THE INDIAN QUESTION.

President Cleveland and the cabinet seem to grasp the true inwardness of the Indian troubles on the frontier. An investigation by General Sheridan shows that most of the trouble comes from the fraudulent leases of the grazing lands in the reservations by cattle men, and from the frauds practiced upon the Indians, as well as upon the government, by the thieving agents. These have been in the habit of adding largely to the number of Indians said to be resident upon the reservations, and of drawing the annual supplies for this increased number, thus deriving a handsome profit for themselves, by the sale of the surplus. The first cause the administration has taken steps to abate by the proclamation of the President ordering all cattlemen on these reservations to remove their herds of cattle, horses, and other property within forty days. This is striking direct and shows that Mr. Cleveland thinks the Indians have some rights that the cattlemen are bound to respect.

The next thing in order will be to pick up the swindling agents and send them to rusticate in some penitentiary. Then we will hear less about Indian outbreaks and the butchery of unoffending settlers on the frontier.

AN AGRICULTURAL FIELD CONTEST.

The National Cotton Planters Association proposes to hold in the autumn of 1885, commencing November the 9th and continuing one month, near some city in the cotton States, an agricultural field contest, in which it proposes to award premiums aggregating $200,000, the object being to bring prominently before the Southern planter and public the improved methods and diversified farming and to force them more quickly into practice.

It is proposed to have there on exhibition and in practical operation all the machinery and implements of different kinds used on the Southern cotton plantation, farm, manufactory, gin house, &c., thus giving the the Southern agriculturist and others opportunity of comparison and selection.

The association will require a subscription of not less than $50,000 from the city competing for the location and as much more as may be bid by any other city, and asks also contributions from merchants, manufacturers, planters and others interested in the progress of Southern agriculture.

An old friend of Gen. Grant says no one ever heard him utter an oath. The nearest approach he ever made to profanity was when, unusually ruffled in temper, he gave expression to an emphatic "dog-gone it," which he would rip out with an earnestness that made it amusing.

The ginseng plant is highly prized in China as a medicinal herb, a sort of panacea, but especially as a tonic in cases of debility. Within the past ten years $6,000,000 worth of it has been exported from this country, nearly all of it to China.

There is a bill before the Georgia Legislature to establish a technical school as a branch of the State University, tuition to be free to all students who are residents of the State of Georgia.

Mr. C. L. Webster, the publisher of Gen. Grant's book, says that the proceeds to Mrs. Grant will be from $300,000 to $500,000.

It will be interesting to Henry Gebhard to know that English lords are punching each other's heads about Lily Langtry.

A movement is already on foot in New York to erect a magnificent monument to the memory of General Grant.

The new "census" of the Cheyennes and Arapahoes just taken at Fort Renc. I. T., shows that the two bands number 4,469 souls. In 1874 the enumeration showed a total of 6271, and it was upon that basis that the rations were issued for more than a decade, the loss to the Government being between ninety and one hundred thousand dollars. It is safe to say that at four out of every five of the agencies like shameless swindles have been going on for years and years.

Work on the new Catholic University at Washington will begin in the fall. In addition to the $300,000 donated by Miss Caldwell, $200,000 more have been subscribed with which to complete the buildings. It is proposed to raise the sum to $1,000,000 by subscriptions, the $500,000 thus raised to be used as a fund for the endowment of the different chairs.

A Remarkably Successful Operation.

A short time since we noticed the performance of a difficult surgical operation in Philadelphia in which a tumor was removed from a man's face, which comprised the removal of all the bones of the right side of the face below the eye and above the neck. A surgical engine, with a speed of 15,000 revolutions per minute was used to cut away the right side of the nose, the maxillary or jaw bones and the ethmoid or base of the vault of the skull. One surgeon held the eye in place while the other held the base of the brain. The place left vacant by the removal of the tumorous bones was filled with sponges, and the flesh and skin was drawn back and sewed fast to the other side of the face by fifty stitches. Three days after the operation the pins which held the upper lip together under the nose and many of the stitches from other parts were removed and the face was found to be but little disfigured. The patient was then able to move about the ward. He now dresses and ascends the stairs without assistance. His eye is uninjured, and has all its normal actions. The tumor removed from the face, when placed under the microscope, showed that it contained spindle and giant cells, the latter resembling osteoclasts, which are found where the bone is being absorbed or broken down. The tumor would be classed as a myeloid sarcoma.

The Indian's Thirst for Blood.

Colonel Royall, of the army, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune is one of the best known Indian fighters in the service. He is here on leave, his health being much impaired by many years life on the frontier. Speaking of the present disturbances and the love for murder which every Indian seems to possess in a greater or less degree, he said: "I once asked a remarkably intelligent Indian, who was known to have killed a white man some years ago, why it was that his race enjoyed so much going on the warpath and killing people. The conversation which ensued ran something like this, the Indian beginning: "Did you ever shoot a rabbit?" "Yes." "Did you ever shoot a deer?" "Yes." "Didn't you get more fun out of killing the deer than the rabbit?" "Yes, I guess so." "Well, there's a heap more fun for an Indian to kill a man than a deer."

"That was Indian logic, and pretty good logic, too, I should say," Col. Royall remarked, and added: "My experience has been that the minute an Indian sheds human blood, it seems to affect the whole tribe the same way that the smell of blood would a pack of wild beasts. It intoxicates them. They become devils. They are bereft of all reason. They must satisfy their lust for murder, and the settlers on the trail they make their victims."

The Emma Mine.

The Emma Mine scandal has been revived by a suit in the United States Circuit Court at Chicago by James E. Lyon, one of the original stockholders, against Robert Chisholm, also an original stockholder, to recover $100,000 damages for default of contract. Before the contract of the Emma Mine Company passed into the hands of Minister Schenck, Senator Stewart and T. W. Park, Lyon owned $800,000 of the stock and Chisholm $1,000,000. Schenck, Stewart and Park are charged with having bought up this stock for forty cents on the dollar, when it was selling for $1.50 in London. Chisholm and Lyon pooled their issues and brought suit against the company for the difference between the prices they received and the market value, and contracted for a division of what should be recovered. Lyon charges that Chisholm sold him out and settled with the company, by which Lyon was unable to secure a settlement of his claim. He had been paid $150,000 for his stock, and claimed to have been defrauded out of $650,000.
