amid a chorus of suppressed laughter from the galleries. Since writing this I learn on the highest authority the following facts: For two months the Ways and Means committee has been in consultation with Mr. Randall. They have had his suggestions, and from time to time have made alterations in the draft of the bill to conform to these. In fact, it is stated that every one of Mr. Randall's propositions have been agreed to. He is now asked if he will support the bill thus constructed. He has not replied. The bill of Gen. Cox, heretofore printed in this correspondence, was reported yesterday favorably. The report is brief, but interesting as a compilation of facts and a statement of reasons for a re-classification. It

The committe have had this bill under consideration, and find that the present classifications of the vathe present classifications of the various department clerks of the government are based upon the salaries paid; that the salaries paid are not the same in the different departments for the same kind of work, and frequently there is a wide difference in the salaries paid for the same class of work in the same department. This, of course, should be remedied as far as possible. All compensation should be uniform in the saveral departments and offices for doing work of the same kind.

partments and offices for doing work of the same kind.

The clerks of the several departments were first classified in 1818, and the work of the departments continued under suck classification up to 1853, with minor changes in 1837.

In 1851, the Senate adopted a reso-lution directing the several heads of the departments to report to the next session of Congress some plan for classifying the clerks in their departments, for approportioning their sal-aries according to their services, and for equalizing the salaries of the clerks of the same grade in each of the departments; and also some plan ments, as it is hoped will be attained by this bill. By the act of March 3rd, 1853, the clerks were arranged into four that, there would be precedents in classes, whose annual salaries were the service pensions paid to soldiers to be $900, $1,200, $1,500 and $1,800. This act was amended in 1854 when the classes were arranged with the following salaries: Class 1 was fixed $1,200 per annum class 2,$1,400; class 3, $1,600; class 4, $1,800. Since then there has been no material change in the classification, not-change in the classification, not-withstanding the great augumenta-tion of the civil service employes.

It is difficult to account for this omission; and it is submitted that if the public affairs are to be conducted, on a business basis, such a classifica-tion as is contemplated by this bill should not be delayed.

The present bill is more compre-hensive and complete in its provis-ions than any similar measure here-tofore presented. It not only em-braces the hitherto classified service, but contemplates an investigation and report upon the employment of nearly all of the Government em-ployes at Washington. It seeks to discover what the defects in the ser-The Charlotte Observer. One of the chief abuses believed to One of the chief abuses believed to exist under the present system is the inequalities of salaries paid tor performing the same character of work. Another is the furlough and substitute system, which they are informed is most difficult to regulate. This bill contemplates the employment of supernumerary clerks, who shall be at the disposal of the different departments to fill temporary vacancies by ments to fill temporary vacancies by absenteeism from any cause, and who can be utilized to relieve any department from an unusual stress of work. A similar class is already provided for in the letter-delivery system, and proves very effective. A recommendation for a similar class of clerks is made by the Secretary of the S ate for the consular service.

There is another important object which will be accomplished by a proper classification and arrangement of the clerical force of the Government. It is this: Instead of Congress making an appropriation in gross for the employes of a departs ment of whose compensation they are ignorant, it would be enabled to provide so many clerks in class one, two, three, etc., and could approxi-mately ascertain the necessity for the appropriations it is making, and restrict a discretion on the part of a department officer, which has hereat the last session, that at the right he would be found advocating tariff tofore, in some instances, been used. adjustment, are remembered, as well The composition of the Commis-sioners is thought to be most judici ous. Three of them are selected from private life, and are, therefore, free from any predilections arising from employment in the Departs ments, while the two selected from the Departments will contribute the experience arising from the practical details of their office. This Commission is to make its report to the President in time for its transmission to Congress at the beginning of the next session. In order that it should be thorough comprehensive and complete, time and great care will be indispensable for its preparation. Hence the delay is believed necessary. The committee is of the opinion that great good can be accomplished under the provisions of this bill, and therefore reports it to the House with a favorable recommendation.

Mr. Henderson thinks that the inv ternal revenue legislation proposed by Mr. Reid and himself will be favorably reported, at least in part. Every consideration, he observes. would urge the passage of the bill permitting the judges to let off offenders. There was a time when such extreme penalties were deemed necessary. That time has passed and the time of mercy and moderation

In regard to the education bill he is still sanguine. He thinks that the practice of referring bills to other committees than the one appropriate for the subject matter has a fixed hold upon the body, but admits that there is a possibility that the Speaker will rule that this was irregular, the point not having been made. Mr. Henderson thinks that if the Speaker does not rule adversely the friends of the Blair bill will have enough men at the start to get the bill referred. Mr. Henderson urges among other points, the following, very strongly: He claims that the measure is not only shown to be constitutional by the practice of parties in the past, especially the surplus bill of 1637, but that if the money is not sent South for this statesmanlike purpose it will be spent in increasing pensions already large and go to en-
