Protracted Suit Against Life Insurance Company Results in Verdict For Plaintiff-Court Calendar Re-vised, and Reproduced in Full.

mayor.

After a triai which occupied the greater part of two days, the case of J. M. Sykes versus the Life Insurance Company of Virginia was given to the wheel while speeding down Elizabeth Company of Virginia was given to the jury by Judge G. S. Ferguson last night at 6:30 o'clock. After a few minutes' deliberation a verdict in favor of the plaintiff was returned and recorded. Thus the first week of the civil term of Superior Court drew to a close. Two more weeks remain and the calendar has had to be re-adjusted, owing to the slowness with which the court machinery has moved and the large number of cases docketed. Many have been continued, and the

A traveler stopping at a house on the road side asked his host why it was that he kept the doors locked. He was told it was to keep out burglars. Asked why he kept a loaded gun he was told it was to kill burglars if they entered the house. Asked why he insured to kill burgiars if they entered the house. Asked why he insured his house, he said it was to protect his property and save him from loss. Asked why he insured his life he said it was to leave money in case he died.
