

EVERY MAN'S AMBITION

Every man with rich, red blood in his veins is ambitious to accumulate an estate, and the world applauds honest effort directed to that end. Comparatively few men are able to amass great wealth, but every man, by the exercise of wisdom and prudence, may leave an estate when his earthly career is ended. Life Insurance furnishes the surest and quickest means of accumulating an estate, and is more satisfactory in the end. Real estate and other property may depreciate in value, or vanish altogether, but from the very day it is issued a Life Insurance policy is good for its face value.

The time to insure your life is to-day, while opportunity confronts you, and the kind of insurance to buy is that which gives the greatest protection. Investigation will show you that the most valuable insurance from every standpoint is that afforded by the superb INCOME INDEMNITY POLICY, sold only by the GREENSBORO LIFE. This is the best policy, because it gives more protection and contains more liberal and attractive features than any other insurance contract on earth. Don't take our word for it, but investigate for yourself.

HER OWN WAY.

In the play of "Her Own Way," to be seen at the Academy of Music on Tuesday, Oct. 9th, is found the story of many a fashionable home. Georgiana, the heroine, has a brother Stephen, who has married into the family of Carley. His wife is a flippant, unsatisfactory, worldly little thing by her marriage, but who is continually, who has been elevated to a higher place in her world of society, still striving for more than she possibly can enjoy. Her mother, Mrs. Carley, Sr., is what Clyde Fitch in his play would call "a widow of the world." She is absolutely false in everything but her chatter, is so entertaining and witty and at times so keen that it is a pleasure to hear her criticize her neighbors, even at their great expense. Georgiana, the true and great character of the story, is an orphan who has been brought up with every luxury and demands a certain homage from every one who comes within her range of life. All sorts and conditions of men make love to her, children adore her, the servants obey every wish. Fortunately she is self-reliant enough to carry the day, and and is thoroughly womanly with it all. I like the part better than any I have ever played.

A UNIQUE BANKING SCHEME.

The Commercial National Bank Will Inaugurate a House to House Canvas for Deposits for Its Savings Department.

A new feature in bank circles here will be inaugurated to-morrow when the Commercial National Bank adds to its savings department the system of the Southern State Company, of Atlanta, Ga.

There is nothing particularly new in savings departments. The idea of thriftily laying aside the wherewith for the proverbial rainy day is old enough. But the particular method adopted by the Commercial National in securing desirable savings accounts is at once novel and enterprising.

Bright and early Monday morning the bank will send out a crew of trained men, thoroughly versed in the savings bank business, to open a house-to-house personal canvass for accounts in the new department.

An ordinary invitation to open an account and save money is not an uncommon thing. But this face-to-face invitation, intelligently presented and backed up by interesting facts and figures is something new in Charlotte.

However, the most tangible inducement to begin saving is the splendid little pocket safe, offered by the bank. These are absolutely secure, just the right size to fit into a man's pocket or a woman's purse. They are neat and tasteful, having the appearance of a Russia leather memorandum book. They are designed to be auxiliary to the savings account, and are just the thing for catching nickels, dimes, quarters and other change that would otherwise be pretty sure to find its way into the cigar and soda stands. Children can be taught how to save. An account may be opened for as little as a dollar and interest will be paid on deposits at the rate of 4 per cent. a year, compounded quarterly. The pocket banks are free. They are given to all who wish to save and can be opened only at the savings department of the Commercial National. The Commercial National is one of Charlotte's strongest financial institutions. It is widely known as the national bank that stands first on the honor roll of North Carolina banks. Its numbers among its officers and directors some of the most prominent business men and best known financiers in North Carolina. It stands for security and prudent administration of affairs and has gathered to itself a host of friends and a patronage of a superior kind.

This new move, and especially the enterprising method of installing the savings department, will be but another step in the steady progress of the bank and will doubtless be attended by success.

THE CHILDREN.

The first scene of "Her Own Way," Clyde Fitch's greatest play, that is booked for the Academy of Music on Tuesday, Oct. 9th, is laid in the "Child's play room." A birthday party is in progress. The children of Steve Carley are revelling in ice cream and cake and other goodies appropriate to a birthday feast, and her childish way everything from their aunties' beaux to the left over croquettes with which their regard has been padded. The relationship between their favorite auntie and their mamma was a hard puzzle and because Aunt Georgiana had a different mesuma and the same papa, the cradle is sealed. "Not all the time she had a different papa first. I guess that makes mamma and Aunt Georgiana sort of divorced sisters. The production is made by Jules Murry. Miss Sylvia Lynden plays the role of Georgiana.

WHAT SYLVIA LYNDEN SAYS OF GEORGIANA.

Miss Sylvia Lynden, Jules Murry's new star, who will appear at the Academy of Music on Tuesday, Oct. 9th, in Clyde Fitch's greatest play "Her Own Way," was selected for the role of Georgiana as a possible and only satisfactory substitute for Miss Maxine Elliott, for whom the part was originally written. She has all the grace of mind and body to make her impersonation forcible and convincing. A beautiful woman endowed with unusual charm and possessed of great magnetic power, Miss Lynden has made a special study of this interesting part of Georgiana and claims to make in it the greatest success of her theatrical career. Speaking of the part recently Miss Lynden said: "The great charm of the role to me is the womanliness of the character portrayed. Georgiana, in every sense a warm hearted capable woman, loving, but keen witted and thoroughly unable to hold her own, is able to cope with her adversaries, fight her own battles and win her own victories. Then again Georgiana is a true American in every sense of the word. She stands on the high influence of the American woman, she has a broad outlook, she judges accurately and quickly, and acts speedily upon her convictions, unswayed by forces that would compel the weaker woman of the world to totter and fall by the wayside. Georgiana glows with health and spirit

Sylvia Lynden in "Her Own Way."

In her battle for supremacy she wins the double victory of defeating the villain who has nearly spoiled her brother's life and winning her victory in "Her Own Way."

SYLVIA LYNDEN'S GOWNS AND JEWELS.

An attractive feature of Jules Murry's production of Clyde Fitch's greatest play, "Her Own Way," which will be seen at the Academy of Music on Tuesday, Oct. 9th, is the manner in which the ladies costume their parts. Miss Sylvia Lynden who plays the leading part of Georgiana, is particularly fortunate in the selection of her gowns. In the first act she wears an elaborate brown velvet costume and carries the handbag which that was purchased by her in St. Petersburg last summer. Her second dress is a negligee of fine lace bought from Brussels by a member of her family twenty years ago. In the third act she is dressed in mourning, her handsome black gown relieved only by a string of pearls. These pearls came to her from her great grandmother who purchased them in Spain. Miss Lynden does not believe in stage jewelry. Every ornament she wears is of the finest quality and in "Her Own Way," as the scenes are all modern it is necessary that her jewelry be in keeping with her costumes and the surroundings of the play.
