The theatre-goers that had the burge to face the beasily weather like prevalled last evening—and the unber was larger than might asonably have been expected—were sundantly recompensed through angles in one of the most unique d deliverting extension Spangles in one of the most unique and delightful entertainments ever set on the stage in this city. The come-dy in Spangles scintilities with a re-treaking humor both in the situations and in the text, but the dominant wein is that of satire, which is keen, incisive and almost palpable, including within its deep critics, ciergy, actors, sudiences and many other things of within its deep critics, ciergy, actors, sudiences and many other things of within its deep critics, ciergy, actors, sudiences and many other things of within its deep critics, ciergy, actors, sudiences and many other things of within its deep critics, ciergy, actors, sudiences and many other things of and human interest. The production most emborately and expensively staged and the whole cast, which is a large one, is keyed to the very higha large one, is keyed to the very high-est standard of qualification and capacity and could hardly be better bal-anced in the respective roles. To the minutest detail, Spangles is an artistic and finished production, and should not fall to be a great success wherever it is presented.

James O'Neill, the distinguished ro-manile actor, has announced that, of ter this season he will never play "Monte Christo" again. His engage-ment at the Academy of Music is for ment at the Academy of Music is for to-morrow night. In every city in which James O'Neill appeared fr the last two years as the particular star in the all-star "Two Orphans" Co., the critics praised his performance, but instead that he re-turn in "Monte Cristo." So general and widespread was this feeling that Mr. O'Neill has gracefully bowed to public opinion and is this year pre-senting an elaborate revival—though senting an elaborate revival-though for the last time-of the play that he has made famous. The strong sui porting company includes James o'Nelli, Jr., his son, Charles H. Ste-vens, Richard Atlen, J. W. Dillion, J Bart Wallace, Thos. E³ H. Green, Bart Wallace. Thos. Ed wards, Wm. McKegney, Alfred Long. John Parks, John H. Green, Ed Short, Edwin Lane, James Hall, Ed. Smith, Allen O. Meyers, John Benfamine, Robert Lauer, Abigail Marshall, Kate Fletcher, Sara Leigh an Louisa Miller.

Edgar Forrest, manager of Jam 'O'Neill, has hit upon a novel and effective method of making sure of all the members of his company getting up in time to be at the statio-when the company takes the train to move from town to town. At the be ginning of the season he gave each one an alarm clock and one of the du-ties of "props" is to see that the alarm is properly set on every clock every night before going to bed. So far this season none of the "Monte Cristo" actors have missed a train.

An interesting character in Marle Cabili's production of "Molly Moon-shine," which will be seen here Mar 10th, is that of "Plunger" Dawson. He was a race-track tout who made a killing at Sheepshead Bay, and then went to India, where he studied the vernacular of the mystics. He than returned to London, and his "cosy corner trimmings" became the rage. It is in this capacity that he figures "Molly Moonshine!"

HEAVY TOBACCO RECEIPTS.

Reidsville Market Active-Richmond Minister Accepts Call to Pastorate of Leaksville Baptist Church, Special to The Observer.

DILWORTH'S SIDE r. Abbout's Charge of Ingra. Refuted—The Suburb Has Pa All Benefits Received From Inte—Why it Should be lotte --- Why it Should be In-corporated. To the Editor of The Observer: As one who has been identified with the movement to incorporate Dilworth. I wish to make a reply to Mr. F. C. Abbott's article which appeared in The Observer this morning. Mr. Ab-bott seeks to create the impression that the ditheans of Dilworth are a miserable set of ingrates, who are wil-ling to receive all the benefits that Charlotte has to bestow and give nothing in return. He would make those who are not informed believe that Dilworth is sponging on Charlotte for her water supply and sewerage system, and that we exhibit an un-common amount of "nerve," as he is pleased to call it, for wanting to em-joy these benefits without paying for toase?

Dilworth has her own admirable and independent water and sewerage sys-tem. But is not our water main con-nected with the Charlotte water main? Yes, but we paid $525 for making such connection in the way of a water me-ter, and in case of fire, when we have occasion to avail ourselves of the city water, it is measured to us, and we pay for every gallon that we use. This is a source of revenue to Charlotte. We are one of her best customers, and she would be glad to enter into an ar-rangement with us by which she could sell us all our water. We pay for what we get and there is no debt of grati-tude, as I see it, on either side. But what about the sewerage connections. The Dilworth sewer connects with the city sewer away out in the country a few hundred feet before it empties into the creek. But this privilege was given in consideration of the fact that the sewer from the city crosses Dilworth property, and for the further consideration of $500 paid into the city treasury of Char-lotte. So, then, this was a purchase and not a gift, and no obligation is created on either side.

But-Mr. Abbott seeks to make capital out of the fact that a certain corporation, located in Dilworth, en-joys a monopoly of Charlotte's streets for gas supply and street car facili-ties, and suggests that these privileges might be withdrawn. And yet, he is a believer in Greater Charlotte and wants to be written large as "Yours for Greater Charlotte!" But will Mr. Abbott tell us what has made "Greater Charlotte" a possibility? Is it not true that the street car system of our city has done more to build up enterprises, and that the value of every dollar's worth of property in and around the city has been enhanced because it is accessible to our street car lines? What has the street car company done for Piedmont? What would Mr. Abbott's property in that beautiful sub-urb be worth but for the car line which runs out there?

No, Dilworth is not unmindful nor ungrateful for any blessings that she may have received from her proximity to Charlotte, but this is not a one-sided affair. Charlotte has received benefits from Dilworth, and we are not surprised that she is loth to give us up. Is it not true that 90 per cent. of our trade goes to Charlotte mer-chants and helps to enrich them? Witness the delivery wagons from the city that traverse our streets every day. Our beautiful boulevard is the favorite drive for Charlotte people, and we hope to have it sprinkled regfather. ularly with water when we are a city, so as to make it even more attrac-

Many of our people own more property in Charlotte than they do in Dil-worth, and their taxes on this property goes to help keep up Charlotte. We deny that we have ever received bene-

THE DEATH RECORD.

Mrs. Prudence Wimbish, of Winston-Salem. Correspondence of The Observer.

Winston-Salem, Feb. 13 .- Mrs. Prudence Wimbish, died yesterday at the home of her son on Buxton street, at an advanced age. She had been in declining health for over a year, having heen stricken with paralysis. The de-ceased is survived by two sons, Messrs. J. L. and Joseph S. Wimbish, both of whom hold responsible positions with the Southern. Mrs. Wimbish was a gulet, unassuming Christian woman and was held in high esteem by those who knew her. The interment will be held in the family burying ground in Patrick county, Virginia.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

Special to The Observer. New York, Feb. 14.-While our market opened lower and declined some 7 points it at no time showed the weak undertone of the past week. On the contrary it appears to bear all the earmarks of a market which was under pressure of the last of the scattered long liquidations. At the low prices there was a demand from sources which indicated a less steady absorption rather than an effect to advance the market. This buying took all the offerings and appeared to be based on the better demand for spot cotton from spinners and experters which has been the feature of this recent decline. The facts that we are soon to meet the heaviest movement of last season and that the stocks of cotton held by con-thential spinners is less than two years ago have attracted more attenion.
