BRIEFS

A Few Minor Happenings in and About the City.

The Carnegie Library will observe Labor Day next Monday by remaining closed.

A handsome covering of linoleum will be put down in Hand's drug store this week.

Mr. J. N. Slatery is ill at the Presbyterian Hospital. It is feared that he has typhoid fever.

Mr. J. M. Cochran, of the Selwyn cigar stand, has resigned and will be gone Saturday by Mr. Clyde Walsh, late of the Consolidated Cigar Co.

"Looking at the Balloon" is one of several comic pictures put on at the Myrtle yesterday. The talking pictures continue to be the feature at the Edison.

Mr. Frank P. Graham, who has been clerking at the Buford news stand of Mr. Iwe Hirschburg, has severed his connection with that institution, preparatory to returning to the Edison.

Officer Jas. R. Malcolm has gone to Roanoke, Va., in answer to a message notifying the authorities here that Fred Douglas, a mulatto negro wanted here for burglary, is under arrest in that city.

"Who you talkin' to, nigger?" retorted one colored boy to another on the streets yesterday afternoon. "If I was as black as you is I wouldn't say nothin'." They had to hide every morning so the sun kin rise.

Rutherford Sun: Mr. W. Lox Long, the genial and successful actor of Charlotte, is here with his family on a visit to relatives and his old home. For two months he has been on the sick list, suffering from a general breakdown. He is now up and rapidly regaining health and strength.

Walter P. Harris was arrested yesterday afternoon shortly after he left No. 7, the Southern passenger train from Salisbury. When asked to whom he was bringing the 4-1-2 gallons of liquor he had in his grip, he said "to the two unknown fellows." He will answer to Recorder Smith this morning.

MR. WILMOTH ENTERTAINS

Southern Manager For Charles M. Steff Gives Banquet to His Salesmen—A Delightful Event.

Mr. C. H. Wilmoth, Southern manager for Charles M. Steff, gave a banquet in the assembly hall of the Southern Manufacturers' Club last night in honor of the salesmen connected with his office. There were present Messrs. S. P. Walker, of Baltimore, Md., general manager; C. H. Wilmoth, C. E. Nolan, L. H. Nixon, W. H. Bass, Charles G. Gonsales, W. L. Austin, W. H. Bartlett, P. M. Asbury, E. M. Sentman, W. L. Smith, P. R. Tripp, W. E. Senn, C. P. W. Sullivan, E. J. Inman and A. F. Claver.

The very substantial menu was as follows:

- Soupe Broiled Fish Chicken on Toast Wild Duck Chicken Salad Cold Ham Sliced Tomatoes Olives Salted Almonds Harlequin Ice Cream Coffee Cigars

The evening was most pleasantly spent. The banquet, which was served by Mr. H. A. Weber, was one of the most elaborate ever spread in the city. There was a spirit of informality and ease from start to finish which added greatly to the delights of the evening. Brief speeches and toasts were made by a number of those present, all of which expressed keen loyalty to the firm and an abiding esteem for Mr. Wilmoth. The occasion was one to be long remembered by every one present.

The Southern rooms of the well-known house of Charles M. Steff were established in Charlotte ten years ago, under the management of Mr. T. G. Weaver, who was forced on account of bad health to resign his position after he had been here only a few months. Mr. Wilmoth, the present manager, was appointed to succeed Mr. Weaver and has seen the open accounts go from 25, at the time he was put in charge, to more than $400 at the present time. "There are in Charlotte at this time," said Mr. Wilmoth, "more than 500 pianos, and in the territory covered by the Southern warehouses more than $300,000 worth of goods."

Mr. Wilmoth. It will be remembered, recently moved from the original stand on North Tryon street, to No. 5 West Trade street, where he is now located in one of the prettiest stores in Charlotte. The electrical display in the store and on the street adding very much to the appearance of that section.

The Pluck of Miss Louise Sanford Last Night.

An incident of which the general public was entirely unaware as it chatted and laughed while waiting for the curtain to rise on the third act last night at the Academy of Music, illustrates the pluck characteristic of the profession which the actor follows and loyalty to the cast of duty. Just before the time when Miss Louise Sanford, who plays the part of Fanchette, fights a duel with Miss Lila Blow, as lions, the former was attacked with acute indigestion and completely prostrated. For a time it looked as if she was out of the game, but she rallied pluckily when the moment came and with superb nerve went through her difficult part.

Mr. Sims Wylie, of New York, was a visitor in the city yesterday.

Mr. J. P. Swan, of Atlanta, Ga., is spending to-day in the city on business.
