MORE VIRTUES OF THE ONION.

For getting on the right side of question and there acquitting itself manfully commend us to The Nashville American. The Macon Telegraph's victous assault upon the right of the onion to smell moves the indignation of The American, which, declaring that "the onion need have no fears," comes to the aid of The Observer in these terms:

server in these terms:

"When the Israelites in the wilderness grew weary of manna, they sighed for the good things they had left behind and they distressed Moses when they lifted their voices in weeping and cried:

"We remember the fish, which we did eat in Egypt freely; the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the ontons and the garlick; but now our soul is dried away; there is nothing at all, besides this manna; before our eyes. It was not so much for the fleshpots of Egypt that they sighed as for the succulent leek, the pungent onton, the odorous garlic. The onion is the Welsh national emblem. In Spain and Italy garlic, which is merely a condensed onton, enters into nearly all dishes of both the rich and poor. The onion thrives in Siberia and in Honduras. It flourishes on the Nile and on the Mississippi. It on the Nile and on the Mississippi. It was a favorite with the Ptolemies of anclent Egypt and it finds favor with the highest and the lowest in Macon and Charlotte. Did The Observer, ever hear of The Lady of Shalott? She died of a broken heart because she had to give up either onlons or her lover. Her lover was one of those finicky fellows who obeither onions or her lover. Her love was one of those finicky fellows who ob jected to the odor of onlons, and she would not give up the shalott. Let The Telegraph try garlic for a while, it will then find it more easy to tolerate the onion. The onion is all right. It never seeks to conceal itself. It is about the only thing in hash in which one can

Thanks, able fellow-champion. The noble moral qualities of the onion could not be better illustrated than by your point that even when encountered in hash it is a fair and open foe.

Washington, April 9.-President Roosevelt to-day appointed Oscar R. Hundley, of Huntsville, Ala., to be a United States district judge for the northern district of Alabama. President's action ends a long contest for this office, for which were a number of applicants, both Republicans and Democrats. There was said to be considerable opposition to Mr. Hundley from memebers f his own party and Senator Pettus, who has taken an active part in the fight against his appointment, recently lodged a vigorous protest against him, declaring that the eeling against Mr. Hundley was participated in by a large contingent of the Republicanse of Alabama.

of the appointment, Secretary Loeb gave to the press a long list of endorsements filed by Judge Hundley with his application for appointment to the office. These include members of the judiciary of Alabama, former members of the judiciary, officers of the Supreme and chancery court of the State William D. The Georgia Railroad Prounced Safe by Expert.

Ga., April 9 .- W. O. Jackson, chief inspector of railroads for the Ohio State Railroad committee, who was appointed by the Georgia railroad commission to make an expert examination of the Georgia Railroad & Banking Company, because of a complaint filed with the committee by Bowdre Phinisey, of Augusta, that the road "is unsafe," late to-day made his report to the commission. After a thorough inspection of the property Mr. Jackson reports that he finds nothing of the "dreadful conditions' alleged to prevail in the complaint. He says the track conditions of the Georgia Railroad rated 80 per cent, of perfect, compared with railroads with which he has had to do, and "therefore" he says, "I have no hesitancy in pronouncing this road safe to that degree, and do so without fear of successful contradiction." The commission has not acted on the report, but is is understood that it will be adopted.
