Apples Preserved in Ice. Friadelphia Record.

J. C. Braunbeck, of Wallis Run. Lycoming county, adopted a unlique method of preserving his apples last full. He built a bin in the orchard geven feet wide, 14 feet long and three feet high. In the bottom of this no put straw, then filled it with apples, putting straw on the sides and ends. Then he placed straw and cornstalks on top. He dug a ditch around it to keep the water from standing there

Some water, however, found its way through the top and formed ice about each of the apples, but they were act disturbed until the ice had all melted. The apples are now sound, orisp and without a wrinkle.
