THE YACKETY YACK.

Students of State University Issue Annual Fully up to the Standard of the Institutions—Contains 350 Pages Which Sparkle With Life—Sells for $2.

Clever, complete, varied, well-proportioned in design, and beautiful in execution is Yackety Yack, the annual of the University of North Carolina, just issued from the presses of the Queen City Printing Co., handsomely bound in red and illustrated with hundreds of photographs and engravings, printed in clear type on excellent paper, the book is one to arouse expectations at the first touch and in no respect do these first impressions, on a closer examination, fall short of realization. The annual this year, edited by Mr. William D. McLean, of Guilford county, and financed by Messrs. W. H. H. Pittman, of Mocksville, and J. H. D'Alemberte, of Penacola, Fla., contains 350 pages of interesting matter. Not a single phase or side of life on the Hill, from the trials of the freshmen to the foibles of the professor, is left untreated in compelling fashion. An entire page is devoted to each two members of the senior class, a photograph and characteristic write-up of each one being given. The other classes, the literary societies, the fraternities and other college organizations come in for their share of attention, while choice assortments of "drags" on students and professors help to make the production what it should be in a humorous way. Numerous articles of a purely literary character and real ability raise the tone of the whole.

The publication probably cannot be surpassed in the entire South for originality, life, all-round merit and mechanical beauty. To both the institution and the publishers, it is a credit. The price is $2. It is dedicated to Hon. J. Y. Joyner.

Metal Bed Davenport

Solves successfully the small room problem.

A truly ornamental sofa for the day and good double bed at night. It can be changed from a sofa to a bed instantly by a child. No cumbersome mechanism to get out of order.

We can furnish the home in any color and cushions red or green velour. Prices range $25.00 to $30.00 according to the amount of brass trimmings used. Try one of the beds. You will be pleased with them.
