

CONGRESSIONAL LAYINGNESS

The average member of Congress seems to think he has no mission on this earth but to do his best to spend as much money as possible.

It has been announced in the newspapers that the expenses attendant upon the burial of the late Senator Miller, of California, will amount to $30,000, all of which will be paid by the government.

This amounts to four years' salary. Mr. Hahn, of Louisiana, a member of the House of Representatives, died last Monday, and as is the custom, his body is to be accompanied by a committee from both the House and Senate.

Sensors Eustis, Vance and Butler are the committee on the part of the Senate to discharge the solemn duty of burying the dead Representative, and assist in running up Congressional expenses.

To give the readers of THE OBSERVER some idea of how these expenses are made, we copy below some of the expenses paid for the burial of the late Senator H. B. Anthony, of Rhode Island.

He died something over a year ago, and dying at home, the expense in his case was probably as small as it is ever likely to be on the occasion of the burial of a Senator or Representative.

We give only the expenses of the Senate committee. There was a like committee from the House of Representatives, and if they spent as much as did their Senatorial colleagues, it helps to swell the sum.

Let us see what it cost to bury Mr. Anthony, as recorded in pages 108, 109 and 110 of the report of the secretary of the Senate for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1885:

THE CUNARD LINE. Up to the sinking of the steamer Oregon, last Sunday, it is said the Cunard line never lost a steamer. We believe the company was organized about 1844, and they have about a dozen steamers plying between American and European ports. The average capacity of their steamers is about 1,000 passengers, and in fifty years the Oregon is the first steamer of the line to sink at sea. In all this time, it is said, they have never lost a passenger. The 596 passengers on the Oregon had a close call, but they got safely to New York on the friendly steamer Fulda, which arrived just in the nick of time.

Two Knights of Labor Fined. GALVESTON, TEX., March 17.—A special to the News from Waco, says: Great interest was exhibited about the court room yesterday during the progress of the trial of Murray and Jas. A. Anthony, two Knights of Labor arrested on the night last, on a charge of malicious mischief in disabling a freight locomotive on the Mississippi Pacific. The engine was pulling the last freight train which reached this point from Fort Worth. The locomotive was "killed" in the presence of several persons, near the depot at Killebrew, and the progress of the trial with the keenest interest, and when the jury entered and the foreman read the verdict, "guilty as charged," the Knights exhibited surprise. The punishment was assessed as a fine of $100 each. The counsel for the Knights have been instructed to move for a new trial, and if this is refused to appeal the case. The Knights claim, in as much as no permanent injury was done to the property, the offence does not come under the statute. Citizens outside the circle of the jury, who were not present, but that they desire these particular Knights punished, but as a wholesome precedent indicating the purpose of the authorities to punish the offences under the State law.

The New York Cotton Market. NEW YORK, March 17.—C. L. Green & Co's report on cotton futures says: After considerable hesitation the market finally closed 2 points higher than the previous day. The market was steady. Liverpool, and pretty much all the other States, had a spirit of a favorable showing. Southern markets were more active and better, and the bears, while exhibiting no special alarm, were sufficiently intimidated to cover a portion of their long positions, which the bull element was unable to work to advantage.

Edmunds Cornered. Back denied this. The records and public papers, he said, showed three nominations of Duskin, and it was because the Senator from Vermont knew that he was unworthy that the papers were asked for; because he expected to entrap the department. Edmunds insisted that the Senator from Kentucky was out of order, and asked the Chair to decide the question.

The Chair was of the opinion that the Senator from Kentucky could not be held in contempt, but he repeated his statement, as to what the Record and public press would show—that the Senator from Vermont did not see fit to act on the nomination. Edmunds again insisted that the Senator was out of order, and asked the Chair to enforce the rules.

The Chair stated that the Senator from Kentucky had an undoubted right to refer to public facts, and that he had, and that tomorrow he would prove public facts by the press of the country, and also prove by the records of the House of Representatives, which were public, that Duskin was an utterly unfit man to hold the place from which he was removed, among other reasons, because of his conduct in the case of the Vermont marshal, and that the Senator from Vermont himself knew the facts, and that he could produce the records from the Attorney General's office, and the Vermont Attorney General, Brewster, verifying the facts stated by him (Back). He hoped also in executive session to get the vote of the Senate to compel the Senator from Vermont to produce evidence which he had before his own committee, and to show Duskin's unfitness. He hoped to prove that this effort to make an issue in regard to Duskin was because the Senator from Vermont believed that the case so far as the Democratic administration would be glad to prove how bad he was, and then the Senator would claim it as a precedent in good cases. "And I hope to prove," continued Back, "that the Vermont case is not a case of a flourish of trumpets—I will not say what I expect to prove—for I could not do it, perhaps, in parliamentary language."

Edmunds said he would have to be held entirely in silence what the Senator from Kentucky had stated in regard to affairs in executive session, "I feel bound in honor," he said, "not to make any allusion to the conduct of the Senator from Kentucky, but I will say that a faithful performance of his duty as a Senator, according to the regulations of the Senate that are made under the constitution, if the Senator from Kentucky thinks it is honorable to do so, is a duty which he has taken place under any circumstances. Edmunds moved to go into executive session, and when the galleries were cleared and the doors closed, Back offered a resolution that the injunction of secrecy be removed with regard to papers in the hands of the judiciary committee relating to the case of the Senator from Kentucky, and that he wish to refer under the impulsion passed upon his honor by the Senator from Vermont, and wished to show to the public that he had good grounds for all he had asserted.

Edmunds' intention to cast any aspersions upon the honor of the Senator from Kentucky, whom he held in the highest esteem. (Clerk proposed an amendment to the resolution of the Senator from Kentucky, providing that the resolution should not take effect until the Attorney General or President should have sent in the papers in the case. The resolution and amendment were referred to the committee on judiciary.

A motion was entered to reconsider the vote by which R. S. Dement was confirmed as Surveyor General of Utah. At 6 p. m. the doors were reopened and the Senate adjourned.
