Col. Bennett, it is understood goes to Washington with business in his eye, and we hope he will soon begin to have some of the numerous offices in his district filled with Democrats. The sight of old mossy back Republicans growing mossier is becoming a little painful to Col. Bennett's constituency.

D. L. Glover and a Friend go Out Hunting, and Glover is Brought Back Dying on a Litter ... How the Accident Occurred.

Mr. D. L. Glover, a young man about twenty four years of age, who had for some time been employed by the Atlantic; Tennessee & Ohio Railroad Company as depot agent at Troutman's, and who was also postmaster at that place, was accidentally shot and killed last Thursday afternoon by a friend named George Mask. The two were out hunting squirrels at the time the sad affair occurred. occurred.

About two o'clock on Thursday afternoon Glover and Mask met at the store of Mr. J M. Patterson, in Troutman's, and collecting their guns and ammunition, started for the and ammunition, started for the woods to hunt squirrels. Mask carried a rifle, and when they had gone about a quarter of a mile their dog treed a squirrel. Glover and Mask set out on a run for the tree, Glover being in advance of his friend, who closely followed, gun in hand. As they were passing through an undergrowth, Mask's gun became entangled in a bush, and was by some means discharged. As the report of the gun was heard, Glover dropped to the ground with the cry that he was shot. Mask hurried to his side, and seeing at a glance that he was seriously wounded, hastened back to town and procured assistance. A

Dr. R. W. Mills was called to attend the wounded man, and on examination found that his injuries were mortal. The bullet passed entirely through Glover's body, entering just above his right thigh and perforating the abdomen, severing a large artery in its passage. The accident occurred about 2:30 p. m., and at 5:30 o'cl. ck Glover died. He remained conscious to the last, and in his dying statement fully exonerated Mask from all blame, describing the affair as a purely accidental though unfortunate one. Mask is about 20 years old, and has been driven almost to distraction by the occurrence. most to distraction by the occurre Glover and Mask were good friends, and were both natives of Troutman's Mr. Glover's body was interred yes-terday afternoon. J. M. Patterson, who was Glover's assistant, takes charge of the depot and postoffice, pending the appointment of a succes sor to the deceased.

MAY 20:b, 1775 --- CURIOSITY OF THE CALENDAR.

Rules to Ascertain the Day of Any Giyen Date.

To the Editor of THE OBSERVER. Noticing that some of your correspondents have a question about what day of the week May 20, 1775, was, I am tempted to give your readers an easy and infallible rule which will determine such a question for that or any other date during the whole Christian era:

Rule (for the 19th century).—

Write down the number of the year;
write under that the fourth of it, neglecting the fractions, if any;
write under these the number of days from January 1 in that year, up to the date you wish to calculate, inclusive; add those three numbers together, and if it be a leap year subtract 1 from that sum, but not if it be a common year; then divide by 7. The remainder will show the day of the year common that the tree to the sum of the year. the week corresponding with that date, I being Sunday, 2 Monday, &c, date, 1 being Sunday, 2 Monday, &c, and 0 being Saturday.

Rule (for any date from 1751 to 1800).—Proceed precisely as above, except that after adding the three numbers you must not subtract at all, b.t must add one to the sum, if it be a common year, before dividing by 7. The remainder shows the day.

Ru's (for any date prior to 1751).—Just the same, except that for leap years you must subtract 3, and for common years 2, after adding the three numbers, and before dividing by the 7.

The above may serve to amuse young folks by enabling them to find what day of the week they were born on if they will tell their ages.

Now, apply the rule to May 20, 1775, as follows:

Date. One-fourth of it May 20 is the 140 h day of the y ar, ....

Remainder—0.

There being no remainder the day May 20th, 1775, fell fon Saturday.

If it were desirable, and would not take too much of your space and my time, I would give the reason of the rule, which is simple enough when explained. But let it suffice now to say that the rule is correct and certain. IREDELL.

How Much Room for 100 Heas.

Each ben in a house should have one foot of space on the roosts. One hundred hens then would require four roosts 25 feet long, and to prevent the hens crowding upon the top roost these should be all on the same level. The roosts should be one foot apart, and be arranged in a frame hinged to the wall, so they can be lifted and hooked up for the purpose of cleaning. The roosts will take up four feet, and there should be eight feet floor space; thus a house for 100 hens should be 25 by 12 feet on the floor inside, and should be at least 6 feet high in the rear and 9 feet high in the front with ample ventilation.
