

APPROPRIATIONS

THE AGRICULTURAL BILL IN THE SENATE

And the Legislative Appropriation in the House—A Big Day for Points of Order.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—SENATE.—A resolution was offered by Hoar and referred to the committee on the bill.

Edwards, in opposition to the bill, expressed his opinion to the Senate that it was out of order to refer to the Senate debate to the committee.

After routine morning business Beck called up his bill to prohibit members of Congress from accepting retainers or employment from railroad companies which have received land grants or pecuniary aid from Congress.

Beck stated that he had no remarks to make upon it, and asked for its immediate consideration.

Edmunds moved its reference to the committee on the judiciary.

Beck said it would be as well to vote the bill down at once as to refer it to that committee.

Edmunds remarked that he would move its reference to the committee on finance if that would suit Beck better.

This did not suit Beck any better. The Edmunds repeated his motion to refer to the committee on the judiciary.

On this the yeas and nays were called and the motion rejected, 21 to 24.

The bill then came to a vote and was passed without record.

The agricultural appropriation bill was then taken up.

Miller in the course of some remarks on the bill referred to the ravages of the rice birds which, he said, caused a loss equal to seven million dollars in the rice crop of the United States.

The average of English sparrows, he added, were very much more than those of rice birds, and amounted to many millions of dollars yearly.

The sparrows were rapid of increase and it was believed by the ornithological association of the United States that steps should be taken to exterminate these sparrows.

This association, Miller said, which was composed of amateur scientists all over the United States was doing most excellent work in the investigation of the food habits of the birds that were injurious to agriculture.

George spoke a good word for the women's milk culture association of the United States, composed, he said, of ladies of high social position, who were endeavoring to develop a branch of industry well adapted to the women.

Dolph moved an amendment reported from the committee on public lands, appropriating $5,000 to aid in reclamation of arid regions in Washington Territory by the sinking of artesian wells.

This was agreed to after the expenditure of money to wells upon government land, the said land to be withheld from disposal until further action by Congress.

A long partisan debate arose over the Senate amendment limiting the American manufacturing material, the machinery contemplated by the House appropriation of $4,000 for experiments in the manufacture of sugar.

This was finally agreed to; the bill was passed substantially as reported from the Senate committee.

McPherson introduced a bill to increase the naval establishment. It is identical with the bill introduced by Representative Herbert in the House of Representatives.

It appropriates $64,250,000.

Dolph moved that the Senate report on the bill be referred to the Pacific forfeiture bill, and that bill be laid before the Senate.

Pending consideration of this bill Riddleberger called attention to his resolution providing for open execution of the Pacific forfeiture bill.

Since we began to consider the question whether this body was the House of Lords, or the United States Senate. No decision had been arrived at yet.

Morrill also called attention to the fact that the bill was a mutual understanding that the bill would be brought up and voted on after railroad bills were disposed of.

Riddleberger insisted on a vote on the question of taking up his resolution. The Senate refused to take it up; yeas 8, nays 32.

The Senators voting in the affirmative were Blair, Butler, Coke, Frye, George, Logan, Riddleberger and Van Wyck.

They wished to call up the bill regarding the timber culture and desert land act, but the Senate preferred to go on with the forfeiture bill.

Cockrell submitted an amendment, the effect of which would be to forfeit all lands which had not been earned within the time required by the granting act. The bill and amendments were then ordered reprinted and went over till tomorrow.

Having entered the Senate chamber the bill passed motion to reconsider, and the bill was referred to the committee on the judiciary, or employees from railroad companies that had received land grants or pecuniary aid from the United States.

Hayley entered the Senate chamber at the point of order. The Premier's statement was received with cheers.

Action of Shoe Manufacturers.

LYNN, Mass., June 10.—The shoe and leather association met yesterday evening and voted to appoint sub-committees to prepare new lists of wages in each department, covering all the prices in market.

This step is a surprise to the Knights of Labor. This shows a disposition on the part of the manufacturers to take control of affairs without regard to previous relations.

DANGER IN THE STREAM.

A Remarkable Night's Experience in the Mountains.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 9.—The most terrific and phenomenal rain that ever fell in the history of this section, occurred last night in the vicinity of Marshall and Scurry.

The correspondent was in the train which left Asheville at 6 p. m. Two small slides occurred before reaching this place. They were soon removed.

The rain descended in terrible torrents and there was great uneasiness for fear of other troubles on the road ahead.

When the train reached a point just below Marshall, a slide in front of the train stopped it. The conductor ordered the train to back to the depot.

A mountain torrent, which five minutes before the train had passed over could not now be crossed. The driftwood, trees, timber of houses, and the builders, the track and the road were all in a raging mad torrent.

It was impossible for the train to return to the depot. The roadbed is on the margin of the river, and the turnpike road between the railroad and the mountain.

The embankment next to the river, which was under it, and the conductor and passengers fled in consternation from what appeared to be the drowned train.

The water pressure was four feet deep on the track, and rising at the rate of six inches per minute. A heavy log about two or three feet in diameter was dashed against the cars, and for a few minutes the scene was one of the greatest fear and excitement.

By the most heroic efforts the construction force got the drift wood and debris from the road, which was actually melting away from the cars, and the brave engineer, Mr. Clark, drove through the turbid water to a place of safety.
