A fire in the rear of the Monekton iry goods establishment on Main treet to-day drew a large crowd in enticipation of a spectacular confia-gration, but little damage was done by the flames themselves, so well did the firemen work. The damage by water and smoke, however, is much greater, though this has not been definitely estimated yet. The loss is covered by insurance, the large stock insured with almost every agency in the city. The fire started some packing in the back yard, the wind being toward the rear doors and windows. It is thought that the flames are traceable to some care-less, person throwing a lighted ciga-rotte into an open barrel of packing. vould likely have been a $50,000 fire had it occurred after the closing hour. A tale of horror was told by marks of human blood in the home of J. W. Williams, a well-known merchant of Bae, Ky. He writes: "Twenty, years ago I had severe hemorrhages of the lungs, and was near death when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. It completely cured me and I have remained well ever since." It cures hemorrhages, chronic coughs, settled colds and bronchitis, and is the only known cure for weak lungs. Every bottle guaranteed by R. H. Jordan & Co., Druggist, 50c, and $1.00. To the Editor of The Observer:

The remedy of existing svils, of for conditions which seem unendurable and which make the people restive, is publicity. No svil, or no objectionable condition can withstayed an enlightened public sentiment. When the hearts and minds of men are enlightened they can speak with authority for then their judgments are right and true. Light therefore is the pure requisite of righteous judgment, and I shall strive to keep this truth before me withe discussing a question of para while discussing a question of paramount interest to all.

In a former communication I attempted to correct an erroneous impression as to the attitude of our board of education with regard to the enlargement of our high school, and I intimated that I wished to discuss I intimated that I wished to discuss the use we make of what we already have in hand and the management thereof, as these two questions seemed to me to be of the highest importance. I shall address myself therefore to the general subject with the hopes that I may shed somewhat of light thereon. We have a fairly good curriculum, and the first consideration is the character, consecration, and scholarship of those who attempt to direct the curriculum. Professor Bruce Craven, in riculum. Professor Bruce Craven, in his most excellent communication on "Essentials of Teaching" uses this or-der-character, scholarship, and consecration to the work-but I ask leave to amend by simply changing the or-der, namely, first, the character; sec-ond, the consecration, and third, the scholarship of the directors of any given curriculum, for with character and consecration thoroughly established scholarship will generally follow just as heat travels in the pathway of the sun. It seems that we can eliminate cholarship from this discussion since it is an admitted fact that no one give thorough instruction on subjects which are not mastered by the instructor. We already act on this principle as we require examina-tions on those subjects which are to be taught. In its proper place scholar-ship is all important but do we or do ve not put undue stress upon mere plarship to the exclusion of a proper consideration of the character and secration of our directors of a cur-I look upon the teacher's occupation as next to the ministry, and the char acter and consecration of a directs of a school curriculum should be a just as much importance in the teach ere sphere as the character and conse eration of a minister of the Gospel is am thus brought face to face with that part of the subject which I desired to reach, and in the near future I shall devote myself to a discussion of these two most important phases of the subject in hand. Correspondence of The Observer. Greenaboro, April 22.-The dead body of Charles Williams, colored, was found this morning by the side of the track of the A. & Y. Railroad at a point half way between West Market street and Guilford avenue. The left side of the body was badly mangled. No inquest was held, Coroner Turner deeming it unnecessary after having ascertained that the deceased met his death by being struck by a train about midnight, Williams is a tailor and has been conducting a pressing and dying establishment on Mendenhall street.

The rain this afternoon prevented a large attendance at the mass meeting called by Mayor Murphy to raise funds for the relief of the earthquake sufferers in San Francisco and other Pacific coast cities, though the small number subscribed liberally and a committee was appointed to solicit
