until I became a confirmed drunkard. I would neglect my business, my home and my loved ones in my ef-fort to get whiskey, and became so bad and degraded that my friends despaired of my ever becoming a man again, and expected that I would soon fill a drunkard's grave. Finally, as a last resort, I was persuaded to try your treatment, and in January, 1903, I entered your Institution to be treated for the whiskey habit. I stayed there four weeks, and the re-sults were beyond my wildest hopes. I left there s new man, entirely I left there s new man, entirely gured, and my thirst for whiskey totally destroyed.
