WHAT HELL IS.

The Swedenborgian Idea of the Place of Everlasting Torment.

"What People do in Hell," a ser-mon by the Rev. Jabez Fox, was read before the Swedenborgians at their morning service yesterday. Accord-ing to Mr. Fox hell is an organized society, having laws and officers, and divided into separate communities or states, as the kingdoms of men in this world are. He says: "And we know hell must abound with shrewd, cunning, scheming men, who would form governments for their own in-terest and aggrandizement. Then if one joins himself at last to some society of devils in one of the hells, it is from choice. And the Lord final ly permits it because, with the char-acter he has formed by his evil life in the world, it is better for such a one to be with his like. He would be more miserable to live among the angels. It is true, the life of an evil spirit in his own world is, in comparison with heaven, most wretched and miserable and full of pains and torments; but it is the best of which the evil spirits are capable. In the true light of heaven, the state of the lost appears as it really is; and thus it looks just as low and sordid and dreadful and painful and hopeless as it really is; and the evil spirits look as mean, foul, base and deformed as they truly are. In hell everyone acts from the to be with his like. He would be more In hell everyone acts from the love of self; and so every one antagonizes every other, and would do harm rather than good, if an external force did not prevent. So hell is governed by force; and evils are vio iently repressed. If they were not society would be utterly destroyed. To compel unwilling obedience, terrible punishments are inflicted, and the most vindictive cruelty is shown. The evil spirits are as busy as men in this world are, and there is active, social life, and a very ancient aristoc racy, and in all this, ambitions and jealousies and rivalries, beyond what we have any idea of; and bickerings and contentions, and never any peace, rest and security. The people there are the bad from this world, with all their evil aggravated and let loose; and it is easy to see how they can make a perfect hell." SAM JONES BEFORMS.

CHICAGO, March 27. - While the two Sams have been trying to do something for Chicago in a moral way, Chicago has done something for the two Sams. A fortnight ago Sam Smalls publicly approunced that he would smoke no more cigarettes, a form of vice which had subjected him to a great deal of criticism. But Sam Jones continued to smoke his corn-cob pipe and chew his Navy twist Tonight, however, at the end of his sermon, Sam Jones renounced tobacco in every form amid applause greater than has marked any of his much-applauded sermons. After remarking that he consecrated himself to God thirteen years ago, Mr. Jones

"Down in my country I have never been in a soul's way that I know In a hundrad different instances I have been notified that a habit that you are given to is a stumbling block to souls in this city, and I want to say to this congregation tonight, from this day till we meet up in heaven, you can tell this world that Sam Jones has got no hab it that is a stumbling block to anybody. For your prayers and for your smypathy I am grateful, and if I don't do any good in Chicago let Chicago thank Go I Almighty she has done the poor little pale southern preacher some good for the balance of his life."

Important Customs Decisions.

Acting Secretary Fairchild Monday decided two questions which have been the subjects of controversy for a long time. One was in regard to the classification of donskol wool, in which he sustained the appeal of the importers. Mesers. Wood and Payson, who claimed that the wool is son, who claimed that the wool is simply washed wool, and as such is dutiable at the rate of 21 cents per pound, instead of being scoured wool, on which the duty is at the rate of 71 cents per pound. The other averaged to the rate of 71 cents per pound. The other question was in regard to the proper classification of pieces of blocks cut from mother of pearl, which are used in the manufacture of knife handles, etc., and which have been classified at the port of New York as "parts of shell manufactured." The acting secretary holds that as the pieces really represent mother of pearl which has not been advanced beyond the process of cutting, they are free from duty.

The Acting Secretary of the Treasury has not fied the collector of customs at New York that the departs toms at New York that the department concurs in the opinion of the Attorney General that imported goods, wares and merchandise, the product of manufacture of the United States, under section 2500, Revised Statutes, liable to a duty equal to the tax imposed by the internal revenue laws, are entitled to the priv ileges of the warehouse system in all cases where the original exportation of the goods from the Umted States had been made in good faith.

The bill on civil service reform, introduced by General Cox, was reached just fifteen minutes before the hour for the consideration of such measures was exhausted. In this time the bill was read and General Cox began his speech. He said that the bill was the unanimous act of the committee. It was framed on the Ladies', Misses'and Children's plan not interfering with the law of 1883, and he stated that in no single' particular did it so interfere. man in the Senate today who wears a swallow-tail coat at all times is Senator Conger, and he is perhaps the most Democratic in manners of that body. Warner Miller has on clothes which would not be out of place were he at the head of a grocery store. They are business clothes of rough brown goods, and Mr. Milter's collar is tied with a soft-blue polka dot necktie. Senators Morgan and Butler are both well-dressed Southern men; still, their coats are black diagonal cutaways, buttoned high at the front by a single button, and neither of them showing as atom of shirt. Stanford, the milhenaire from California, is dressed in a business suit which could be duplicated for $40, and his eyes are covered by glasses with rubber rims. John A. Logan wears a turn-over collar and black clothes. His raven hair kisses the collar of a black brondcloth, double-breasted frock coat, the skirts of which are very full, and the buttons seldom fastened. Walthall, Lamar's successor, dresses like a business man. He is tall and thin, and his blue and white necktie is not tied, but is fastened by a gold rim through which it is drawn. Like the most of the Southern men he wears boots, and, as a rule, you will find these only used at present by statesmen from the South and West. The dandy of the Senate is Matt. Bansom.
