MORE NEW BUILDINGS. Mr. John M. Scott to Erect Two New Stores Between the Williams-Shelton Building and the New Building of John M. Scott & Co. on College Street.

Work is to begin Monday on more new buildings on College street, where Mr. John M. Scott is preparing to erect two new store buildings in the vacant space between the new building now being erected by John M. Scott & Company and the Williams-Shelton Company. Each store is to contain two stories and basement, the dimensions being about 35x125 feet. The store next the Williams-Shelton building will be occupied by the Williams-Porter Hat Company, which at present is located on the left floor of the Alexander building on South College street. The Williams-Porter Company began their wholesale hat business last May and this new building has been made necessary by the great expansion in their business.

The store adjoining this will be occupied by B. D. Springs & Co., dealers in buggies, wagons, fauna implements, etc. The building vacated by them will be occupied by the owners, Burwell & Burns, who will take all the space in this building except the store room at present filled by the wholesale grocery of Durham & Klueppelberg.

Mr. John M. Scott will also build a large warehouse containing two stories and a basement, 35x125 feet, for the Allen Hardware Company. This building will be situated back of the Belmont Annex of the Buford Hotel. The contract for these buildings was signed yesterday, and work will commence at once. Mr. C. A. Black has the contract for the excavation and Mr. F. W. Ahrens will have charge of the construction.

Yesterday Best Cotton Day of the Season. Early yesterday morning wagons began coming in from the surrounding country and by night the receipts at the local cotton platform were 371 bales. Practically all this cotton was new, of good quality and brought 10 1/2 cents. The receipts were especially heavy towards night, 83 bales coming in after 2:30 p. m. On the same date last year 223 bales were received, bringing 9 1/2 cents.

The receipts for the past week were 922 bales, the prevailing price being 10 1/2 cents. For the corresponding week last year, the receipts were 1,219 bales, the price taking several drops during the period of seven days.

HEART SECRETS.

The Tale of a Reporter's Wanderings.

Yesterday noon a reporter was walking down South Tryon for exercise and for whatever else the gods might send. Two or three hundred yards beyond where the houses drop off in quality, in the neighborhood where carpets are hung on the front banisters, to sun, he noticed two little coons on opposite sides of a big white rooster, which stood panting in the middle of the street.

"Are you trying to drive him somewhere, or trying to catch him?" the reporter inquired.

"Before the coons had time to reply, their employer spoke up. "Trying to catch him," he volunteered.

The boys headed him back and forth across the street. A spotted cur came up and offered his services, but the boys discouraged him with rough words.

"What'll you give me for him?" asked the man, in friendly fashion.

The reporter sauntered over that way and cast his eye up to the glaring sign above the awning: "S. L. Hoover, Spot Cash Store, Geo. H. Marks, Manager. "I dunno," he replied cautiously.

"Of course this bartering came to nothing, for what does a newspaperman want with an old red-eyed, white Shanghai? But it led to a lot of talk.

The boys caught the old rooster and bore him in on top of the coop. A young man and a pretty girl drove by and said:

"Married?" asked the reporter.

"That's what they are. That fellow had to fight hard to get her. He thinks is much of her as she does of him."

"Why did he have such a fight? Were there others in the ring?"

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Marks, "and then she comes of big folks, and he's a bully fellow, but pore, pore, pore."

"Where did he come from?"

"I don't exactly know," hesitating.

"The reporter laughed and told his name and occupation. "I'm a stranger in the town," he added, "and just proud about this way to introduce myself to it."

"I believe you're giving me the wrong name," said Mr. Marks, suspiciously.

"Certainly not. Don't you read the paper?"

"No sirree! I have been through the Bible, and I read novels and poetry, but I don't read the newspapers, not I."

"Then you must take my word for it: I'm not a detective."

"Do you know about Pineville?" he asked; whether he implied that the young bridegroom was from there, who knows?

"No. What about it? Is it a town?"

"I should smile it! Little houses by the railroad. You can get anything you want at Pineville. You don't have to take any baggage to Pineville. It's there already."

"What did he mean, do you suppose?" Here a wagon, heavily loaded with peavine hay, drove up, with old Aunt Molly atop. She had six spring chickens for sale, and when she and Mr. Marks had come to terms and the chickens were teetering in the coop, the reporter remarked:

PLEASURES IN SOCIAL WORLD.

The Y. W. C. A. of Elizabeth College yesterday evening entertained the students and faculty of the college, and the affair was a most pleasant beginning of the social events of the session of 1914-1915.

In the receiving line were Miss Mary Miller, of Statesville, who presided at the organization, and Misses Pauline Wilson, Sallie Ouseley and Abbie Henkel, the other members of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet.

After the guests had assembled in the college parlors, Miss Miller welcomed the new students and the new members of the faculty with a few well chosen words. She was followed by President E. B. King, who greeted the guests in a very impressive and forcible speech.

Following these addresses were four short selections given by Miss Williams, the newly-elected teacher of elocution. The audience received such gratification with enthusiastic applause that she showed that they were delighted with Miss Williams' superb rendering of the readings.

During the evening a guessing contest was held, Miss Emma Bruner, of Waynesborough, Va., being the winner of the contest. The guests were invited into the dining room, where refreshments were served. This closed a very pleasant and interesting evening.

This morning at 11 o'clock the students will attend services at St. Mark's Lutheran church.

This evening at 2 o'clock, the first public meeting of the Y. W. C. A. will be held. There will be special music and Dr. W. W. Orr, of the faculty, will deliver an address.

Miss Florence Cowles, of Statesville, arrived in the city last night to be the guest of her cousin, Miss Alice Cowles.

Mrs. Walter Scott left yesterday for Mt. Airy, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Jesse L. rather.

Miss Kittie Walker left yesterday for Fort Mill, S. C., to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Tucker returned last night from Greensboro, where they visited relatives and friends.

Mrs. John Wilder Atkinson and Miss Janie Strange have returned to their home at Wilmington, after a visit to Mrs. Thomas H. Horton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cihard have returned from St. Louis, where they attended the exposition.

Mr. and Mrs. William Nicholson, of New York, are in the city, the guests of their daughter, Mrs. J. U. Traywick, at No. 17 South Brevard street.

Miss Mamie Bays has returned from Washington City, where she visited her brother, Mr. William S. Bays, who is doing literary work in the capital city.

Mr. Ralph Montcastle, who was killed in the famous wreck at Lexington, Va., on the morning of September 19th, 1914, is being buried in the city.

Rev. Richard Morse has returned. He has been up to Hibernia, where he is working with the liquor problem, and with renewed vigor, will soon charge upon the enemy once more.

Mr. W. T. McCoy has opened his new day room over his furniture store, formerly the old opera house. These are handsome new quarters, large, well-lighted and attractive.

Mr. H. Luck, of Vicksburg, Miss., has rented the building now occupied by the saloon of Trot & Lentz, on West Trade street, and will conduct a mercantile tailoring establishment, after January 1st.

Mr. H. C. Fowler, who was one of the victims of the boiler explosion at Hibernia, is in the city, the father of Miss Joseph Fowler, who had many friends in the city. She attended a business college here for several years.

The revival services at the East Avenue Baptist church have come to an end. Rev. J. E. Smith, of Concord, who conducted the services, is a most impressive speaker and made a deep impression upon his hearers.

An Italian organ-grinder with a monkey and a fortune-telling parrot were seen in the city yesterday. The colored brother has a weakness for fortune-telling and the Italian reaped a harvest of dollars from the dummies around.

Prof. Alton Huribert and wife, of this, Mont., are new arrivals in the city. They will reside in the new house erected by Charles L. Lawrence, architect, and Huribert, an experienced teacher and will join the faculty of King's Business College.

Mr. Lee Wilson, while on his way to Charlotte on the board train last night, suffered the loss of a valise, containing a suit of clothes and a fine clarinet. Mr. Wilson was unable to locate the valise until at Monroe, where a large crowd of passengers got off, but he is not sure.

Board of Arbitration Reports on Dilworth School Building.

The committee of referees, composed of Messrs. F. W. Ahrens, S. J. Asbury and F. Taylor, yesterday reported on their examination of the Dilworth graded school building, over which contractor J. N. Mallonee and the county board of education had some differences. They reported that much of the work was unsatisfactorily done and that there are several defects, for which they proposed the remedy.

Mr. Mallonee proposes to repair all unsatisfactory work. The board also cut down the charges made for extra work outside the contract, nearly $300, leaving about $600 for the extra work done. The amount already paid Mr. Mallonee is $3,250, leaving a balance of $1,283.24 due him.

The Farmers' Alliance coming to the front once more. State Lecturer Gates, of the Farmers' Alliance, spoke in Providence township last week, and organized a local branch at Providence church. Mr. John O. Alexander was elected president; Dr. H. Q. Alexander, secretary; Mr. D. J. Downs, door-keeper; Mr. J. P. McGinnis, assistant door-keeper. Lecturer Gates will speak at Carolina Academy October 4th.

The Farmers' Alliance is coming to the front once more. Organizations are being formed all over the State.

Mr. D. A. Dickey and family, of Thomas, Tex., are now in the city, having come across at the home of Mr. B. C. Williams, at East Seventh street.

Just try Baby Ribbon Cream and vanilla extracts and see what you have been missing.
