CONGRESS YESTERDAY.

VERY LITTLE DONE BY THE SENATE.

Silver Before the Committee—Action Not to be Taken Before February 10th.—Canada's Bond Filled—Boutelle Again.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 27.—SENATE—A resolution offered by Ingalls was agreed to, directing the committee on Library to consider the subject of placing in vacant niches of the Senate Chamber and corridors the busts of Vice Presidents of the United States and Presidents pro tempore of the Senate.

Harrison's substitute for his original resolution of inquiry as to the administration of the pension office was taken from the table and withdrawn.

The Electoral Count bill came up in order, but was laid over until next Monday on account of the absence of Edmunds and other Senators interested in the bill.

Harrison called up the bill for the admission of Dakota. The bill having been read, Harrison addressed the Senate in its support.

Butler several times questioned Harrison upon points made in his speech, and when Harrison had concluded, Butler took the floor to reply. He yielded, however, to a motion for executive session, which was agreed to.

When the doors were reopened the Senate adjourned.

The Senate confirmed the nomination of Ex Gov. Bloxham, of Fla. to be Surveyor General of Florida; J. G. Harris, Register of Land Office, Montgomery, Ala., and a large number of postmasters, none of whose predecessors had been "removed" or "suspended."

In executive session of the Senate today, Morrill, from the finance committee, offered two resolutions which, under objection from the Democratic side, were laid over for today.

They were in substance like that offered by Edmunds on the judiciary committee on Monday. One directs the Secretary of the Treasury to send to the finance committee the papers on file in the treasury department relating to the administration of office of collector of internal revenue for the district of West Virginia, by Samuel P. McCormick.

McCormick was suspended last spring, and John T. McGraw was nominated in his place. McGraw's nomination was not acted upon by the Senate during the called session and he was nominated last December.

The other resolution directs the Secretary of the Treasury to send to the committee the papers on file in the department relating to the appointment of D. Frank Bradley to be collector of internal revenue for the district of South Carolina, vice Ellery M. Brayton, suspended. Nomination was made on the 16th of last December.

HOUSE.—The Senate resolutions touching the death of Vice President Hendricks were presented to the House, and on motion of Holman of Indiana, was laid upon the table for the present, and Holman gave notice that on Tuesday next he would ask the House to consider a similar resolution.

The House committee on coinage, weights and measures today began the consideration of the silver question. The whole subject was discussed in an informal way, and while the members spoke more freely than heretofore, they did not state their views specifically, but in very general terms.

The following resolution was presented by Lanham, of Texas, during the session of the committee: Resolved, That it is the duty of the committee on coinage, weights and measures, as early as a day as practicable, to report to the House a bill for the free coinage of the standard silver dollar.

Scott, of Pennsylvania, thereupon presented as a substitute for this resolution, the following: Resolved, As a sense of this committee, that the best interests of the country cannot be promoted by any bill now before the committee looking to the free coinage of silver.

Hynum, of Indiana, also presented a resolution on the subject, which read as follows: Resolved, That it is the sense of this committee that the laws regulating and providing for the issue of gold and silver certificates should be so amended as to provide for the retirement of the same and for the issue of coin certificates in their stead.

No action was taken by the committee upon any of these resolutions nor do they elicit a distinct expression of views from any of the members. It was resolved that the question should be further discussed and opinions sought from different persons interested in the question until February 10th, when the committee will proceed to consider the distinct propositions now before them.

The bond of Mr. Canda, assistant treasurer at New York, did not reach the treasury, as was expected, and Treasurer Jordan is still detained in New York. This circumstance and the sickness of Assistant Treasurer Whipple has considerably embarrassed the operations of the Treasury for several days past.

were also sent to Canada to qualify as once so as to be able to take formal possession of the sub-treasury to-morrow morning.

Boutelle, of Maine, rising to a question of privilege, quoted from the remarks made some days ago by Wise, of Virginia, denying that the dry dock at Norfolk had ever been destroyed.

Cabell, of Virginia, called attention to the fact that his colleague was not in the House, to which Boutelle replied that what he had to say was simply in vindication of himself and had nothing to do with the gentleman from Virginia. (Wise.) He did not intend to attack any gentleman, in that gentleman's absence.

Boutelle continuing, said that the remarks which he had quoted had been telegraphed all over the country and his (Boutelle's) statement to the contrary had been widely advertised upon.

Herbert, of Alabama, made a point of order that the gentleman had not stated anything which entitled him to the floor on a question of personal privilege.

Boutelle, in speaking to the point of order, repeated that the advertisement had not been made upon his intelligence and veracity. He did not exaggerate in saying that a number of publications had assumed that the statement he made had convicted him before the House and country of having trifled with the House and having at least connived at the gross falsification of what ought to be a matter of familiar history.

In vindication of his veracity of his good faith as a member of the House; in vindication of representations made by him; he desired to have printed in the Record some brief citations, setting forth the fact of the destruction of the Norfolk Navy Yard, by the rebels on the 10th and 11th of May, 1863.

After some further discussion as to Boutelle's right to proceed; the Speaker held that he was not so entitled, as nothing that had been said by Wise attributed any improper motive to Boutelle.

Hammond, of Georgia, suggested that the gentleman from Maine appeal in order that he might see how unanimously the House would sustain the speaker.

Browne, of Indiana, suggested to Boutelle that in view of anxiety manifested by the other side to get at the facts he should ask unanimous consent to proceed.

McMillan, of Tennessee—"That will not be granted in the absence of Mr. Wise."

Browne—"Nor in his presence, either."

Cabell—"If the gentleman wants a new trial at the proper time it will be granted."

Wise, of New York, from the committee on military affairs reported the bill to aid in the erection of a monument to Gen. U. S. Grant in New York City, which was referred to the committee of the whole. It appropriates a half million dollars to become available when the New York local monument society shall have raised one half that amount.

The House proceeded to the consideration of the bill, declaring forfeited certain land grants to the States of Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana to aid in the construction of railroads.

The bill is identical with that passed by the House in the 48th Congress. But the committee on lands recommends an amendment excepting the Gulf and Ship Island road of Mississippi from the operations of the bill.

Debate continued in an uninteresting manner, no opposition being offered to the bill and discussion hanging entirely upon the propriety of exempting the Gulf & Ship Island road from forfeiture.

Van Eaton, of Mississippi, strongly advocated exemption and stated that the whole question relative to that road could be thoroughly discussed when the bill now pending in the committee extending the time within which the road may be completed, was brought before the House.

The question being on the amendment of the committee excepting the Gulf & Ship Island Road it was rejected. Yeas, 87; nays, 178.

Holman offered an amendment that the lands restored to public domain shall be subject to entry and entered under the provisions of the homestead law only, provided, however, that if the sales of any of such lands have heretofore been made by the United States, such sales are hereby confirmed. The amendment was adopted and the bill as amended, passed. Adjourned.

SCHOONER WRECKED

Off the North Carolina Coast.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The signal corps station at Washwood's, N. C. reports an American two-masted schooner, Jennie Beasley, with guano from Clark's Cove to Wilmington, N. C., came ashore one mile north of life saving station No. 7 at 7 p. m. yesterday. The vessel and cargo is a total loss. All hands, including one lady, were saved by the crew of life station No. 7.

OHIO.

The Political Battle in the Senate.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 27.—At 10:30 a. m., the Democratic caucus sent a communication to the Republican committee asking that they submit their proposition for the conference in writing, setting forth the leading objects of the same.

BILL NYE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Address to Lecturers, Amateur Prize Fighters and Banjo Players. (Boston Globe.)

[The following quibbles are excerpted through the columns of the Globe because they did not contain stanzas. People who the awake nights trying to think of difficult questions to ask these whose time is taken up, forgetting at the same time to include stanzas for reply, should be rebuked. I now take this method of revenge in the following cases.—B. N.]

CALLER.—Your calling cards should be marked as to size and neatly engraved, with an extra-fourth.

IF asking there are two important things to be considered: First, when to call, and, second, when to rise, and bring on the door handle. When make one-third of the call before rising, and then complete the call while airing the house and holding the door open, while others consider this low and vulgar, making at least one-fourth of the call in the hall, and one-half between the front door and the gate. Different authorities differ as to the proper time for calling. Some think you should not call before 3 or after 5 p. m., let if you have had any experience and had ordinary sense to start with, you will know when to call as soon as you look at your hand.

AMATEUR PRIZE FIGHTERS.—The boxing glove is a large upholstered buckskin mitten, with an abdominal thumb and a string by which it is attached to the wrist, so that when you feed it to an adversary he cannot swallow it and choke himself. There are two kinds of gloves, viz., hard gloves and soft gloves.

"He exceeded me in brute force."

I once fought with soft gloves to a finish with a young man who was far my inferior intellectually, but he exceeded me in brute force and knowledge of the use of the gloves. He was not so tall, but he was wider than myself. Longitudinally he was my inferior, but latitudinally he outstripped me. We did not fight a regular prize fight. It was just done for pleasure. But I do not think we should abandon ourselves entirely to pleasure. It is enervating, and makes one eye swell up and turn blue.

I still think that a young man ought to have a knowledge of the many art of self-defense, and if I could acquire such a knowledge without getting into a fight about it I would surely learn how to defend myself.

The boxing glove is worn on the hand of one party and on the gory nose of the other party as the game progresses. Soft-gloves very rarely kill any one, unless they work down into the bronchial tubes and shut off the respiration.

LECTURER, New York City.—You need not worry so much about your costume until you have written your lecture, and it would be a good idea to test the public a little, if possible, before you do much expensive printing. Your idea seems to be that a man should get a fine lithograph of himself and a $100 suit of clothes, and then wear his lecture to fit the lithograph and the clothes. That is erroneous.

You say that you have written a part of your lecture, but do not feel satisfied with it. In this you will no doubt find many people who will agree with you.

You could wear a full dress suit of black with propriety, or a Prince Albert coat, with your hand thrust into the bosom of it. I once lectured on the subject of phrenology in the southern portion of Utah, being at that time temporarily banished, but still hoping to tide over the dull times by delivering a lecture on the subject of "Brains and how to detect their presence." I was not supplied with a phrenological bust at that time, and as such a thing is almost indispensable, I borrowed a young man from Fremont and induced him to act as bust for the evening. He did so with thrilling effect, taking the entire gross receipts of the lecture course from my coat pocket while I was illustrating the effect of alcoholic stimulants on the raw brain of an adult in a state of health.

You can remove spots of egg from your full dress suit with ammonia and water applied by means of a common nail brush. You do not ask for this recipe, but judging from your style, I hope that it may be of use to you.

P. D. Q.—The oyster of the Pacific coast is the only thing that the Pacific coast people do not brag over. This bivalve is a small drab insect, with a strong desire to run largely to gizzard. He is unostentatious in his home life, and in stature about the height of a pressed peanut. The oyster of the Pacific coast lives to a great age, and never murmurs or repines. It is the party who eats him who repines.

They are not good with oil. I speak of this because I have tried it, and when I acquire an important fact I love to give others the benefit of that fact. Oil is a good thing to pour on a troubled water, I am told, but if you pour oil on a troubled oyster you will regret it after you have eaten it.

JAMES.—Yes, you may learn to pick the banjo without a master, if you adhere to it. Take your banjo for two or three hours every day, go into a second-hand tomb, which you can get no doubt at reduced rates, and there you may commence with yourself and pick your banjo with much pleasure. Care should be taken, however, to avoid picking the banjo before it is ripe. Good-bay, James. Write to me whenever there is anything comes up in your young life which you do not understand. If you want to borrow money at any time, and you can't get it anywhere else, and I happen to have it and cannot force it upon my creditors, come right to me with your trouble and I will give it my attention.

He Bought Beer From Her Mother. (Storyteller.)

Old Commodore Vanderbilt, who married a tavern-keeper's maid, was sitting on the piazza of a Saratoga hotel beside his daughter, who was arrayed in silks and diamonds, when an uncouth, poorly-dressed old chap came along, and saluting Vanderbilt with "Hello! Commodore, how are you to-day?" came on the piazza and shook hands with him.

The daughter drew her elegant dress hastily aside as he approached, as if in fear of contamination, with a look of utter disdain. After the aged visitor had chatted a moment and passed on, the daughter said: "Why, papa, how could you recognize that dingy-looking old man in this public place?" "Bliss your heart, dear," said the commodore, "he used to buy beer of your mother before you were born."

Two Correspondents Answered.

MARTIN E. TURNER, Texas.—The poem to which you allude was written by Julia A. Moore, better known as the Sweet Singer of Michigan. The last stanza is something like this: "My childhood days are past and gone, And it fills my heart with pain, To think that youth will never more Return to me again."

And now, kind friends, what I have wrote, I hope you will pass over And not criticize as some has hitherto here—before done."

Miss Moore also wrote a volume of poems, which the farmers of Michigan are still using on their potato bugs. She wrote a large number of poems, all more or less saturated with grief and damaged syntax. She is now said to be a fugitive from justice. We should learn from this that we cannot evade the responsibility of our acts, and those who write obituary poetry will one day be overtaken by a boisterous sleuth-hound, or a Siberian Nemesis with two rows of teeth.

LEONORA VIVIAN GOBE, Olsson's Forks, Ariz.—Yes, you can turn the front breeches, let out the tucks in the side plaiting and boots on a new dragon where you caught the system show in your lap at the party. You could also get trusted for a new dress, perhaps. But that is a matter of taste. Some dealers are wearing their open accounts this long winter and some are not. Do as you think best about cleaning the dress. Benzine will sometimes eradicate an order stew from dress goods. It will also eradicate every one in the room at the same time. I have known a pair of rejuvenated kid gloves to break up a funeral that started out with every prospect of success. Benzine is an economical thing to use, but socially it is not up to the standard. Another idea has occurred to me, however. Why not rip up the skirts, catch the selvage, readjust the box plait, catch the crown about, fit down the gorges, sandpaper the gaiters and discharge the doorman. You could then wear the garment anywhere in the evening, and half the people wouldn't know that anything had happened to it.

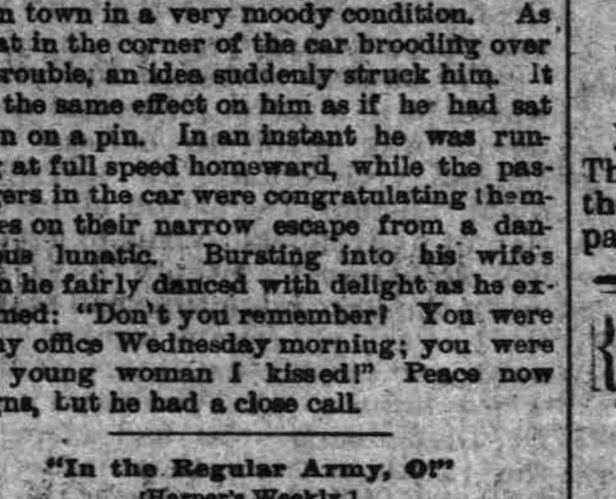

It Looked Squally for a While.

(The Louisville Post.)

A young lawyer, who has been recently married to a beautiful belle, was made the victim of a malicious anonymous letter that might have resulted seriously to his domestic happiness. It seems that the young man had made an enemy of a man who has an office near that he can at times overlook his movements. A few days ago the young man's bride received an anonymous letter saying: "As a new groom as your husband ought not to have a young lady call on him in his office, and he ought not to take her in his arms and kiss her. Wednesday, 11:15 a. m." The young wife was almost heart-broken. She cried until her eyes were red, and when her lord came home upbraided him bitterly. She showed him the letter, and as he didn't have any explanation but a denial, matters began to look very interesting around his home. He couldn't think who would tell such a falsehood about him, and he started down town in a very moody condition. As he sat in the corner of the car brooding over his trouble, an idea suddenly struck him. It had the same effect on him as if he had sat down on a pin. In an instant he was running at full speed homeward, while the passengers in the car were congratulating themselves on their narrow escape from a dangerous lunatic. Bursting into his wife's room he fairly danced with delight as he exclaimed: "Don't you remember? You were in my office Wednesday morning; you were the young woman I kissed! Peace now reigns, but he had a close call!"

"In the Regular Army, Or"

(Harper's Weekly.)

Would-be Recruit—Now, Mr. Sergeant, you've told me all about the pay and clothing, and all that. How is it about the grub—the food, you know?"

Sergeant—Well, that depends largely upon where you go. If you fine my battery—thank you for the Fifth—doesn't you, for you'll find it out soon enough. "Sergeant, your battery you'll be compelled to stay very mince pie cowid."

A Variation of the Compass in Georgia.

(Lawrenceville Ga.) Herald.

In the early history of Gwinnett two neighbors disagreed as to their land lines, and agreed to have the dividing line settled by the county surveyor. This surveyor was fond of his today, a fact not unknown to one of the parties in interest.

On the day the line was run one of the parties notified the surveyor that just behind a tree to which he desired him to run was a bottle of old corn liquor, and if he happened to hit that tree the bottle was his. Strange to say, the surveyor hit that tree centrally. To do this it was necessary to make a curve, but this was not hard to do, and when the other party protested that the line was not a straight one, the surveyor silenced him with the remark that it was necessary to angle a little to meet the variations of the compass.

The line was duly established, and to this day it stands as the dividing line between two tracts of land. It is needless to say it is not a straight line, but it has been duly surveyed, and "that do settle it."

A Texan Home.

(Storyteller.)

When Mr. Morton was minister in France, he was entertaining a party at dinner, among whom were several English swells and that great American raconteur, Tom Ochiltree. One of the Englishmen had described the Duke of Westminster's place as being remarkably large and beautiful, when Tom broke in with: "Why, that's nothing. A friend of mine in Texas has got a place a thousand miles square, and a house as big as a hotel. He met me walking about the house one day, and said: 'Hello! Tom, where do you come from?' 'Why, old man, I've been staying with you for two weeks. It was a fact; we hadn't happened to meet before.'"

"Have a picture book, sir?"

ENGLAND.

The English Cabinet to Resign.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The meeting of the cabinet today lasted an hour. The situation was fully discussed and it was resolved that the ministers should at once resign. The Marquis of Salisbury sent a special messenger to Osborne to inform the Queen of the decision of the Cabinet.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The defeat of the government last night has left all the political parties in the House of Commons in a state of chaos and may result in the dissolution of parliament and an appeal to the country.

DUBLIN.—The Freeman's Journal is jubilant over the defeat of the Government in Parliament, and says: The action of the leaders of the National League in defeating the Government emphasizes the fact that there is a new force in politics which parliament has to consider.

The Irish Times says the Parnellites rely for help on Mr. Gladstone alone. They believe that he will make them an offer looking to the settlement of the Irish question.

LONDON.—Mr. Gladstone held a conference this afternoon with Lord Granville in relation to the resumption of office by Liberalists. The Marquis of Salisbury will have an interview today with Mr. W. H. Smith, who was yesterday sworn in as Chief Secretary for Ireland.

A meeting of the Cabinet will also be held today, after which the ministers will proceed to Osborne to place their resignations in the hands of the Queen. The crisis excites but little interest among the general public. Everything is quiet, and commercial and financial markets but slightly weaker.

RAILROAD COLLISION.

ATLANTA, Jan. 27.—The pay train and the material train on the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad collided today near McPherson. The engineers and firemen of both trains were hurt. Supervisor Perry was also hurt. Nobody killed.

A Correction.

AUGUSTA, GA., January 27.—Recent letters published in the Washington, Ga., Chronicle, from members of the Democratic State Executive Committee upon the subject of the civil service law, were erroneously credited to the Augusta, Ga., Chronicle in a news telegram on the 26th instant.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Mill Weavers Paid Off.

FALL RIVER, Mass., January 27.—The King Phillip Mill weavers met at the mill gates this morning and were paid off. None returned to work.
