DOCTRINE OF SUBSTITUTION.
It Has Been the Teaching of the New Testament for Nearly Two Thousand Years.
To the Editor of The Observer:
The doctrine of "substitution" is a divine truth. It is wisdom, and not an absurdity. On it is the seal of heaven, and not the brand of human folly.
It has been the teaching of the New Testament for nearly two thousand years. It has been the teaching of the Old Testament for nearly six thousand years. No intelligent Mason can doubt it, and no Christian whose eyes have been opened by the Holy Ghost will set it aside.
Ask any intelligent Mason how a poor blind candidate gains admittance into the lodge. The man is too poor to pay the price; but another takes his place and pays it for him—he has not the power but he has the will. His head and pledges it in his behalf. This is a living and exact picture of the sinner's salvation—of Christ standing in the sinner's stead and offering the word that opens for him the door of the kingdom of heaven.
Ask the writers of the New Testament how a sinner be saved. John answers, "The good shepherd giveth His life for the sheep." Paul replies, "Christ has redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us." Peter bottles, "Who his own self bore our sins in his own body on the tree." Truly these three do agree that Christ was our substitute, and suffered in our stead.
Ask the intelligent Hebrew how a sinner be atoned for. He points to the priest daily leading a lamb into the court of the tabernacle to him standing then before the altar, lifting up his hands towards heaven, confessing his sins and pouring of blood to him laying his hands on the head of that lamb, transferring his sin and desert of death to the animal to be slain upon that altar. Does not the voice of all the saviors of the Old Testament utter one word, "Substitution?" Was not Abel accepted because he brought a first born lamb to die in his stead? Was not Cain rejected because he refused to let his offering perish in the gulf of Gehenna?

AMUSEMENTS

Marja Cahill and her bouquet of moonbeams will be seen at the Academy of Music Saturday, March 10, in the smart musical play "Molly Moonshine," direct from a ten weeks' run in New York city.
With the enthusiastic approval of New York theatre-goers Miss Cahill ought to get a reception here that will make the Manhattan one look ragged and forgotten. Miss Cahill as usual has scored heavily with some new songs, the best being "Looking for My Ten," "Foolish," "Don't Be What You Ain't" and "Robinson Crusoe's Isle."
The original New York cast will give the piece and the beauty chorus who created sensation by wearing long skirts and yet proving themselves to be twice as interesting as the girls in tights and spangles will all be present next week, and give the local theatre-goers a treat that will be an entire novelty.
Miss Cahill's personality and unique comedy method will of course be the center piece of the feast. She stands unequalled as a fun maker and is the only woman on the stage to-day who can make women and children laugh heartily.
The famous black face humorist, Lew Dockstader, who, together with his great minstrel company, will appear at the Academy Wednesday, March 7, has come striking novelties which he introduces this season. His new act, "The Tubbecks," is even

A CLUB WOMAN'S PROTEST.

She enumerates some of the annoyances to which Theatre-Goers Are Subjected, and Sets Forth the Need of a Reform.
To the Editor of The Observer:
I want to put in a plea on behalf of those who attend entertainments at the Academy of Music. As things are now there is very little enjoyment to be had, either from the first half-hour or the last few minutes of any performance. Half-past eight is a late enough hour for an entertainment to begin. Yet there are always so many late comers, and the late comers seem so oblivious to the comfort of others. And the usher! What is the matter with the ushers? It seems as if they take delight in seating people as noisily as possible, but that, of course, cannot be true. They, too, must be oblivious.
We are all proud of our pretty little opera house, and some times good plays are given there. And some of us who go only when there is something really good wish to see it all from beginning to end. There are some of us who prefer balcony seats to seats on the floor. But the first half-hour in the balcony after a play begins is simply awful until you grow accustomed to it. The ushers come down the steps to the lower seats with such an impetus that it seems impossible for them to stop. I have, however, never yet seen one of them go over the balcony. One of them sat down in a young lady's lap once before he could save himself, but I have never seen anything more tragic than that happen. Then after this whirlwind more surprising than his famous airship, and his "Album of Minstrelsy," is an unusually quiet concert. Mr. Dockstader's songs this season are unquestionably the best he has ever had.

Olga, the Countess von Hatzeft, comes to the city in a magnificent production of Anna Held's successful musical comedy, "The Little Duchess," at the Academy Friday.
The Countess von Hatzeft is a lady of rank and noble birth, through whose veins courses the blue blood of the German aristocracy. The Countess von Hatzeft is a musical comedy star whose reputation is made after the hardest kind of work and closest application to the demands of her profession. She is a young woman whose history on the stage reads like a story from the "Wonder Book" and whose experiences during her short term on the stage is a theme for story writers.
In presenting the Countess von Hatzeft, in "The Little Duchess," Mr. Dockstader and Sargent Aborn believe that to-day she is one of the cleverest musical comedy stars on the American stage. She appears in a piece written by DeKoven and Smith and which includes some of the brightest scenes and dialogue and music that has been presented to the theatre-going people for years. In selecting the company to support the Countess the Messrs. Aborn have been careful to secure only those who are equally well known and who have therefore surrounded the Countess with a competent cast and chorus and the scenes and the dialogue are presented in a manner that is both correct and pleasing. Among the members of the company supporting the Countess are Robert Lett, Irving Brooks, George Moore, Harry Carter, Eugene O'Brien, Madeline Cook, Kitty Durell, E. C. Donnelly and others who are equally well known and whose reputations were made in the big musical comedies. The piece is presented with all the original scenery and accessories and the lights and the music are in keeping with the importance of the production. "The Little Duchess" heading the cast, will no doubt be one of the most popular productions in this city this season.
The next sale for the night performance open Wednesday, and for matinee performance Thursday, at Jordan's.

Agonizing Burns
Are instantly relieved, and perfectly healed, by Bucklen's Arnica Salve. C. Rivenbark, Jr., of Norfolk, Va., writes: "I burnt my knee dreadfully; that it blistered all over. Bucklen's Arnica Salve stopped the pain, and healed it without a scar." Also heals all wounds and sores. 25c. at R. H. Jordan & Co.'s, Druggists.
