THE DEATH OF VICE-PRESIDENT HENDRICKS.

The wires yesterday announced the death of Thomas A. Hendricks, Vice-President of the United States at his home in Indianapolis, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. It was a sad surprise, as he had been in excellent health up to yesterday, and there were no forebodings or anticipations of this sudden summons of the Reeper.

The brief announcement by wire states that he attended a reception the evening before, in the morning complained of feeling unwell, grew worse until five o'clock in the afternoon, when he died, it is stated from paralysis of the brain. For more than a quarter of a century Thomas A. Hendricks was a conspicuous figure in the politics of his State and country, a recognized leader of his party in both, possessing the personal magnetism to win following and the power to hold it after it was won.

In 1876 he had been a popular candidate for the Presidency, having a strong support in the successive Democratic conventions, but expediency dictated the selection of the candidate from other States than Indiana, and twice, in '76 and '84 he received the nomination for Vice-President without his seeking, and twice elected. With Tilden he was defrauded out of his seat by the action of the eight-to-seven commission, but with Cleveland the choice of the people was vindicated and he went in.

Man proposes, God disposes. We know today. Tomorrow is among the mysteries. Men build, God breathes against them and the airy castles fall. Nations, like men, are influenced and have their destinies shaped by the events of a moment, sometimes apparently insignificant. The death of such a man as Thos. A. Hendricks would at any time be a national loss, but in the present situation of the political parties in this country there is no telling what the unraveled skein of the future may bring, as a consequence of it.

PROHIBITION CARRIES ATLANTA.

Result of the Election in that City Yesterday—Prohibition Majority 227. ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 25.—10:30 p. m.—The election held in this city today resulted in a victory for the prohibitionists. The majority for prohibition is 227. J. C. S.

THOMAS A. HENDRICKS.

News of His Death Received at Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 25.—On the receipt of the news of the death of Vice-President Hendricks, President Cleveland called a meeting of the cabinet to take proper action. Several cabinet officers and Senators being interviewed expressed deep regret at the announcement as a national loss. A meeting of Senators will be called and suitable action be taken to have the Senate represented at the funeral. The government will be officially represented.

A Recount of the Ballots Ordered

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Judge Pendergast in the county court this morning decided it would be proper to open the ballot boxes and count the ballots cast for mayor last spring, and to submit the result of the recount as evidence in the contest now pending in that court as to the right of Carter H. Harrison to hold the office of Mayor of Chicago. This is the point contested by the attorneys for Mayor Harrison and insures an immediate recount of ballots.

CONGRESSIONAL RULES.

Orders for the Joint Guidance of Senators and Representatives. Washington Cor. Philadelphia Times. If the House of Representatives enters in earnest upon the revision of its rules, as it is expected to do at the beginning of the coming session, the subject of a code of joint rules for the government of transactions between the two houses of Congress is likely to be an element of the discussion. The Senate, by a vote of 50 to 4, declared several years ago that there were no joint rules in effect and formally notified the House of its action; notwithstanding which, however, the House, under an old ruling of its Speaker, has held to the theory that the old code of joint rules would remain in force until abrogated by the action of the two houses. Since that time matters between the two houses have been, by the tacit concurrence of both, arranged in accordance with traditional usage or by specific agreement to meet special necessities.

The necessity for a code of joint rules has, in the opinion of Senators, become graver with each succeeding session. Two years ago, after revising its own code of rules, the Senate took up a resolution reported from its committee on rules, which embodied a carefully digested code of joint rules, and after full discussion agreed to the resolution and sent it to the House for concurrence. The latter body caused the resolution to be printed in the usual way and referred it to its committee on rules, but no further action was taken upon the subject. Owing to the habit of the House of Representatives of putting irrelevant legislation upon regular appropriation bills—a practice against which the Senate in its own rules has regularly set its face—several of the regular appropriation bills last session became issues between the two houses, the discussion and settlement of which consumed much time and gave rise to no small amount of vexation and ill-feeling.

In every instance but one the Senate maintained its ground to the end, and only relented in the one instance because of the representations of its own members that the legislative rider in question embodied legislation the passage of which was sorely needed and could be secured in no other way. The new code of joint rules proposed by the Senate contains an emphatic prohibitory clause directed against "general" or irrelevant legislation upon appropriation bills, and the temper repeatedly manifested by the Senate during the last session indicates a probability that the days of legislative riders upon appropriation bills are past.

It is understood that the proposed code of joint rules will be reintroduced in the Senate by a member of the committee on rules and again tendered to the House. The attitude of the Senate upon this question is, in fact, one of the strongest of the influences which inspire the present movement to secure a revision of the rules of the House. The latter body having almost no other method under its present rules of reaching action upon the many important matters which press upon its attention toward the close of a session than to affix them to appropriation bills, which necessarily have precedence, a revision of its rules becomes almost imperative in view of the prospective loss of this privilege.

TOO BUSY FOR BUSINESS.

A Texas Landlord Who was Deeply Interested in His Newspaper. Says the Chicago Ledger: A traveler landed at a wayside tavern in Texas early one morning, and after sitting around without discovering any signs of breakfast until an appetite like a mustard plaster began gnawing he walked up to the landlord, who was behind the counter bent nearly double over a newspaper, in which he was tracing the lines of a thrilling romance with his forefinger as he puffed away at an old cob pipe.

"What time do you have breakfast?" he said. The landlord groaned, but did not look up. The traveler raised his voice a notch or two and repeated: "When do you have breakfast?" The man behind the bar never moved. The traveler thumped on the counter with his knuckles to attract attention, and again said, much louder than before: "When do you have breakfast?" "Beh?" said the landlord, with his face still buried in the newspaper. "When do you have breakfast?" "Most every day." "Is this one of the lucky days?" "Beh?" "Are you going to have breakfast to-day?" "I reckon more'n like we will." "How soon do you suppose it will be ready?" "I don't s'pose nothin' about it." "What's the reason you don't?" "Coz I don't know."

"When do you generally have it?" "When the coffee biles." "Has the fire been started yet?" "I don't know nothin' about it." "What's the reason you don't?" "Coz I don't care a cuss." "See here old man, ain't you the landlord?" "I reckon mabbe I am." "Well then, I'd like to have you tell me who's running this tavern." The old man raised his head, gave the stranger a look that made his flesh creep, and said: "Well, sometimes the niggers run it; sometimes the old woman gives it a whirl; sometimes the cussed thing sorter wobbles along for itself, and then again sometimes I gives it a hist myself, and every once in while some lantern-jawed, knock-kneed son of a tiger like you comes along and wants to try his hand at makin' it spin; but about the time he gets to shootin' his mouth too free he takes a notion to go out to the horse trough and soak his head, and after that he'll alluz meek enough to mind his own business for a spell. What in the name of Tom Scott do you want, anyhow? Can't you keep your coat on till I strike the end of this yer piece? I want to find out what the blazes they're goin' to do with that old pirate I've been worryin' about for the last two months, now that they've ketched him at last. You're not ridin' on the keers now, go what the use o' bein' in a sweat?" Just then a darky "stipped into the back yard and began poundin' a joint of stove-pipe with a broken broom handle.

"Does that mean breakfast?" inquired the stranger in a humble voice. "I shouldn't wonder a darn bit," returned the landlord, as he plunged it to his paper.

HANAN'S WALKINGFAST.

WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT THE HANAN SHOE.

No. 31 & 33 Park Row, New York, Sept. 23, 1885.

MESSES. ROGERS, PEET & CO.,

Gentlemen: Having noticed in this morning's Sun your advertisement concerning the Hanan's Walkingfast shoe sold by you, I cannot refrain from expressing my unqualified satisfaction with a pair which after a year's almost continuous wear, I am just about discarding. I had been accustomed to having my shoes made to order, paying from $9 to $13 a pair for the same. Last summer I mean, a year ago—wishing for a pair of shoes at short notice for a trip to the mountains, I stopped into your establishment and purchased a pair of Hanan's. For ease and comfort on long trips in the country I have never had their equal on my feet; while for durability they come about as near to the Irishman's ideal as anything I ever saw. He said he didn't care what kind of shoes he had so long as the uppers were indestructible and the soles were made of copper. They have worn out the second sole and the uppers are still perfectly sound and whole. I am glad to add my testimony and wholehearted recommendation to the Hanan's or any member of your firm, and you are at liberty to make any use of this communication you may see.

Respectfully Yours, MORTIMER LIVINGSTON

HUMILIATING Eruptions, Itching and burning Skin Tortures, Loutsome Sores, and every species of Itching, Scaly, Pimples, Inherited, Scrofulous and Contagious Diseases of the Blood, Skin and Sores, with Loss of Hair, from infancy to old age, are positively cured by CUTICURA the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally.

COVERED WITH SORES.

I have been afflicted since last March with a skin disease the doctors called Eczema. My face was covered with eruptions, and the itching and burning were almost unbearable. Seeing your CUTICURA REMEDIES so highly recommended, concluded to give them a trial, using the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally, and RESOLVENT internally, for four months. I call myself cured, in gratitude for which I make this public statement.

Mrs. CLARA A. FREDERICK, BRADDOCK BROOK, CONN.

SCALP, FACE, EARS AND NECK

I was afflicted with Eczema on the Scalp, Face, Ears and Neck, which the doctor, where I got your REMEDIES, pronounced one of the worst cases that had ever come under his notice. He advised me to try your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after five days' use of your scalp and part of my face were freed of their crust, and I was able to go back to my work to my ears, neck, and the other part of my face cured.
