THE INTERNAL REVENUE

HON. W. H. H. COWLES.

As a Representative in Congress, From the Eighth District, makes an Effort to Redeem the Pledge the Democratic Party Made to the People.

From the Congressional Record of May 30th.

Mr. Cowles. Mr Chairman, I desire to offer as a substitute for the pending amendment the proposition which I send to the desk.

The clerk read as follows:

At the end of section 8 add the following:

"That all laws and sections and clauses of laws imposing a tax or taxes on brandy distilled from fruit, and all laws and sections and clauses of laws providing for the collection of a tax or taxes on brandy distilled from fruit and prohibiting without the compliance of certain statutory requisitions the manufacture or distillation of brandy, be and the same are hereby repealed.

Mr. Hatch I reserve a point of order on this amendment.

Mr. Cowles. Sir, I am opposed on principle to all internal-revenue taxation. The whole system is a festering sore upon our body-politic, inseparably connected with the most distressful period in our history, and while it is continued it keeps in force a system of espionage upon the citizen in the transaction of his private business that is totally at variance with the principles of our free institutions and the motives that actuated our patriotic ancestry in their establishment. Spies and paid informers, detectives, and the destruction of private property, even under the guise of law, have never yet made or intended to make a people more honest, but on the other hand, such a system rather excites resistance to and evasion of the law, and breeds, as in a hot-bed, all manner of frauds, forgeries, and crimes, until it stinks in the nostrils of all law abiding, God-fearing, liberty-loving people, and can only be excused on the plea of dire necessity, and such necessity no longer exists.

But, sir, if it is constitutional to tax other branches of our industries—whiskey, brandy, and tobacco—why is it not constitutional to tax any? And who shall say where the line is to be drawn? Surely, sir, it is not well to exercise the taxing power for the purpose of driving out of existence or prohibiting any branch of industry, nor is it wise to tax one industry for the benefit of another. But, sir, if it is necessary in order to raise revenue to keep up this internal revenue taxation, why not have a more equal distribution of the burden. And while we impose upon other sections heretofore exempt, why not in the same bill relieve some of those that have long borne the burden alone? The whole system is wrong in principle, and capable of being excused in the most oppressive manner, and if this measure has no other effect I trust it may open the eyes of those who have not heretofore been brought face to face with the uses that may be made of it.

Now, sir, the total amount received from the tax distilled from fruit for the last fiscal year is, in round numbers $1,300 000, and the amount estimated that will be received under this act will be $3,300,000. If we are to receive this sum under this bill, why not relieve the people in the fruit growing regions of this country of the oppressive tax of 90 cents per gallon on brandy distilled from fruit? We surely can afford to give to the people $1,300,000 worth of relief if we in the same bill impose upon them $30,000,000 worth of burden in addition to that which they have heretofore borne and now bear; and I ask the gentleman who has charge of this measure to accept this amendment.

Sir, the fruit growing regions of this country are for the most part situated in sections remote from easy, quick and cheap transportation. It is impossible to market the fruit in kind, and every year when Providence blesses them with full crops in their orchards millions of bushels of apples and peaches rot on the ground because they cannot be profitably utilized and marketed. The owners of these orchards are farmers, the profits of their orchards are in many instances the only little surplus they can make, and I submit to this House if it is right and just to oppress this industry with the onorous tax long after all pressing necessity for it has passed away and fair delightful peace has for more than twenty years blessed our nation. The distillation of fruit does not affect the supply of breadstuffs by the consumption of grain, as is sometimes argued by those who favor the tax on whiskey, but on the other hand it does increase materially the purchasing power of the people by converting into money that which would be otherwise wasted. And I earnestly appeal to Representatives here to adopt this amendment, and it will be hailed as a harbinger of better times, and thousands who are now vexed by the continual presence of the tax-gatherer will raise up and "call you blessed."

Sir, I honestly believe that by a proper adjustment of the tariff all the revenue that is necessary for the proper expenses of the government can be had, and the whole internal revenue system and tax abolished; but they say we cannot do this at once; then let us commence now and here by abolishing the tax on brandy, which is the least profitable to the government of any branch of the internal-revenue tax, and which is the product of the fruit that is gathered from the trees, requiring but little extra labor or care, and the people well think that it is extremely hard that the laws of man in a free country should prevent him from making it profitable in supplying the means of obtaining the necessaries of life for themselves and families. It is the experience of the best and most observing men that live in the country where distilling is carried on, so far as my acquaintance goes, that the laws imposing taxes and special requirements do not tend to lessen the evil connected with it, or to lessen the evil growing out of the abuse of the use of liquor itself, but rather to increase them. The frauds connected with the evasion of the law are among the greatest abuses of public morals. One of the temptations of these frauds is the higher price which the article attains by reason of the tax levied by the government. Thus we have this picture, a rich and powerful government tempting by the means which it adopts in obtaining its revenues its own poor, weak, and humble citizens to the commission of crime. Now, who that is just, who that is fair, who that is honest, who that is true, and who that loves his country does not wish to see such a system abolished. Let us take the tax gatherer from the doors of our people. Let them once more feel and realize that they live in the free country of our fathers, and let us lay such a reasonable tribute upon foreign nations for the profit they enjoy in coming here and trading with our rich and growing country as will defray all the necessary expenses of our government. Let us do this instead of by extravagant legislation making necessary the present oppressive system of taxation. Now I appeal to the Democratic party to shake off the shackles of all selfish interest, and let us rise up and be more worthy of the enduring principles of the party to which we belong. Let us remove these vexatious burdens, and, returning to the people who sent us here, meet with the approval of a thankful constituency.

[Here the hammer fell.]

STATE NEWS.

Information is wanted by Mrs. McCullen, of the whereabouts of her husband, B. F. McCullen, a printer, who she mourns as dead. Any information of him will be thankfully received by his troubled wife. Papers of the South please copy. Any information of his whereabouts may be sent to Mrs. B. F. McCullen, Beaufort, N. C.

Fayetteville Gazette: Capt. A. B. Williams, Vice-President of the State Fruit and Horticultural Association, attended the meeting of the executive committee at Greensboro on the 18th of May, and the holding of the State Fruit Fair is fixed for the 4th and 5th of August at Fayetteville. Intelligent, calculating men fully appreciate the steady progress and substantial prosperity of Fayetteville and the section tributary to it.

Asheville Advance: Rev. J. L. Carroll delivered an address at the Baptist church last night to the members of the congregation, in which he defined his position on the pending prohibition question. He declared himself in favor of temperance, but said that he could not, as a minister of the gospel take any active part in the campaign now in progress for the reason that it was bordering on politics, and in his opinion outside the line of his duty as a preacher.

Mt. Airy News: We are informed that some days since Thomas Edmonds fell off a fence backwards and so injured himself that he died the same night, although at the time he fell it was not supposed that he was fatally injured, as he mounted his horse and rode two miles to a neighbor's house, when it was discovered that he was badly hurt and failing rapidly. He was taken to a room, where he died during the night as above stated. The above occurred in Eldora township, about eight miles South of Mount Airy.

Wilmington Review: With the entertainment last night the Kirmess closed, and we are glad to state that the result was a most pronounced success. The net receipts it is estimated will amount to about $400. A prize was awarded to Miss Maggie Bernard as being the best individual waiter, she having taken in $54 85 from sales made by himself. The next in point of excellence was Miss Louise DeRosset, but we failed to learn the amount received by her. The Light Infantry owe to the ladies who originated and carried forward to such pronounced success this enterprise the most profound gratitude and the citizens also are under many obligations for the privilege and opportunity of contributing through the pleasant channel of innocent enjoyment to the laudable enterprise.

News and Observer: In Wake county a young woman named Ellis Buffalo had a gun, to be used in killing snakes. She pointed it at her mother, remarking that it was not loaded. Of course it wasn't, but it went off, all the same and a handful of shot found a nice resting place in the shoulder of her mother whose name is Julia Buffalo.——Yesterday a well-known railway official stated that the survey line of what used to be known as the Albemarle & R. R. R. had been made from Nashville, through Wake to a point not many miles from and in the direction of Durham. It runs, it is stated, from Nashville, via Carpenter's Mill, near Riley's X Roads, and crosses the track of the R & G. R. R., a few miles north of Wake Forest, crossing Neuse near Wyatt's bend, and passing by Dayton. It is understood that Durham has made an offer of $20,000 if the road comes to that point.——It is understood that the plan of permitting private parties to establish the water works here the city to pay an annual rental therefor, and to have the privilege after a term of years of buying the plant, meets with favor. The idea for having the works is now well under way. The report to the aldermen next Friday will be awaited with interest.——For the outrage committed upon his daughter, John Cardwell, a white man of Wilkes county, was convicted and recently sentenced to be hanged at Wilkesboro June 17. His counsel made application to Governor Scales for respite and also commutation of sentence to imprisonment. Both applications were promptly declined and a bad man will swing June 17. Cardwell fled into Virginia and was captured, after a long pursuit, by two determined citizens of Wilkes.——The secretary of the North Carolina Press Association, J. H. Lindsay, Esq., announces that he is just in the receipt of a telegram from General Manager E. B. Thomas, of the R. & D. R. R. system, saying that he will be pleased to extend the courtesies of his lines to the North Carolina Press Association, from Goldsboro to Alexandria and return, about the 20th of June. This will enable the association to visit Washington while Congress is in session, and should be taken advantage of by all the members. The secretary is corresponding with the proper parties in Washington, with a view of getting special accommodations, and is further arranging for an excursion to the Luray caves, on the return trip from Washington. The outlook for a very large attendance continues to grow brighter and there is every indication of a fuller and more pleasant meeting than we have had for years.

COMMENCEMENTS.

NORTH CAROLINA SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

There is No Time of All the Year So Happy as the Peculiarly American School Commencement Occasion.

Raleigh Chronicle.

The school commencement invitations are handsomer each year, and there can be seen nowhere greater improvement than is making in this line of work. A few years ago a simple card, in plain letters sufficed to give notice of the date of the exercises and to request the presence of the receiver. Now—well it would take a column of the Chronicle to describe the various beautiful and artistic cards which have found their way from North Carolina schools into our sanctum this week. The highest perfection of art has been reached in this year's designs, or if not, our eyes are yet to behold strange beauties.

The commencement season—gladdest of all the year—is upon us, and the Chronicle notes the following dates for the several colleges and schools which have given us notification:

The closing exercises of Mrs. and Miss Morrow's Home School at Statesville, will be held Monday May 31st. The concert, an attractive programme of which we have received, will be held this (Thursday) evening at 8 o'clock.

D., of Virginia, the address to the Societies on Wednesday, and G. D. Boardman, D. D. of Pennsylvania, the baccalaureate sermon.

Who is Mrs. Winslow?

As this question is frequently asked, we will simply say that she is a lady who for upwards of thirty years has untiringly devoted her time and talents as a female physician and nurse, principally among children, she has especially studied the constitution and wants of this numerous class, and, as a result of this effort, and practical knowledge, obtained in a lifetime spent as nurse and physician, she has compounded a Soothing Syrup, for children teething, which operates like magic—giving rest and health, and is moreover sure to regulate the bowels, in consequence of this article, Mrs. Winslow is becoming world-renowned as a benefactor of her race; children cheerfully rise up and bless her, especially is this the case in this city. Vast quantities of the Soothing Syrup are daily sold and used here. Wethink Mrs. Winslow has immortalized her name by this invaluable article, and we sincerely believe thousands of children have been saved from an early grave by its timely use, and that millions yet unborn will share its blessings, and smile in calling her blessed. No mother has she learned her duty to her suffering little one, in our opinion, until she has given it the benefit of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. Try it mothers—try it now.—Ladies' Visiting, New York City. Sold by all druggists. Twenty-five cents a bottle.
