MR. GRESHAM NONPLUSSD.

Coroner Says if he, Could Just Find Out Where The Observer Men are Finding Out so Much the Jury Would Get a Hump on Itself and Find a Verdict.

Coroner Gresham was a nonplussed citizen yesterday. The inquest over the remains of the victim of Sunday night's tragedy was forced to go out of business for the time Monday afternoon, for lack of witnesses and yet The Observer came out the next morning with a full story of the occurrence.

"Well, what are the developments in the murder case?" asked a newspaper man.

"You fellows seem to know more about than anybody else," said Mr. Gresham. "You go ahead and tell how the whole thing happened as smooth as can be, while so far as the coroner's jury is concerned we haven't got enough evidence to show that there was any connection at all between the man Kimball and the killing of Stephenson. If I could only get my hands on some of the folks who are giving you newspaper men your pointers we could arrive at a verdict in short order. Where did you find out all those things anyway? We can't make the prisoner testify and we can't make his wife testify, so what are we to do?"

This seems to have summed up the situation, so far as the coroner's inquest is concerned. It has adjourned sine die.

Kimball's Record at Rock Hill. Special to The Observer.

Rock Hill, S. C., March 19.—The report of the homicide at Griffiths Sunday night, which appeared in Monday's Observer, was read with interest here, Kimball having made this his home until last fall. For awhile he was the bicycle repairer for W. G. Reid & Son, and it was while working in that capacity that he got into some kind of trouble with Mr. Will Bailey, who was also running a bicycle shop. The two came to blows, but Kimball finding Bailey a much better man than himself, he resorted to his trusty barlow knife, inflicting wounds that put Bailey in the hospital for repairs. At one time it was thought the cuts would prove fatal, but he got well. Kimball was tried and a heavy fine placed upon him. After this trouble he went into the bicycle repair business on his own hook, at a stand on Depot street. His place was raided by the constables several times, as he was supposed to be running a "blind tiger" as a side line. Things got too warm for him and he sought greener fields. He seemed a peaceful enough fellow—the only trouble he had here was with Bailey, and that probably was forced on him.

Stinson Known at Fort Mill. Special to The Observer.

Fort Mill, S. S., March 19.—Jim Stephenson, better known as Stinson, who was killed near Charlotte was very well known here. In fact an indictment is pending against him for disorderly conduct here one night while under the influence of whiskey. He was a reckless fellow. His family lived 3 or 4 miles east of here until last fall. His father lives in lower Lancaster county. A married sister lives here now.
