

Richmond, Va., June 4.—The Rev. Dr. J. L. Martin, of the Episcopal church, of Washington, was a visitor at police headquarters this morning when he made a request that further search be made for Capt. J. M. Little, who disappeared from this city during the recent Confederate reunion. Mr. Martin believes that Capt. Little became intoxicated and wandered off and is now out of his right mind. Capt. Little was captain of cavalry and a fine officer. He is a member of the insurance firm of Marshall & Little of Washington, and is very prominent in that section.

The minister says that Capt. Little is not a drinking man except on stated occasions. It is his belief that the old fellow, who has passed three scores and five, met some of his old friends and imbibed too freely. Sergeant J. L. Wilshire says he saw Capt. Little, at the first police station Monday night. The old fellow had been drinking, though he appeared to have had his right faculties and was able to navigate by himself. He was paying a visit to his old pal, Maj. Howard. The Rev. Mr. Martin says: "Captain Little is one of the most prominent men of the town; he is a devout Christian, a member of my church and is a man of a generally good reputation and disposition. He never takes a drink of any intoxicants while at home. At times when he gets away from home liquor gets the best of him. His wife is almost prostrated with grief over the failure of her husband to return home." After his arrival here last week Capt. Little wrote one or two letters home and then he ceased writing. He was due back home Tuesday, but when Tuesday came he failed to put in his appearance. Not even as much as a postal card was received from him. This alarmed Mrs. Little, the other members of his family, his friends and neighbors. It was decided to send the preacher to Richmond to locate him.

Captain Little was located to-night at Old Point. He had wandered off while intoxicated, evidently with a view of taking in the exposition. Mr. Morrow for the purpose of taking morrow for the purpose of taking charge of him.

THE PUBLIC UTILITIES BILL.
Governor Hughes, of New York, Signs One of the Most Far-Reaching Reform Measures Ever Passed by an American Legislature.
Albany, N. Y., June 6.—The so-called public utilities bill was signed today by Governor Hughes. This bill is probably one of the most far-reaching reform measures ever passed by an American Legislature. It places under direct State control every public service corporation, great or small, in the State of New York, with the exception of the telephone and the railroad, street railway and subway lines, express companies and gas and electric lighting companies doing business exclusively in the State but to the business within this State of all railroads or other common carriers which enter the State at any point. The two combinations created by the act will have most sweeping powers in regulating the corporations affected. The bill, which was urged by Governor Hughes, reached its final passage in the face of the most bitter and determined opposition. It was fought from first to last by representatives of many of the tremendously strong and wealthy corporations which will feel the weight of the regulations it imposes. For days in the two branches of the Legislature, the most bitter of denunciations were heaped upon the measure. When finally it was forced through the Assembly and the Senate it was sent back for reconsideration with the veto of Mayor McClellan, of New York city, to whom it went under the law which provides that all laws directly affecting the city must be passed upon by the mayor. Then came further debating in the State capital resulting in the passage of the bill over the mayor's veto.

The first named has a long jail record and only a week ago escaped from a Bethlehem, Pa., constable while under arrest.
The three fires started almost simultaneously. At Bittern, Hunsicker & Co's warehouse, filled with dry goods and notions, the loss is $75,000. The Prince Furniture Company's big retail store escaped harm, but $10,000 damage resulted to the merchandise stored in the warehouse adjoining in the basement of which the fire started.

Spartanburg, S. C., June 6.—Secretary John Rhett, of the chamber of commerce, is preparing a lot of information on share-crop farming in this country, at the request of Col. E. J. Watson, State Commissioner of Agriculture and Immigration. The information is being prepared for Colonel Holland, of the immigration department of the Salvation Army, who recently visited Spartanburg and made a study of the farming and labor conditions in this county, with a view to establishing a colony of English farmers in this section.
Colonel Holland spent several days in Spartanburg, but was unable to secure all the desired information with reference to the system of farming on shares. On his return to New York he wrote Colonel Watson, asking that additional information with reference to raising crops on shares in Spartanburg county be furnished him.

BIG FIRE AT ASHEVILLE.
The "Leachy House" of the Hans Rees Sons Tannery at Asheville Destroyed.
Special to The Observer.
Asheville, June 6.—Fire, discovered shortly before midnight last night, put out of commission and practically destroyed the "leachy house" of the Hans Rees Sons tannery, located between the French Broad river and the tracks of the Southern Railway in the depot section of the city. The fire was of unknown origin and for a time it looked as though the entire tannery establishment might be badly damaged and vast quantities of tan-bark destroyed. The flames, however, by the energetic work of the Asheville fire department and volunteer firemen attracted to the scene, were confined to the "leachy house" and other portions of the tannery escaped. The loss is estimated at approximately $75,000 and is said to be fully covered by insurance. The principal item of loss was the destruction of a new evaporating machine, which had recently been installed at a cost of about $50,000.

At her death the residue of the estate is to be distributed in numerous legacies, including $25,000 to the Princeton University for establishing five scholarships. The Library of Congress will receive the valuable collection of manuscripts and papers from Washington, Jefferson, Monroe and Madison. The collection consists of 1,000 papers.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Statisticians Victor H. Ottensmeyer, of the Department of Agriculture, was recalled to-day in the charge of conspiracy to defraud the government by divulging the Department's information concerning the cotton crop before its authorized publication. He was required to again explain the processes of the Bureau of Statistics and this explanation was followed by an effort to elicit from him a statement as to whether an official of the bureau acquainted with the reports and familiar with the methods of the chief statistician (then Mr. Hyde), could form in advance an accurate opinion of what a given report would contain, but as in the case of Mr. Fessenden the question was ruled out. Judge Stafford presiding in the case even went to the extent of formulating a question covering the point, but afterwards decided that his own inquiry would be out of order and withdrew it.
This effort on the part of the prosecution and the similar endeavor in connection with Mr. Fessenden's testimony make it evident that the government has been hopeful of showing that even though Holmes could not have had absolute information concerning the final figures of the cotton crop reports previous to their promulgation, his general knowledge was such as to have rendered valuable an estimate by him of the location being the giving out of such an estimate in violation of the law forbidding such a course by officials. So far it has been found impossible under the rules of the court to secure admission of such testimony and the attitude of the defense has made it plain that it will resist all efforts in that direction.
Dr. Charles C. Clarke, present associate statistician and at the time of Holmes' connection with the bureau, its chief clerk, followed Mr. Ottensmeyer with an explanation of the location by rooms of the various officials of the bureau including Mr. Holmes. He also gave his version of the compilation of reports showing the work of each member of the force, including Holmes. He said that he had known of Holmes being present in the room with Chief Statistician Hyde while the latter was preparing his formal crop report. He said it was the general understanding among the clerks that all the work in connection with the crop report should be treated as confidential.

DISHONEST, UNFAIR ON ITS FACE.
Message in Opposition to Bill Passed by New York Legislature for a Re-count of the Vote of the Last Election Made Public by Mayor McClellan.
New York, June 6.—Mayor George B. McClellan to-day made public his message to the State Legislature in opposition to the bill passed for a recount of the vote cast in the last mayoralty election in this city. It was announced at the city hall that Patrick F. McGowan, president of the board of aldermen and acting mayor, who presided at the public hearing on the recount measure here this week would send his veto of the bill to Albany tomorrow.
"The bill is, on its face," says Mr. McClellan in his message, "dishonest, and unfair."
He notes the failure to provide for a full recount of all the votes and declares that he, as a successful candidate is denied the right of asking for a recount in a single one of the districts, other than those named in the bill.
"Such a law," he continues, "makes it possible to overthrow the squarest and fairest election ever held provided only the plurality is small enough to make such an attempt worth while."

VERDICT FOR PRICE OF TICKET.
Plaintiff Excluded From Dancing Pavilion Because he Wore Uniform of U. S. Navy—Case Will go to the Supreme Court.
Newport, R. I., June 6.—A verdict for 25 cents, the price of his ticket, was returned by a jury by direction of Justice Sweetland to-day in the case of Chief Yeoman Fred J. Buensele, of the United States naval training station, who was excluded from a dancing pavilion last summer because he wore the uniform of the United States navy.
Several weeks ago Justice Sweetland ruled that the defendant to the suit, the Newport Amusement Company, had a perfect right to select the patrons at its dancing pavilion and that although Buensele was excluded solely on account of his uniform, he could not collect damages, the limitation of his recovery at law being the bare price of his admission ticket, and in accordance with this interpretation Justice Sweetland to-day ordered the jury to return a verdict of 25 cents. President Roosevelt has contributed toward a fund for the prosecution of the case. The case will now go to the Supreme Court.

BROWNSVILLE WOMAN WITNESS.
Proprietor of Leaky Hotel Says She Can Identify One of Former Negro Soldiers as Member of Group Who Shot Up Town.
Washington, June 6.—Mrs. Emma Leahy, proprietor of the Leaky Hotel in Brownsville, Tex., told the Senate committee on military affairs to-day that she believed she could identify one of the former negro soldiers as a member of the group that shot up the town. After hearing firing at the garrison and seeing flashes of guns she said that she saw 16 men in khaki uniforms in the Cowan alley shooting into the Cowan house. She was in a window of her hotel about 40 feet away and two of the men looked up while she was watching them. Just at that moment several shots were fired by members of the group and she said she saw the two men distinctly.
One was very black and the other a mulatto. The latter had large spots on his face and she is sure she could recognize him should she see him again. The description of this man tallies with that of a soldier of Company C, who was involved in the trouble with Mr. Talt, a customs inspector. A subpoena was issued for him at the beginning of the Senate investigation, but he has not been found. Mrs. Leahy testified at length concerning the shooting.
Lieutenant Hawkins, who made the microscopic examination of bullets and shells which were sent to the Springfield arsenal, Corroborated General Crozier, who testified at the morning session, on every point.
