several baseball fans met last night in the pariors of the Colonial Club and discussed rather thoroughly the proposition that Charlotte purchase the Orangeburg baseball team and enter the South Carolina League. No effinite action was taken owing to the illness of the Orangeburg manager and a consequent inability to communicate with him or anyone in a position to speak authoritatively on the matter of a financial proposition. It is not too much to say, however, that the sentiment was heartly in favor of making the purchase and the man of her choice were going to run away and get married and heartly in favor of making the pur-chase and it is probable that Char-iotte will have a baseball team of her own before many days.

The sum of money which would be required at the outset would not be large, something between $300 and $500 probably, and after the start it is believed that the enterprise would is believed that the enterprise would casily pay for itself. In the present state of the public mind Charlotte would go crazy over a team of her own to a degree sufficient to pay all expenses and a handsome profit, probably. But if nothing were gained save good games with no accompanying financial loss, all concerned would be more than satisfied. FOUR-CLUB LEAGUE PROPOSED.

The fact that the purchase of the fans for last night to discuss the sit-uation. The South Carolina League has, up to this time, been composed of the following teams: Orangeburg. Sumter, Spartanburg, Greenville, Anderson and Darlington. The Sumter team will be transferred to Asheville and according to the proposed plan the new league will consist of four clubs, Charlotte, Asheville, Greenville and Spartanburg, the other towns withdrawing. These teams would all be composed of fast material and, being located within a comparatively small radius, the expenses would be small. The trouble with the league has been the sparcity of the population of some of the towns and the distance around the circuit. In the proposed four-club league neither difficulty would present itself. There is no question as to the dissolution of the old league. That has already been decided on. It has been hovering on the verge of breakdown for several weeks, though not in any sense on account of lack of skill on the part of the players. Orangeburg is now leading the league by a good margin, as will be noted by reference to the sporting columns.

If the town be trouble will be experienced in raising the cash necessary. Mayor Mc-Ninch sent word last night that he believed in baseball and would do

The season is supposed to last until September 15th. Charlotte would get in the neighborhood of 20 games on the city grounds.
