WASHINGTON NEWS.

THE TARIFF BILL NEXT WEEK.

Bennett, Cowles and Green in the Middle of the Jargon of the House-Personal.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 18-The Democratic party here is in a better condition than some of the news from this point represents. There is a good deal in what Mr. Morrison says in today's Post. The Republican party has no special motive for gaining control of the House three years before the great election of 1888. A victory is not always a safe thing in politics. To remain in oppositon two years longer would suit the programme of the shrewdest Republican leaders much better than to take possession of the elephant before the proper dispositions for his retention have been effected. This may be said: The Democrats will make every possible effort to keep a major ity in the House of Representatives. Everything at present indicates that there will be a determined effort by the Democrats. I learn that the Ways and Means Committee will probably bring up the tariff bill next week. The idea is to let the appropriation bill go through the House and then while PINE BOOTS AND SHORS OF ALL GRADES recently passed, to debate the tariff measure without risk of prolonging in the committee say that it is all the stronger by the quiet recently observed. They think the programme above outlined can be car-

On the Blair bill requiring the common schools to teach the deleterious efforts of the use of alcoholic spirits the N. C. delegation was thus divided: Ayes—Messrs Henderson, Johnston, Reid and Skinner were no; Messra, Bennett, Cowles, Green and General Cox did not vote. The Woleries, waved their handkerchiefs on the announcement of the vote, a large majority in favor. The hall was in the greatest confusion when O'Neill moved to suspend rules and set a day for the consideration of labor bills, including the education measure; Some of the ablest Democrats were as unable to control themselves as the weaker vessels. Randall endeavored to bar out the education bill by a legislative trick. Mr. Johnston tried to get the Speaker's ear three or four times. He, Col. Cowles and Mr Randall, had an excited conversation which could not be heard, while the vote was being taken. In the explanation it appeared that the committee on labor had finally sacri ficed the education bill by omitting it from the order proposed. Mr. Willis accepted the situation, but Messrs. Dunn, Johnston, Cowles and others fitt, if his father had come. When protested, and a scene ensued. A sharp collegey between Randall and Cowles, and between Johnston and subsidy propositions of the Senate on the post-office appropriation bill, but that the item providing a fast mail to Cuba will be adopted. When the session of Saturday closed the point of "no quorum" had been made by Mr. Cowles on the Indian commission bill. He had proposed an amendment the object of which was to confine the duties to be discharged by the commission to the officers of the army and officials of the Interior Department. Col. Cowles had enforced his proposition in very practical remarks delivered at different times during the afternoon's debate. No action was taken. Col. Cowles' reasons were the greater efficiency of the officers named over persons from civil life, as suggested by Mr. Holman in the bill, and, the increase of expense, about $10,000, which the Colonel thought unnecessary and wasteful. Col. Cowles appears very well in running debates. Col. Cowles on the passage of the urgent deficiency bill today, called for the yeas and nays, his purpose being to produce a quorum. He made that point and the Speaker appointed tellers. Judge Bennett, Mr. Johnston dent Davis. Mr. Davis told him that a special point to have them fresh by getting them and another member voted with Col. Cowles. Finally a quorum was had and the bill passed. Judge Bennett introduced a bill today to repeal section 3415 of the Re-dised Statutes. Gen. Cox and Mr. Johnston introduced bills.

Judge Bennett's bill is to repeal the 10 per cent. tax on issues of State banks. The section proposed to be repealed is as follows: "Every national banking association, State bank or State banking association about the time that the Cape Fear defences fell into the hands of the Federals. Capt. Maffit, with the Owl, succeeded in getting safely into the Cape Fear river one night about Call 81.

sociation used for circulation and three days after the forts had been captured but after getting inside he found out the position of laffairs and Mr. Reid introduced a bill provide ing for leave of absence for employes of the Burean of Engraving and Printing. Heretofore these, the hardest worked, perhaps, of all Government servants, have not had the privilege of a vacation enjoyed by the sinecure holders.

Mrs. Laboyteon, of Elizabeth City, who has been visiting the city for several weeks, left for home this morning. Miss J. H. Ramsay, was registered at the Metropolitan Hotel, Sunday.

Senator Hampton has just returned to the city.

POTSCRIPT.

Hitching up his suspenders, Col.

Morrison said he "wanted to hear something about education," and yielded three minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina, Col. Cowles. The latter said in a most energetic manner that he was sorry to find no more gentlemen in favor of sustaining the public schools. The Democratic party in its platforms had demanded this bill. It was so at least in North Carolina. His people were taxed to keep up the internal revenue system, which they detested and he asked that some of this money be devoted to this laudable pur-

JOHN N. MAFFITT.

An Elequent Tribute to One of the Bravest of the Brave.

It is with sincere regret that we chronicle the death of him whose name heads this article. Saturday evening, at his home in this city, as the busy week was nearing its close and the sun was sinking to rest in its western home, the spirit of this brave man and patriot went out, and to rest forever, with the God who gave it. Captain Maffitt, distinguished for his servicies in the navies both of the United States and Confederate States was the son of the famous and eloquent Methodist preacher, the Rev. John Newland Maffitt, who charmed with his rare and superb eloquence listening and admiring thousands, who hung with rapture on his lips and in whose coronal are many stars for "they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and the session. The friends of the bill they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever.

The highest praise that can be accorded any man is that he did his duty, and this Captain Maffitt did, or endeavored to do. He served his country well and faithfully, but ill did his country requite him. Like the great historic men of the world who earnestly devoted themselves to their pursuits, so woted themselves to their pursuits, so with him. the "ruling passion was strong in death." Napoleon, baffled and beaten by a continent, and expiring on a lonely isle—recalling the scen s of his former glory in his death-grapple with the insatiate Archer, cried out as his unsubdued spirit was about to take its flight "tete d'Arme." The immortal Stonewall Jackson, the Napoleon of America, as he sank to rest on the field of his fame, and amid the wails of a sorrowing people, said:

"Tell A. P. Hill to prepare for action." So this man, less renowned but equally dauntless and devoted, dreaming that he was once more on the bounding billows, exclaimed in death, "Ship Ahoy!"

And only a few days before his demise his once bright, but then beclouded intellect wandering back to other scenes and other times, he said; "The ship is ready, the sails are set, and the wind is favorable; all we are waiting for is Mr. Lam-bert to come and ask God's blessing on us; then we will heave anchor on us; then we will heave anchor and away on the billows." Mr. Lambert was his chaplain, we think, before the war, and lives, we understand, in retirement near Boston.

During his illness his mind frequently reverted to his distinguished and noble father. On one occasion he arguired of his son Mr. J. Mof.

he enquired of his son, Mr. J. L. Mafinformed that he had not he said: "Well, he will be here in a day or two and when he does come he will keep us all busy," alluding to the crowds that they would have to entertain. Then said he "he is to preach at the New Market and we must be on time if we are to get seats." God grant, and we believe, that with his eloquent and pious father he is enjoying the "pleasures evermore."

He had, for some time, been a great sufferer, mentally and physically, and en Friday, about 11 o'clock, a. m., he sank to sleep quietly and continuously until he entered upon his long, sweet, dreamless sleep.

Capt, Maffit was born at sea February 22d, 1819, on the passage from Ireland to America, and so the world was his country and to do his duty his religion. He was of Irigh average. his religion. He was of Irish extrac-tion and possessed the noble qualities which distinguish the sons of the Emerald Isle, wit, courage, generosity, chivalry, love of country. He was adopted by an uncle, who lived at Fayetteville, in this State, and when very young-but 13 years of agehe was appointed a midshipman in the U.S. Navy and was ordered to the Constitution, Commodore Elliott's flagship, then fitting out for a cruise in the Mediterranean. His first independent command was when he was ordered to the Gallatin. He was with Commadord Bache in his survey of the Atlantic coast, at Wilmington, among other points. His last command in the U. S. Navy was in the Crusader.

In 1861 Capt. Maffit resigned his command in the U.S. Navy and hasthe Confederate Government would probably not need a navy and appointed him to a position on Gen. pointed him to a position on Gen.

Charlotte Observer.

In a few months after the close of the war Capt. Maffit was in com-mand of a packet steamer running between Liverpool and Rio but soon tween Liverpool and Rio but soon threw that up and came to Wilmington, where he has spent very quietly the closing years of his eventful life. His fortune, which just previous to the war was a substantial one, was lost by the events of the war and out of the wreck he was able to save but a mere pittance. Recently hewever a mere pittance. Recently, however, a valuable residence in Washington City, which he owned, and which was confiscated during the war, had been restored to him.

Thus, one by one, like the leaves that fade and fall, the relics of the "lost cause" pass from the stage of action to join the "silent majority," and of all brave, daring men who so gloriously illustrated on lead and and of all brave, daring men who so gloriously illustrated, on land and sea, what a liberty loving people can accomplish when contending for the right none were braver and truer than the gallant gentleman who was yesterday laid to rest in beautiful Oakdale and whom we admired living and mourn dead. Peace to his ashes, honor and tears to his memory. ashes, honor and tears to his memory for a brave, chivalrous admiring peo-ple will not soon forget this veritable child of the seas and man of the bil-

More Anarchists Arrested. SAN FRANCISCO, May 17 .- Five socialists while engaged in harangueing a crowd were arrested, and charged with misdemeanor. The most prominent of them is J. P. Rudeizky, a Pole, who in his speech advocated go-ing to Nob Hill and sacking the resi-dences of Mesers. Stanford, Crocker and Flood, and distributing what money and valuables found among themselves. On Rudeizky's person was found two pamphlets written by John Most, of Chicago, entitled, 'The Beast of Property," and "total annihilation proposed as the only infallible remedy." The prisoners resisted the arrest, and the officers had to use their clubs. One prisoner, A. J. Warren, was rescued from the police by a mob, but was recaptured. The prisoners were much excited over their arrest and disclaimed the idea that they were inciting riot.
