Charlotte, the chief city of North Carolina in population and progressiveness, is the rendevous this week of North Carolinians from every point of the compass. It was in Charlotte that the first Declaration of Independence of Great Britain was penned, adopted and signed. And the great in-gathering of people on that historic spot this week, is to celebrate the one hundred and thirty-fifth anniversary of that great event. All North Carolinians who are not in Charlotte participating in person in the celebration are there in spirit—Newton Enterprise. Public Accountants and Auditors County, Municipal and R.
