SMALL INDUSTRIES.

An effort is being made to encourage the establishment of tobacco factories in Raleigh, and as an inducement to the investment of capital the city authorities are urged to exempt property and capital so employed from taxation for a given number of years. Some of the leading citizens of Raleigh are moving in the matter, and seem to be very much in earnest about it.

What the South wants is diversified industries in her towns and cities, and diversified farming. Until this comes there can be no real and permanent prosperity in this section.

Diversified industries in our towns would keep at home millions of dollars which are annually sent to Northern States for the purchase of articles which could be as well made at home, and the raw material of much of which comes from the South. There is but one thing lacking and that is concert of action. Capital, of course, is necessary, but there are few Southern towns where the necessary amount of capital could not be found to establish one or more manufacturing enterprises, if undertaken in the right way.

In other manufacturing sections the joint stock plan prevails, and five, ten, or a hundred or more people may have their money invested in manufactures of various kinds, and thus these sections have come to the front and taken the lead. If they had depended on individual capital and individual enterprise, today they would practically be in the back ground. One industry leads to another, and that to another and so on until the town that began in an unpretentious way becomes a manufacturing centre and capital from outside voluntarily comes to it.

The result is not only the giving of employment to the people of these towns, but drawing to them men and women seeking labor. These must have houses to live in, they must be fed and clothed, and capital finds profitable investment in the building of houses, and the merchant is benefited in his increased sales of goods. Every industrious, self-supporting man or woman added to the population of a town adds something to the wealth of that town, and contributes more or less to the prosperity directly or indirectly of every one identified with it. It is to the interest of the real estate owner, the merchant, and the capitalist, to encourage manufacturing enterprises, even if they derived but a small return on the capital actually invested in them, for the benefits derived in other ways would pay handsome dividends on such investments. We want to see the day when everything the South needs will be made at home, and when her young men and young women who have to earn their bread by the labor of their hands will find abundant and profitable occupation without going elsewhere to seek it.

They say when the New York delegations were besieging Mr. Cleveland about the Federal appointments in that State, he swore a great big oath. Well, if he did, it must be remembered that these are very warm days in Washington, and that running the gauntlet of rival New York factions is not calculated to increase Presidential piety.

The languishing condition of the business industries of the New England States is illustrated by the fact that the semi-annual dividend on bonds and stocks, payable in Boston, aggregate $10,014,753, while the dividends from manufacturing enterprises foot up only $382,000, the smallest semi-annual dividend for years.

Secretary Manning, in the Kellar case, showed that he was a bigger man than his First Auditor Chenoweth or Congressman Warner.

The New York World's Bartholdi pedestal fund amounted Thursday to $89,647.67, contributed by 99,789 people.

THE FOURTH.

This is the grand day when the American eagle is turned loose and screams his loudest scream, and the small boy turns himself loose, and fires his pop cracker with patriotic ardor, while his older brother, who has passed the period of pop cracker, etc., manifests his love for freedom by liquid remembrance of the men who pledged their lives and sacred honor and backed the pledge with musket and ball during the revolutionary scrimmage. Whilst having passed the pop cracker age, and not relishing the eagle screaming oratorical performances over much, nor altogether in love with the liquid way of attesting devotion to the memory of the fathers, we like this day and like see it heartily and unambiguously celebrated. It wakes up old memories, calls the attention of the young to the grand characters of the past, stirs up the patriotic members, brings the different members of the American household nearer together, and makes them feel more like one people with one grand ancestry, one grand country, and one grand destiny. In this spirit let the day be celebrated, wherever it is celebrated, and that ought to be everywhere where two or more Americans are assembled.

The Supreme Court of California has decided that ex Senator Sharon has a right to appeal from the decision of the lower court in the Sharol-Hill case, and has ordered a stay of alimony pending hearing of the appeal.

The nomination of a State ticket by the Prohibitionists of Ohio adds somewhat to the roughness of the sailing before candidate Foreaker.

It is much easier for the man who is on top to stay on top than for the fellow who is down at the bottom to get up.

Gold and Silver.

Washington Critic.

The treasury gold fund rose steadily during the month of June, although the predictions of the financial press had been to the contrary.

The monthly loss of gold which had become so serious a matter was reversed and the fund rose from $114,000,000 to nearly $120,000,000. The result goes far to quiet the fears of those who had predicted disastrous results of the continued silver coinage during the present summer, and gives the new treasury officials confidence in the soundness of the policy which they have adopted. The central idea of this policy is that the outstanding silver currency is so widely scattered through remote regions and the outstanding gold so largely concentrated at the financial and business centres, that if the treasury department carefully avoids the unnecessary issue of silver certificates and succeeds gradually in getting out its large fund of fractional silver, the government receipts will necessarily be very largely in gold, and its equivalents and the gold fund will be steadily increased.

The change in the character of the customs payments is already very apparent, the results gratifying and the conclusion logical that as the silver in the treasury approaches $70,000,000 the proportion of gold in the government collections must steadily increase.

The Decline of French Cooking.

Paris Correspondence London World.

I do not know a single restaurant in modern Paris where you may go unannounced and be absolutely sure of having a delicate and faultless dinner. This statement may seem to be sweeping, but am speaking from experience, and even in the three most famous and most expensive establishments of Paris I have souvenirs of unartistic cooking, coal-fire roasting and economical sauces. French cooking nowadays, both in restaurants and in private houses, with very rare exceptions is lacking in imagination; the carte is limited; you get the same dinner everywhere and you feel that you are in the hands of a cook who has studied a couple of years, mastered a dozen recipes and then taken a place of chef. Formerly, in the classical days of French cooking, a chef would study fifteen or twenty years before he would venture to preside over the saucapans of a grand seigneur or of a renowned restaurant.

A Sad Social Humor.

Providence Journal—Rep.

It is rumored that the objection to Mr. Kelley at Vienna comes from the Italian Ambassador, who is an illegitimate son of Victor Emmanuel. Perhaps the Ambassador thinks that his own presence at the Austrian Court is sufficient evidence against his father, without the testimony of Kelley.
