THE NEW SILVER BILL.

Text of Mr. Warner's So-Called Compromise Measure.

The following is the text of Mr. Warner's new silver bill which he will introduce in the next Congress: A BILL TO PROVIDE FOR THE ISSUE OF TREASURY CERTIFICATES ON DEPOSITED SILVER BULLION AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That any holder of silver bullion may deposit the same with the treasurer or assistant treasurer of the United States in amounts not less in value than $10, and receive therefor certificates in denominations of $10 and multiples of 10, prepared as now provided by law for United States notes. Such certificates shall be receivable at par in all parts of the United States for customs, taxes, and all other public dues, and may be deposited by national banks for the redemption of the circulating notes, and shall be a legal tender in payment of all debts and demands owing by the United States, except where payment in coin is expressly stipulated. They shall be redeemable on presentation at the treasury or sub-treasury in the city of New York in lawful money, or, at the option of the secretary of the treasury, in silver bullion at its market value at the time of redemption.

Sec. 2. The value or ratio to gold at which certificates shall be issued on silver bullion deposited under this Act shall be its actual ratio or market value at the time of deposit, to be determined by the secretary of the treasury for each calendar month by taking the average selling price of silver bullion, as expressed in gold dollars, in the open market in New York City during the preceding month, which price so determined shall be the value or ratio to gold at which certificates shall be issued during the succeeding month. Or the market value may be determined for each day as follows: The value or ratio to gold at which certificates shall be issued on silver bullion deposited under this Act shall be its actual ratio or market value at the time of deposit, to be determined by the secretary of the treasury for each day by taking the mean selling price of silver bullion in the open market in New York City in gold dollars on the first preceding day on which actual sales were made. Or substitute London for New York, and deduct from the London price the cost of transporting silver bullion between New York and London. The price at which silver bullion shall be delivered in the redemption of certificates shall be the price at which at the same time it is being received, provided that certificates shall not be issued on silver bullion at a value above the ratio of silver to gold as now fixed by law for standard gold and silver coins; and if at any time silver bullion rises to a value equal to the ratio of the two metals in existing standard coins, then any holder of silver bullion may, at his option, receive certificates for it as provided in this Act, or have the same coined at that ratio into standard dollars or half dollars of the weight hereinafter provided, on the same terms and conditions as provided by law for the coinage of gold; but if hereafter the ratio of silver to gold in standard coins shall, by law or international agreement, be changed, then this provision shall be made to conform to such new ratio.

Sec. 3. That the silver bullion deposited under this act shall be received subject to all the provisions of law as to assaying, melting and refining, when below standard, casting into ingots or bars, the same as if deposited for coinage; provided, that coins struck at European mints and ingots and bars made by melting down such coins, shall be excluded from the provisions of this act.

Sec. 4. When any of the certificates herein authorized are redeemed in silver bullion they shall be cancelled and destroyed, but certificates which come back into the treasury by being received for customs, taxes or other public dues, or in exchange for lawful money, shall not be cancelled, but shall be held as cash, and may be re-issued or paid out again as current money for all debts and demands owing by the United States, except where payment in coin is expressly stipulated.

Sec. 5. That on the taking effect of this act the monthly coinage of silver dollars under the act of February 28, 1878, shall be stopped, and in lieu of such monthly coinage of silver dollars the secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized and required to cause the coinage from time to time of standard silver dollars from bullion deposited under this act, in amount sufficient to supply any demand that may arise for coined dollars for circulation, or that may be required to pay coin obligations of the government, provided that, concurrently with the coinage of any silver bullion for which certificates have been issued under this act, the secretary of the treasury shall cause to be destroyed certificates equal in value to the bullion so coined at the time of its deposit.

Sec. 6. There shall be no further issue or re-issue of five dollar national bank notes, nor of one and two dollar United States notes; but notes of larger denominations may be issued in place of the five dollar national bank notes retired, and the total amount of United States notes, as now fixed by law, shall be kept up by substituting notes of a higher denomination for one and two dollar notes.

Sec. 7. In addition to the denominations of silver certificates provided for by the act of February 28, 1878, there shall be issued in like manner, upon the deposit of silver dollars, certificates of denominations of one dollar, two dollars and five dollars, which certificates shall be similar in form and shall possess the same money functions as those of higher denominations issued under said act.

Sec. 8. Certificates issued on the deposit of coined silver shall be known as silver coin certificates, and certificates issued under this act, on the deposit of silver bullion, shall be known as silver bullion certificates.

Sec. 9. After the passage of this act it shall be unlawful to issue treasury certificates on deposited United States notes.

Sec. 10. That all half dollar pieces struck since 1853, now in the treasury, or hereafter received into the treasury, shall be melted down and recoined into half dollars, weighing 206 1/2 grains each, and such recoined half dollars, together with half dollars struck before 1853, shall be legal tender in all payments the same as standard dollars.

Sec. 11. That the act approved June 9, 1879, providing for the redemption of subsidiary or fractional coins, is hereby repealed.

Sec. 12. That until January 1, 1888, the coins known as trade dollars shall be receivable at their face value for all dues to the government, and exchangeable, when presented at the treasury or sub-treasury in New York, or at any of the mints, for standard dollars. The trade dollars so received shall be melted down and coined into standard dollars or half dollars of the weight provided for in this act, as the secretary of the treasury may direct.

Sec. 13. That there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, sufficient money to pay the expense of certificates to be issued under this act and the coinage and recoinage of half dollars and standard dollars provided for in this act. And this appropriation shall stand as a permanent appropriation.

Sec. 14. This act shall take effect —, 1886.

A LONG-LOST DAUGHTER.

Abducted Many Years Ago and Now Discovered by Her Father.

A Pawtucket (R. I.) special says: Among the many young women employed in the large Conant Thread-Works none was more generally liked than Mary Garrity. She was supposed to be an orphan and very poor, having no relations but an aunt and a brother who worked as a laborer in Natick, Mass. She had been in the mill since she was a little girl, and all were acquainted with her story—of how her mother died when she was young, and that her father had deserted her and her brother, and had perished in a strange land. Yesterday morning, while at work, message was brought that two gentlemen wanted to see her. In surprise she went down stairs, and in a few minutes later the superintendent of the mill was astonished to see her in the arms of an elderly, handsome man, who was crying bitterly as he held her in his embrace. The news spread that Mary's father had come to life and was going to take her to a rich home. The story was soon told how Mr. Garrity, nearly twenty-five years ago, had been cruelly robbed of his children by a designing relative. Soon after the death of Mary's mother her father, whose former domestic relations had not been pleasant, married an old acquaintance, which so incensed his former wife's relatives that they determined to have revenge, and so, while he was out on business one day, a sister of his first wife took the children away and he found them absent upon his return. Mr. Garrity made a fruitless search for them, and in despair he went West, locating in Chicago, where he prospered. By accident he heard some days ago that working in a mill in Pawtucket was a young girl whose name was Garrity, and who was said to have been deserted by her father when young. He took the first train East and discovered Miss Garrity's whereabouts. She had been brought back to Pawtucket by the aunt after Mr. Garrity went West, and the story of his desertion and death was made up to deceive the girl. The recognition was mutual, as any one could see the great resemblance between the father and daughter. From a mill-girl Miss Garrity has become an heiress, as her father is wealthy. The dazzling prospect has not turned her head in the slightest degree, and congratulations are being showered upon her from all sides. Mr. Garrity intends taking up his residence in Boston. He left last night to meet his son in Natick, who is married and living in humble circumstances.
