

THE FINEST GLENN DAY YET.

THE CANDIDATE ON HIS METTLE.

Diversified Crowd Hears the Democratic Candidate at Lenoir—The School at 10:15 P.M.—The Speaker Makes Some Happy Hits—Sings Add to the Entertaining Features—Incidents Caught in the Audience—Mr. Glenn Holds an Impassioned Reception After It is All Over.

Special to The Observer. Lenoir, Sept. 29.—Mr. Glenn drove over from Morganton, 16 miles, through an almost mountainous country yesterday afternoon. It was not some miles out from Morganton, where the horse-drawn carriages were full of drummers, but that Mr. Glenn and his shadow, the newspaper men, would be provided for at Mrs. Clark's.

Indeed, it was the best reception that this reporter has met with. Oh, the best of good eating. There was sure enough cream for the coffee and oatmeal and chicken so brown and tender that whose eats of it must be dissatisfied with his own life.

It was, altogether, the finest Glenn day yet. The Democrats have not got it all their own way in Caldwell and this put the speaker on his mettle. "I am not speaking for myself," he said. "I'm elected now. I'm speaking for Newland, for Wakefield," and for the other local candidates.

DIVERSIFIED CROWD. There was never a more diversified crowd. The speaker's stand was on the Dayenport College campus, between two enormous white pines, the best of good eating. There was sure enough cream for the coffee and oatmeal and chicken so brown and tender that whose eats of it must be dissatisfied with his own life.

It was, altogether, the finest Glenn day yet. The Democrats have not got it all their own way in Caldwell and this put the speaker on his mettle. "I am not speaking for myself," he said. "I'm elected now. I'm speaking for Newland, for Wakefield," and for the other local candidates.

Deep Interest on the Other Side of the Water in the Textile Industry of the South—Editors of English Journals Giving the Proposed Visit Their Encouragement. Special to The Observer.

Baltimore, Sept. 29.—Letters and other expressions from the center of the English textile trade published in this Record reveal a feeling of deep practical interest on the other side of the world in the plan for a visit of representatives of the textile industry of the world to the South. These expressions, written 10 days or two weeks ago, indicate that the only thing necessary to secure hearty support of the plan by the world-spinners is an invitation from representative American bodies. Since they were framed invitations have been sent from the body of Southern frontiers representative organizations to the Alabama Commercial and Industrial Association and the Southern Cotton Growers' Convention in St. Louis, while Governors of Southern States and business organizations in cities as far removed as Toronto, Savannah and New Orleans are anxious to welcome the visitors. Mr. Edward Atkinson, of Boston who has manifested such a lively interest in the proposition, is convinced that nothing more remains to be done than to receive the visitors and carry them through the South. He are, however, a number of details to be arranged, now that the foreign-ers have been assured of a hearty and representative welcome to the hospitality of the South, enabling them to come free to face our most favored textile complex with conditions of vital importance to them.

Typical of the feeling in Manchester is a letter from Mr. Fred Mayor, editor of The Textile Journal, of that city, who writes: "It is a purely suggestion that an international meeting of cotton spinners be arranged is highly appreciated in many quarters here, and the view is growing on this side of the Atlantic that the consumer should get more closely in touch with the cotton field. If the American planters and consumers could offer feasible proposals in this direction, if they could hold out any prospect of cotton being grown in America to materially feed the spindle of other countries at a reasonable figure, those proposals would be of inestimable value and would be welcomed by Lancashire spinners and manufacturers. It appears to me that you have struck a useful vein in proposing an international gathering and I imagine that the results will reflect the mutual interest of England and America in the supply of raw cotton."

Mr. C. P. Scott, editor of The Manchester Guardian, who has shown a friendly interest in the undertaking, takes the ground that a visit to the cotton field and cotton mills of America would be of the greatest interest and educational value to the very many Lancashire spinners and manufacturers, and publishes statements of Mr. C. W. Macara, president of the Federation of Master Cotton Spinners Association, who has been highly complimentary in his appraisal and making it clear that if an invitation were extended to Europe by the accredited cotton organizations of America he would do his utmost to bring about its acceptance and to promote the success of the gathering, and of Mr. J. A. Hutton, of the British Cotton Growing Association to the effect that he did not see how an international conference of cotton manufacturers in the Southern States could possibly do any harm, while on the other hand he did not see the slightest doubt that it would do good. His association would, he considered, be only too glad if the Southern planters would grow more cotton, though as the operations of the association were limited by the terms of the charter to the encouragement of cultivation within the British Empire, he did not see that it could do anything to stimulate production in America. An increase in the area under cultivation in the South, he pointed out, would not lessen the importance of the association's work, for if new sources were not developed in other parts of the world manufacturers would still be dependent for their supply on the vagaries of the weather in a particular country.

NOTHING TO OFFEND. Recognizing the fact that the Republicans are strong here, he was careful to say nothing to offend them. He was after conversing to-day. "I am appealing to you," said he, "not as Democrats or as Republicans, but as citizens of North Carolina, Christians and patriots."

Under the head of the extravagance of the Roosevelt administration, he made fun of the sham battle at Manassas and its enormous cost to the Government. "If they had got old man Mosby up here at Washington," said he, "to come down here and get you old Confederates soldiers of Caldwell county, he could have taken them up there and whipped out the whole thing for $150."

"The folks howled. One old man cried: 'We'll do that next time.'" "Of the Booker Washington luncheon the Crum appointment, and the social city display at Chicago, he said Mr. Roosevelt had a right to do these things if it pleased him, "but any man that does it ought not to be President of the United States."

"Voices: 'You're right about that.'" "One man, presumably a Republican, shook his finger at Mr. Glenn for emphasis, and said: 'You are right about that,'" and put the stress on the last word.

Mr. Glenn closed his speech with a plea for Newland and the other candidates of their own section. When he had finished, the girls rose and sang, very sweetly, all joining in the chorus, "Carolina."

PLEA FOR POLITICAL REFORM.

"Where is Now the Once Splendid Glory of Auld's Green?"—A Few Observations on Present Conditions.

To the Editor of The Observer: "He who refuses justice to the defenceless, will make every accession to the powerful." Political crime and demerit is the product of the moral and physical decay of a State or nation. It is a law of Heaven that crime shall go unpunished, and virtue unrewarded. "The sure your sins will find you out." The above Biblical quotation holds good both morally and politically. Pervert a man's ideas of justice by both precept and example, and in the capacity of an office of the law, he can't impart justice to the governed. A man cannot emit what he does not possess. He can't dispense with an unscrupulous man with an office because he has been instrumental in inducing into power some one else (perhaps, with no better integrity, and less ability), from what source is equity and justice going to emanate? And how are we going to establish a stable government conducive to the felicity of the people, if the above evils are not corrected? Crime and lawlessness are the harbingers of death to any nation or dynasty. The quality of office-seekers should generally signify their inability and unworthiness for the same. Criminals at heart are less reluctant to commit a breach of law, if they know the courts will not punish them. Even the most casual observer can see the divergency of the said and will today to punish crime, except he be a poor chicken thief.

"With us law is nothing unless clothed behind it stands a strong public opinion." Where now is the once effulgent splendor and glory of ancient Greece? Though she is no more, her virtues and others, yet the political worm of treason and corruption sapped her vital until she was subdued; and to-day her once resplendent orb of sheen is obscured forever. Alas! her statements her virtues, her glories, her glories, her glories, and her historians had become corrupted, and even her Solon could not save her.

Patrick Henry says, "There is no way to judge the future except by the past." Consider the welfare of many instead of a few before you are all ready to vote. DR. E. M. GRIFFIN, Farmington, Sept. 28, 1904.

DESEMER CITY ITEMS. Cherryville Men Invest in Several Automobiles—Information Wanted of a Missing Husband. Special to The Observer.

Cherryville, Sept. 29.—Dr. D. A. Garrison took Mr. Henry Young to St. Peter's Hospital Monday. The doctors operated, and at last report Mr. Young was doing very well.—Mrs. Ed. Mason and Misses Mary Mason and Mary McLean, came over from Dallas Friday to visit Mrs. C. R. Robbins. Misses Ed. Mason and Mrs. C. R. Robbins, spent Tuesday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Durham.—Little Jeter, son of Mrs. J. J. Kennedy, who has been right sick is improving.—Ernest Payne, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Payne, is sick.—Mrs. Henry Rhyme is quite sick at her home, near town.

Our town has had quite an addition by the coming of the Messers, George and Mary, of Cherryville. They have invested considerable money in the Bessemer City Cotton Mill, and have taken positions in the mill. The town welcomes the families.

Mr. DeWitt Whitworth's friends are glad to see him in town again. The dust is something terrible. The people are suffering for rain, while the farmers are delighted with the continued dry weather. It is just the thing for cotton and pea vine hay.

A PLEASANT SOCIAL EVENT. Mr. and Mrs. J. K. McGill received at their Country Home in honor of visiting young ladies. Correspondence of The Observer.

Maxton, Sept. 28.—Tuesday evening at the hospitable country home of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. McGill, near Wakulla, a reception was given in honor of Miss Louise McGill, of Dallas, Texas, and Miss Mamie McGill, of Wilmington, a number of young ladies and gentlemen went out from the near-by towns those from Maxton being Miss Annie Lane McKee, with Mr. R. M. Williams, Miss Charlie McLean, with Mr. J. H. McLean, Miss Elizabeth McLean, with Dr. J. D. Croom, Jr., and Mr. Jamie Shaw. Other present were: Mr. John McWhinnie, of Gibson; Mr. R. C. Jones, of John's; Miss Lela Graham and Mr. Walter Graham, and Miss Ellen Graham, all of Dallas, Texas, and Miss Flora Colledge. The beautiful moonlight September night was an ideal one for such a occasion and very one present enjoyed the fête immensely. As the home of Mrs. McGill is situated in the country, the drive in the moonlight was most interesting and quite a pleasant feature. Elegant refreshments were served to the guests before leaving.

Postmaster General Payne Seriously Ill. Washington, Sept. 29.—Postmaster General Payne, it is admitted to-night, has been in a very serious condition during the day, but is resting easier tonight. His condition was quite a statement this evening saying that Mr. Payne had denied symptoms of heart trouble.
