SALEM FEMALE ACADEMY. The 83rd Commencement---Brief College History-Baccalaurente

Sermon -- Sentor Essays, Etc. Correspondence of THE OBSERVER. SALEM, N. C., June 16.-This week is a very busy one in our usually quiet town, owing to the commencement exercises that are now in progress in that time-honored institution of learning, Salem Female Academy. Flowers and sweet girl graduates reign supreme, and nothing preventing, your correspondent intends to keep your readers posted from day to day with all the particulars of this truly gala occasion.

Verily does the academy command the respectful title of time-honored when we briefly glance through a portion of its past history. After several years of unsuccessful private schools, and upon urgent requests from far and near, the Moravians of Salem began a boarding school for females. The corner stone of the first building was laid October 6th, 1803. It still remains, with many additions and improvements. Ere the house was completed, four pupils arrived from Hillsboro, and the family name is still existant in that good old county. They were: Eliza Strud-wick, Ann and Eliza Kirkland and Phillips. Four others soon viz: Anna and Felicia Nor-from Halifax county; Anna Steirs, from Fayetteville, and Rebecca Carter, from Caldwell county. The new house was consecrated July 16th, 1805 Two strangers participated. They were from South Carolina, and brought their daughters the first pupils from that State, which, next to our own, has sent the most scholars to the academy. The first inmates of the new house were Principal Kramsch and family, four teachers and twenty scholars. In 1806 the first printed circular was issued containing terms and condi-tions. The several studies embraced Music, drawing and ornamental needle-work. Thus, year by year, the school in-creased, and the buildings were enlarged, until 1826, when the room companies were increased to six, and six different States were represented Several principals had up to this date assumed charge of the academy. The first, Samuel G. Kramsch, was succeeded by Abraham G. Steiner, who filled the position until 1816. His successor was G. Benj. Reichel, who died in the harness in 1833. J C. Jacobson came next, and his withdrawal to another field of labor occurred in 1844. In 1838 the pupils numbered 180, instructed by 19 was the sixth principal, and was suc-Schweinitz in 1853, whose venerable face we trust to see in our midst tomorrow. The principals of later years were Revs. M. E. Grunert, J. T. Zorn, and lastly, the present efficient gentleman, Dr. E Rondthaler, reading, writing, grammar, arithme-

assisted by Rev. J. H Clewell. On August 9tn, 1858, the corner stone of what is known as the new academy was laid, which elifice adjoins the former building, preenting a handsome appearance and affording abundance of necessary interior room. Two hundred and sixteen pupils were registered during that year. Up to the year 1856, the first half century and a little over, 124 teachers had served in the academy, only two of the number dying while thus engaged. 3,470 scholars had been registered up to that period, 12 departing this life during that lapse of time. The largest number of boarders at one time had been 230 and in the same year 315 were instructed by 18 resident teachers and 11 non-resident teachers. Eighteen out of the 36 original States had been represented by pupils during those

50 odd years. It is unnecessary to dwell further on historical reminiscences. For over three quarters of a century its 6,000 alumnæ have spread its repu-tation in every detail throughout the South and portions of the West and North, until there is scarcely a State that is not graced by one or more representatives. The academy's thorough course of instruction, acquisition of correct principles of morals and religion, the discipline and culture of the mind, healthy. physical development, domestic training, &c., &c., has justly entitled it as being, not only the oldest female institution of learning in the South, but the Vassar, of Dixie and the land of eternal sun-

It is pleasant to ruminate over those good old days, but time and space forbids. From 1804 to 1886, the academy had held its successive sessions, not even closing the doors during the late unpleasantness, when ruin and the iron hand of war held high carnival within our borders. And as we enter upon the happy close of the present session, we join the bright-faced winsome pupils with heart and soul in the many interesting and attractive features.

The exercises began promptly last Sunday, when at 10 o'clock, a. m., Dr. E. Rondthaler, the pastor and principal, preached the BACCALAUREATE SERMON. on the Moravian church to a large congregation, the young ladies occupying the central portion of the build-ing, directly in front of the pulpit. Beautiful flowers, artistically arranged, graced the rostrum and the excellent music of the church choir. directed by Prof. Fred Agthe, added greatly to the occasion. Rev. Robt. De Schweinitz, a former principal, white-haired by the frost of many winters, was expected to be present, but sickness in his family prevented, and he hopes to be with us by tomor-row, God willing.

Dr. Rondthaller, chose for his text Luke 1st chapter, xxviii verse; "And the angel came in unto her, and said : 'Hail, thou that art highly favored, the Lord is with thee; blessed art thou among women.'" His discourse was divided into four portions—faith, thoughtfulness, tenderness and feeling, and prayer. Each subject was graphically portrayed in religious as well as in practicely thousand the subject was graphically portrayed as servent girls. The assembly already and these especial virtues in the life of the Virgin Mary, were tendered as a guide to the young ladies who would soon bid adieu to school days and enter upon the several duties God would asign to them in the more real and active scenes of life. The sermon was truly a tender parting between pastor, principal and scholars, and one from which all could draw useful lessons of spiritual and moral benefit. During the sermon, extracts were read from a letter written by a venerable pupil of the Academy, aged 80 years, and probably the eldest living member of the Alumna. Her epistle expressed tender thoughts of Salem, her school life, and hoped and prayed that God's blessing would rest upon the Academy, all former pupils, the present occupants of the Academy, and upon those who will dwell in its walls in years to come. The sermon was truly a tender

The next feature of promisence was the reading of the Senior Essays, which took place in the Academy Chapel on Tue-day evening at 7:45 o'clock. The beautiful chapel was filled to its utmost capacity. The filled to its utmost capacity. The rostrum was occupied by Dr. Rondsthaler and Assesstant Principal J. H. Clewell and Rev. Robert DeSchweiser nitz, who arrived on the noon train and is the oldest living principal of the Academy. He resides at Bethle-hom, Pa., also the graduating class and the singing class of the institu-tion, the latter assisted by a number of male voices.

The Centennial of the Foundation of the Government.

WASHINGTON, June 15.-The following is the text of the resolution offered in the House by Representative He-witt to provide for the celebration of the anniversary of the foundation of the government:

Whereas the centennial anniversa ry of the organization of the constitutional government of the United States and the first meeting of Congress and of the inauguration of George Washington as Prasident of the United States, in the city of New York, will occur on the 30th day of April, A. D. 1889; and whereas it is proper that the anniversary of this great event should be properly celebrated; and whereas the Chamber of Commerce of the city of New York have already taken action looking to the celebration in the city where the Federal Government was established, therefore be it Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That a joint special committee, consisting of three Senators to be named by the presiding officer of the Senate and five Representatives to be named by the Speaker of the House, be consti-tuted, whose duty it shall be to consider in what manner the centennary anniversary of the inauguration of the Government shall be celebrated, so as to preserve to succeeding generations the memory of the wisdom and patriotism of the fathers of the republic in framing a Constitution which has secured to their descendants the blessings of liberty under which the perpetuity of the Federal Government has been firmly estab-lished through the indissoluble union of sovereign States, capable of indefi-nite expansion without impairing the right of local self-government, for which other people had struggled in vain. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Rules.

Servant Girls as Knights

Laber. St. Louis, June 16.—For some time past a number of prominent Knights of Labor organizers have been industriously at work among the servant girls of this city with very satisfac tory results to the order. A local as sembly has been organized, and they will be admitted to the Knights of numbers in the neighborhood of one hundred and fifty members, and is increasing at every meeting. The place of meeting is kept secret for the present, the principal reason being the desire of the girls to withhold their names from the public for fear that if they were known to be members of the Knights they might lose their situations. There will be admitted to the Assembly hotel waitresses also, and the combined strength of these and the servant girls will, they are confinent, bring their employers and mistresses to terms.
