It is impossible to replant cotton, and peas and corn are not profitable substitutes when one looks forward to the day of reckoning. In addition to Mr. R. Wise Cotton Men Say That 14 or 15 Cents for August Contracts in New York is Not at All Unlikely. Special to The Observer.

New York, June 25 .- Complete proof has been obtained that practically all of the stock of cotton New York has passed into the hands of a few wealthy men who regard it as an investment. This has been accomplished after a leisurely and exhaustive investigation by these men of conditions and after the facts forced the deduction that the remnant of cotton remaining in America will command very much higher prices before the end of the present season. These men thus control actually more than one-half of the total supply at the ports of the United States. The ship was in charge of Lincoln Beachey, who steered the across the bay toward the Brooklyn shore. With the land under him once more the operator allowed the lyn hill section. After a few minutes of manusovring Beachey headed the ship across the river straight for Battery Park. When he came down on the grass plot in the pary a crowd of thousands pressed around the ship and so hemmed in the aeronaut that for sime time he was unable to get out of the car. After the crowd had been pressed back by the police Beachey again entered the car and a moment later the big machine was in full flight over the skysorapers.

After passing over Manhattan Mr. Beachey sent his airship out over the East river toward Long Island sound. In some manner he collided with a spindle which marks a ledge at the sunken meadows. His airship badly damaged and he was thrown into the water. He was resoued by a boatman when much exhausted.
