to day, but the subsequent movement towards recovery was haiting and uncertain. The activity of the dealing subsided to a marked degree. The recovery did not set in, however, until a threatening break in prices at the opening, which made a level of prices which added many important market leaders to the list of low prices for the year. Compared with the low prices in January, however, there was but a small fractional difference in the majority of instances. The strength of the resistance developed at that particular point proved particularly formidable to the conjectants for lower prices, owing to the asual reasoning of professional operators from the technical conditions in the market. A break in prices after a temporary recovery, such as that which conjurred in February, is expected to gain informentum after getting lower than the previous decline had carried prices.

When prices opened lower at the stock exchange this morning there appeared buying orders for execution by brokerage houses which are credited with operating for some of the great capitalists associated in groups. This produced an impression on the minds of professional operators that effective support was designed for the market. The lending of money on call by houses of the same character suggested a sold-out condition in stock holdings. At the same time the demand for stocks in delivery.

Reports from Washington received in Wall street were of more hepful prospects for the Aldrich bill, and this made a cheerful effect on sentiment. The improvement gathered force as the day progressed, and last prices were near the best and generally well above last night. Money continued quite firm and foreign exchange also was firm on account of sales of stocks here for foreign account. Bonds were heavy. Total sales, parvalue $1.474.000.

New York, Feb. 25.—Private cable advices from Liverpool are quite contradictory. One of our friends who has been buillish all of the season, now cables that they feel the increasing stock in that market and the large receipts will cause a decline; while another says he expects a revival in the demand from spinners after the first of March at full prices. These contradicting views are each from able merchants, showing the diversity of opinion abroad. Here the temper is in favor of better prices under the buying for arbitrage account together with demand from American spinners for cotton from our stock.

The movement of the crop keeps up so that if it continues from now on, on the same basis as last season, this crop should reach 13,750,000 bales. So far this season the movement of the crop has had little effect upon prices. Notices were issued for about 20,000 bales, but as merchants could carry the cotton on an interest basis they were taken up by a spot cotton house. There was an utter absence of any pressure to sell.
