THEIR FIRST SUNDAY. BRIDE AND GROOM AT CHURCH.

bino del The President and Wife in Oakland -Attending Service at Garrett Memorial Church-Saturday's Fishing Party - Congratulatory Dispatches,

This ends the fourth day of the presidential honeymoon in the mountains. With the exception of the first half of the day of the arrival the weather has been all that could be wished. The absence of any of the "style" or pretension that some might expect from the Executive of a great country-has created a favorable impression. It is "Jeffersonian simplicity" in its most pronounced form. When the President and his wife feel like taking a walk they do so, and when they want to drive they gratify their wishes in that oirection Whether they are doing the one or the other, they take no pains to avoid meeting people. When they went fishing yesterday they drove. on account of the distance, and they took lines and rods like any other fishermen, but unlike a great many who indulge in that contemplative sport, they caught the fish they brought home with them. Today they attended church. Tomorrow and the next day they will do pretty much as they have done previously since their arrival. When he goes away the President will pay his bills like any other man would This is the President's idea of enjoying his honeymoon. One of the things he takes occasion to refer to at every opportunity is the pleasure he finds in his method of passing the time here, and the delightful atmosphere into which he has been transported from the close official atmosphere of Washington. Fortunately for him, and perhaps more fortunately for them, no office-seekers have yet found their way here. The President has certainly found a climate which admits of many variations. When he gets up in the morning he can walk out on his porch and with his finger write his name in the frost on his steps. A few hours later the sun takes the chill off the air, and he can take a short stroll on his grounds and smoke his Havana cigar, and meditate on the beauties of nature, and the comforts of married life, in a temperature that is only obtainable in mountainous countries. In the afternoon he can, it he sees proper, ride under a pretty hot sun and get as supbrowned as he pleases. Twilight offers an excellent opportunity for a true lover's stroll, but it would be unwise to venture out at night without an overcoat, for the warmth ceases with sunset. GOES FISHING AND CATCHES SOME. The fishing trip yesterday was about the only interesting feature of the day. President Cleveland is somewhat of a fisherman, and his usual good luck attended him. The objective point of the trip is known as Deep creek-a good trout stream about five miles back of Deer Park in a northwesterly direction. It is on the place of C. Brandt, who extended the President an invitation to make use of it during his stay here. The spot is very romantic, well wooded, and with plenty of good firm ground along the stream. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland occupied their own carriage, and Mr. and Mrs. Davis were in a separate one of their own with their little son. They took along for bait only worms, and it is said that Mr. Davis himself dug the worms that were to be impaled on the presidential hook. The start was made after lunch at Mr. Davis's cottage in the afternoon, and fully three hours were spent bobbing for the spotted The President landed twenty nice trout, some of them four teen inches long. Ex-Senator Davis asserts that Mrs. Cleveland also caught some fish but will not say how many. Altogether about forty fish were caught, and the party returned with good appetites and a fair-sized basket of trout. The President said he was very well pleased with his day's sport, and would like to try it again. He said also that he did not go so much to catch fish as to find out if there were any to be caught; "for," he remarked, "Lamont is coming up and he is very fond of fishing, and I'll try it for him " On the way back three young ladies rushed from a cottage and each presented Mrs. Cleveland with a beautiful bouquet. Both the President and his wife paid more attention this time to the possible effect of the sun. He had left his high silk hat at home and wore a gray slouch. Mrs. Cleveland wore her straw hat, the little bonnet being for the time discarded. The trout of this country are bard to get at except by permission. All the streams are owned by

The President having looked over the telegrams of congratulation received since he has been here, decid ed yesterday to give them, or as many of them as were desirable, to the representatives of the press for publication. He said he did not know how many of them were desirable, but would go over them and se-lect. Mrs. Cleveland was present and handed her husband the teles grams one by one. He read them over and selected a number. He laughingly commented on one of them, that from the Bachelers' Club of Cincinnati, which contained the word "regrets" where the others would have put congratulations. He remarked that he was a member of a bachelors' club in New York, and had a handsome gold medal which told of his connection with the organ ization. He said he supposed that now he would have to return the badge. Mrs. Cleveland looked at him, and then continued handing

The attendance of the President and his wife and party at the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian Church, at Oakland, today created quite a flut ter in that little village. It was by invitation of the pastor and ex-Congressman Hamill, postmaster at Oak-land, who is an appointee of the present administration. He is a tall, fine-looking old gentleman, with silvery white hair. Yesterday morning he drove over from Oakland with he drove over from Oakland with the Rev. Mr Foulk, the pastor of the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian Church. The gentlemen were intro-duced by ex-Senator Davis, and had a short conversation on the porch of the cottage. The President and Mrs. Cleveland had just started out for h walk, but went back to the house. The minister invited the President and wife to attend services at the church at Oakland on Sunday, and the invitation was accepted. The people turned out in large numbers today and filled the church early, a crowd being left on the outside. The first three pews were reserved for the President and his party on the right hand side of the church, though they filled only the second and third. A piece of white ribbon stretched across the entrance to the third pew told everybody

Daniel Lamont, in the ex Scrator's carriage, and Miss Lizzie Eikins, daughter of Mr. Stephen B. Eikins, Miss Florence Pettingill, her com-panion, and Mr. Jno. W. Davis, in another. Ex-Senator Davis's carriage went first, the President's naxt and Miss Elkins's carriage last. The start was made at 10 o'clock this morning, and the church was reached after a pleasant hour's drive. When the party entered the church President Cleveland stood at the entrance of the pew reserved for him until Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Lamont and Mr. Lamont had entered. The President then entered himself. Mrs. Cleveland sat at the window end of the pew and the President at the end nearest the aisle Ex Senator Davis, Mr. John W. Davis and the Misses Davis sat in the pew in front of the President. Mrs. Cleveland wore a dark blue silk dress with beaded cape and light chip hat, trimmed with white feathers. When the party were seated the choir sang 'Flee as a Bird to Yon Mountain.' The collection plates being passed around, the President dropped in a crisp five-dollar bill, and Mrs. Cleveland put in a bright silver dollar. The morning lesson was First Corinthians, 15th chapter, and the prayer of the minister, Rev. John S. Foulk, included the following: "Almighty God, from whom cometh down every good and perfect gift, bless, we beseech Thee, thy servant, the President of the United States, and be graciously pleased to look with favor upon the new relation on which he has entered, and cause Thy rich benediction to rest on the wife Thou hast given him. Oh, grant that the influence of it may be felt by the nation at large. May he thus be greatly cheered in his arduous duties, and encouraged in his faithful performance. Bless us as a nation, defend us against all assaults and dangers, against every gathering together of the froward, and every uprising of evil doers. Several weeks ago the minister had arranged that the little threemonths-old girl of Capt. Isaac Kinkendall, of Oakland, should be christened on this day. The father and mother occupied one of the pews to the right of the altar. The little one stared around with its eyes filled with wonder. The choir sang the baptismal hymn-

The riches of his grace."

The parents then took their stand in front of the altar, the minister read the usual service of such occasions, and when he pronounced the name "Frances," all supposed that it was named in honor of Mrs. Cleveland. The President and his wife both smiled It was a coincidence merely, as the minister said afterwards. The text of the sermon was from 1st Corrintbians, 15th chapter. verses 1 and 2: "Brethren I declare unto you the Gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received and wherein ye stand, by which also ye are saved if ye keep in mind what I preached unto you nuless you have believed in vain." The sermon was on the doctrine of the resurrection, and was an argument to prove that Christ died, was burjed, and then arose, The sermon occupied just thirty minutes, and concluded with the words: "God grant that in the end all who hear me may be saved through the doctrine of Jesus Christ." The President sat very upright during the sermon, occasionally resting his left arm on the back of

He prayed for the President and his wife, and that they might be continued in prosperity, and that the President might finally receive a higher reward. In conclusion he said of the President, "May be be continued in his office of this great nation." One of the hymns sung bogan, "Let everexcept by permission. Good sized lasting glory crown thy head." As the President and his party left the church quite a little knot of people collected to see him and his wife. The President stood up in his carriage and lifted his hat to the crowd, Something must have pleased him, as he smiled audibly. The party reach-ed home at two o'clock this afternoon. The church where the services took place is a neat granite structure, in Gothic style, and was built by the late John W. Garrett, in memory of his brother, Henry Gar-rett. The latter was regularly in these hills fishing, being very fond of the sport, and a cold that he caught on one of these excursions caused his death. He had always been an attendant at the Oakland Presbyterian Church and had intend ed to endow the Presbytery, but 'his death occurred before he was able to corry out his intention. Mr. John W. In reply to a question as to when he expected to leave Deer Park, the President said he did not know, but at present he thought be would be here any bills since he had been here, and intended to sign none. He repeated that he was very much pleased with his visit here, and, as he came to es-cape official business, would certainly transact none.

These, subjected to delicate chemical tests, revealed plain traces of phosphorus, and a malignant ulcer in the stomach also due to the same cause. Pr. Bowers had insurance amounting to $17,000 on his wife's life, and it was proved he had discussed marriage with another woman while his wife was lying ill. The evidence was wholly circumstantial, but Bowers' bad character and the atrocious revelations of his domestic babits led to his convictions. He received the sen-

RHEUMATIKM. Although a practitioner of nearly twenty years, ed me to produre B. B. B. for her. She had been confined to her bed several months with Rheumatism which had stubbernly resisted all the usual remedies. Within twentyfour hours after commencing B. B. I observed marked relief. She has just commenced her third bottle and is nearly as active as ever, and has been to the front yard with "rake in hand," cleaning up. Her improvement is truly wonderful and immensely gratifying.
