Forks at Devil's Lake, N. De lasted 25 innings.

The second longest game on record prior to to-day's contest was the Harvard-Manchester game of 24 innings, played in Boston Common 25 years ago.

But three major league games approach the present record, each having lasted 20 innings.

Combs pitched one of the strongest games ever seen in this city, five times passing dangerous batsmen, only to get the next man. He truck out 18 men and was batted safely 16 times. The pitching of Harris excelled that of Coombs for 23 innings, but in the last inning he weakened after the Athletics had scored, and was hit for two three-baggers.

The fielding was necessarily excellent. Boors:

NEW JERSEY HIFLEMEN'S DAY.

NEW JERSEY RIPLEMEN'S DAY. Trophy Offered by Senator Dryden Goes to Team From His State— Revolver Team Match Won by

Sea Girt, N. J., Sept. 1.—Perfect weather conditions attended the match to-day in the great military shooting tournament. The principal event, the Dryden trophy match, was followed with special interest, as it was regarded as a test of the stemath that will compete in the national team match. New Jersey did the best work at the long range, 1,000 yards, and captured the trophy. range, 1,000 yards, and captured the trophy.

The revolver team match was won with ease by Squadron A, of New York, In the other competition, the press match, Lieutenant Smith, of Ohlo, proved the victor.

Twenty-four State teams competed in the Dryden match. Each team consisted of eight men, each of whom fired 19 shots at each vange of 20,500 and 1,000 yards. The rules of the national match were followed. New Jersey will hold the trophy, presented by Sanator Dryden and valued at $4,000, for one year and receives a cash prize of $150. The District of Columbia takes second prize, $100, and the third prize, $20, was taken by the army cavalry team.

The totals of the contesting teams follows:

Tim McGrath, Johns Rock as chief adviser to these men.

Joe Gams to-day sent a message to John Kelly, in New York, to bet all he could at the prevailing odds that he would defeat Nelson on Monday.

The colored man supplemented this message with the statement that he was absolutely within the weight and that his condition was perfect. Gans to-day borrowed $2,000 from the club president and sent the money to town to bet on himself. The wager was placed at odds of 10 to 5.

BRIGHTENED CHILDREN'S LIVES

"Sophie May" Created a Magic World for Young America and Left Humanity the Happier for Her Presence.

Evening Wisconsin.

Rebseca Sophie Clark, who dred at her home in Norridgewock, Maine, on Thursday night, was a woman who did much to make brighter and better the lives of the American children of a generation ago.

Under her pen name of "Sophie May" she contributed to the juvenile literature of the cival war period, creating a magic world of life-like characters with which the youngsters of the came and inquired, to the amusement of the house. Our Young Folks and Olive Optic's Magazine all publications of Sylvania. mate. Our Young Folks and Olive Optic's Magazine—all publications of wide circulation in those days in the homes of the American people. She also published a number of books, including a few novels, which latter did not succeed as well as her stories for children. Thousands of people who are now well along in life still cherish pleasant recollections of "Little Prudy" and "Dotty Dimple" stores. There were six volumes, and there was the same number of original "Little Prude In the Bible say it is lawful to pull your ox or ans out of a pit on the Babbath?" asked Butter. "You have I want to get them out of this ditch tomorrow. I think I am engaged in hely work."

"Don't do it," replied Randall. "I expect some day to see you in a better world."

"You'll be there, as you are here, a member of the lower house," flashed back the general, with telling effect. same number of original "Little Prudy" books. So great was the favor in which these little girl heroines were held by little girls that other were held by little girls that other series introducing the same characters subsequently appeared and had a wide sale, though they were never quite as fopular as the originals. Another of "Sophie May's" successes was the series of six stories relating to the "Quinnebasset Girls."

"Sophie May" lived in the golden ers of American juvenile literature, her best work being contemporaneous with that of Louisa M. Alcott, Mrs.

In that period Americans led simpler lives than now, but they were the less happy? It was not unfashionable to go to church. There was a genuine respect for seniority. Children would not snicker then if told that the scriptures say "Honor thy father and thy mother." Girls learned to sew and to cook. Boys did chores before they went off to play. Divorces were so unfrequent that when occurred they gave rise to scandal in-stead of to humours or sympathetic comment.

"The old order changeth." The new order is not wholly bad, but the old order had virtues that are worthy of the loving memory in which they are held by those who were in it and of it and who still survive. It em-braced a state of things in which there were more children in the average American family than there at the present time, and in which children were subject to more regulation and less excitement. Perhaps the people of that era were old fo-gies but the sanatorium did not flourish then as it flourishes to-day. .
