The Senate and Confirmationt .. The Vance Reception at Henderson, Etc Etc.

Correspondence of THE OBSERVER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.-Varicus opinions are expressed as to what the Senate will do in the matter of con firmations. Several Republican Sevators have discredited the reports that there was to be wholesale or considerable objection to the Presi dent's appointments. It is said by Democrats that the Senators of the Democratic Administration, and can not therefore oppose factiously such cognizes as fitting and proper Undobt edly, however, there is a strong partisian feeling among the Republicans which may be sufficient to override all considerations of private or public policy. Many arguments, too, l'e on that side, and it is not regarded among, shrewd Democrats as unlikely that a large number of the nomi nations will be hung for a long while and some indefinitely. Nevertheless, the opinion that the President holds the rains and knows how to handle them, prevails where his character, and abilities are rated at their true mark. It was said in a conver sation this morning that Mr. Cleveland would certainly use his advantage. He would send in a suitable name, and if rejected he would send another, and so on; and finally, if the Senate were obdurate he would fill the vacancy with his own party men. at the end of the session. As the law was amended for Grant's special benefit a Democratic President is by no means at the mercy of a Republican Senate. The Republicans found it impossible to enact a tenure of office law which would inure wholly to the advantage of their party at every conceivable turn of affairs. A caucus of the Republican Senators will soon be held. We may or may Serviau forces at Dragoman today not then know what to expect. The the weather permitting. Both sides Democratic Senators are not annoy. ed at the prospects. Public opinion will have much to do with the action of the opposition, and if I am not ambulance corps of both armies are misinformed it will not support a policy of partisan resistance. The breadth of mind and power of will displayed by the President commands respect more and more, and it is seen that he is not only the man above all other men for the position but that he is destined to rank with the very greatest chief magistrates of the country. His coolness under of the Bulgarian gunboats on the two fires, that of his political enemics and the cross fire of his Democratic trict. friends, who fight him at every step 'forhisown good and that of the party' excites high admiration from all gener ous minds. Some things, not now known to many persons, when published will cause the people to have a still higher regard for both the moral and intellectual qualities of their President. It will be seen that he is as bright and astute as he is wise and as devoted a Democrat as he is patriotic and high minded. Senator Ransom left for home this morning, to be gone about ten days. He says Mrs. Ransom is improved but is not entirely recovered from her accident. Mrs. Vance leaves for Henderson this evening. There she will be joined by the Senator. From private letters I learn that the reception by the people of Henderson to Senator and Mrs. Vance next Monday, will be an by Mr. Coxan. I herewith attac a letter from J. exceedingly cordial and impressive event.

Gentlemen; Having noticed in this morning's Sun your advertisement concerning the Hauan's Waukenphast shoe sold by you, I cannot refrain from expressing, unsolicited, my satisfaction with a pair which after a year's almost continuous wear, I am just about discarding. I had been ac-customed to having my shoes made to order, pay-ing from $9 to $13a pair for the same. Last sum-mer.-I mean a year ago--wishing for a pair of shoes at short notice for a trip to the mountains, I atepped into your establishment and purchased a pair of Hanan's. For esse and comfort on long tramps in the country I have never had their equal on my feet: while for durability they come about as near to the Irishman's idealas any-thing I ever saw. He said he "didn't care what kind of shoes he had so long as the uppers were indestructible and the solar were made of eter-nity." They have worn out the second sole and
