Dr. J. J. McKanna,
 Reidsville, N. C.

My Dear Doctor:-

I take pleasure in enclosing my check to balance account with you to date. I arrived home safely on Friday night last by way of Greensboro and Sanford. I did not go to Charlotte as I had planned, as my business demanded my immediate attention. As soon as I get everything in order it is my intention to run up to Charlotte and let Mr. Davis see what the McKanna treatment has done for me. He will be delighted, as all my other friends are here in Laurinburg.

I went to work immediately upon my return here, and it was the best thing for me, for I have been sleeping splendidly and otherwise feel better than I have for quite a while. I now feel that the drink habit with me is a thing of the past. My wife is happy, and all my friends seem to rejoice with me over the great change that has taken place after my short stay with you.

I noticed "our interview" in the Sunday papers. This is a strong advertisement, and I feel that it will be the means of turning many old toppers your way. If such is the result I will feel very much gratified.

I cannot close this letter without expressing to you my heartfelt appreciation of your kindness to me while I was a patient under your care. I will always have a fond recollection of my stay in Reidsville. Mrs. McKanna, and all others connected with the Sanitarium, were exceedingly kind to me. I cannot forget such kindness, and I trust that my experience with you will be of great service to others.

Please remember me kindly to Mrs. McKanna and the other members of the Sanitarium force. With very kind regards, and wishing you unbounded prosperity in your good work, I am

Yours very truly,

T. T. COVINGTON.

LEADING EDITORIAL IN GREENSBORO RECORD, JAN. 24.
 There was a remarkable story printed yesterday regarding the McKanna Three Day Liquor Cure, written by a reporter of The Industrial News, who recently visited Reidsville. The interview with Mr. T. T. Covington, a well known business man residing in the eastern part of the State, was startling. He said he had tried various treatments, one of them five times, without a cure, yet with only a few days of the McKanna treatment he Covington says he is satisfied he will never feel the need of a stimulant any more. Evidently the man who got up this treatment has "been there." Men who have ever been in the clutches of whiskey know what it is to talk about having will power to quit. Will power is a great thing, but there are two things that can put it out of business in short order: one is the hangman, the other liquor. Will power is the backbone, the nerve of a man, when his nerves are gone, so is his will power. The most astonishing thing about this cure is the ability to knock the appetite out in three days. This does not mean permanent cure by any means, but it certainly shows there is something most worthy in it. Scores of well meaning people talk about drinking water, eating oranges and so on, to cure a thirst for booze, all of which makes an old blue hugh and then hustle the harder for a drink.
