Was Getting. Correspondence of The Observer. Anisville, May 13.—One of the unickest trades on record in this sec-tion was made Saturday allernoon when a route agent of the Knoxville division of the Southern sold to 8. Sternberg, of this city, dealer in all kinds of second hand goods, eight car loads of merchadise from the freight wreck near Olivette Friday morning. The trade was made on the yards of the Southern and almont in the twinkle of an eye. After the wreck near Olivette when a dozen or more cars were demolished and their contents strewn over the nearby hill-side and vale, the wrecked goods were picked up by the Southern's employes, ismmed into empty box cars and hauled to the local station. Yester-day afternoon the goods were being sold at whatever price they would broke of at 56 cents a dozen and oth-re goods in proportion. The ssile was progressing nicely when Mr. Sternberg appeared on the scene in his shirt-sleeves and collar-less. He didn't know the route agent and the route agent didn't know Mr. Sternberg. The purchaser of the soods from a sawmill to a worn-out pair of socks, inquired "What was all hat fuss?" He was told that stand-ing on the tracks were eight cars loaded with wrecked goods a verit-able department store. Without even peeping into the cars: without glancing at the goods: without knowing what he was buying. Mr. Sternberg again frusted to Inck and unhesitatingly said: "I take you." A check-book was pro-duced and Mr. Sternberg quickly wrots out the amount of the purchase, somewhere in the neighborhood of $6,000, and handed the little slip of while over to the route agent. The Special to The Observer. High Point, May 14.—The police force of this city has bought a tho-rough bred bloodhound which, so far, rough bred bleedhound which, so far, has done excellent practice work, tracking his game in each instance. One day this week the dog will be taken to the county convict force and so, 600, and handed the little slip of white over to the route agent. The route, agent not knowing Mr. Stern-berg's financial standing, looked at the collarless gentleman a second and then inquired if the said Mr. Stern-berg knew what he was doing. "I buy ten such wrecks." said Mr. Sterngiven practice work. Two trusties of the force will be given an hour's start and the dog will be put upon their trail it is expected the dog will trail the men to the tree which they finally climb to get out of the way of berg. That settled it. The cars were put in place and the purchaser given until Sunday noon to get the stuff unloaded. Mr. Sternberg went to the chief of police terrible dog. The presence of dog will be a terror to evil doers the and especially at the convict camp where the overseer has a chase every now and then after escaping convicts. The dog came from South Carolina and is said to be a chip off the old rnberg went to the chief of police starnberg went to the chief of police and secured permission to move the stuff Sunday. Then he hired the best wagons of the local dray companies and the goods were moved to a big warehouse in this city. After examin-ing the stuff Mr. Sternberg estimated that he will more than double his money. The cars were filled with baled cotton, cotton goods, shoes, dry goods, etc. block of a record-breaking pedigree.
